7. When the debenture stock referred to in this certificate is registered in the names of joint holders the survivors or survivor of them shall be deemed to be the registered holders thereof and any sole survivor the sole registered holder.

8. Each holder of any part of the debenture stock of this issue shall on payment of a fee of 1*s.* for each certificate be entitled to one certificate for any part of such debenture stock which is payable to bearer and held by him $\frac{\text{and}}{\text{or}}$ to one certificate for any of such debenture stock which is registered in his name. Every such certificate shall be under the common seal of the company and shall state whether the debenture stock therein referred to is payable to the bearer of such certificate or the registered holder of the stock therein comprised and shall have coupons attached thereto for the interest payable on the stock therein comprised for a period of five years from the date of such certificate. Provided that in the case of any such debenture stock being held jointly by several persons the company shall not be bound to issue more than one such certificate for each class of stock held by them and delivery of any such certificate to any one of them shall be sufficient delivery to all.

9. If this debenture stock certificate or any coupon attached hereto is defaced lost or destroyed it may be renewed on payment of a fee not exceeding 1*s.* for each such certificate and each such coupon, and on such terms if any as to evidence and indemnity as the directors of the Company think fit.

10. The certificates for any part of the debenture stock which is unregistered shall for all purposes be deemed to be a negotiable instrument and all the debenture stock referred to in this certificate which is registered and all interest thereon shall be paid by the company to the registered holder thereof without regard to any equity existing between the company and any prior holder thereof.

11. Any person becoming entitled to any of the debenture stock referred to in this certificate by reason of the death or bankruptcy of a registered holder shall upon such evidence being produced as the directors of the company may from time to time require be entitled to be registered as the holder of such debenture stock or of any part thereof but such registration shall not prejudice any right the company would but for such registration have had against the deceased or bankrupt registered holder.

12. The debenture stock referred to in this certificate and all interest thereon will when the same becomes payable be paid at the registered office of the company. On the payment of the debenture stock the certificate and all outstanding coupons and on payment of any interest the coupons relating thereto must be surrendered to the company. Such interest will be payable on the dates and in accordance with the term specified in the coupons annexed hereto and when such coupons are exhausted the company will if necessary issue fresh coupons for the payment of future interest.

13. Notices may be given in manner directed by the trust deed within mentioned.

FORM OF COUPON TO BE ATTACHED TO ABOVE DEBENTURE STOCK CERTIFICATE (s).

The Company Limited.

On the day of 19 unless the debenture stock above referred to shall be sooner paid off and on the surrender of this coupon the Company Limited will pay to the bearer hereof at No. or other the registered office of the said company the sum of £ being six months interest less income tax for the debenture stock to which the above debenture stock certificates relates.

By order of the Board

VARIATIONS OF THE THIRD SCHEDULE OF DEBENTURE STOCK DEED WHERE THE STOCK IS PAYABLE TO BEARER.

At the beginning insert this clause—

The bearer of a debenture stock certificate relating to debenture stock which is not registered must deposit such certificate at the registered office of the Company with any proxy deposited by him and at least two days before signing any requisition or exercising any of the other powers hereby conferred on him in relation to meetings and he shall only be entitled to exercise such powers on producing a certificate that such deposit has been made (hereinafter called a certificate of deposit). A certificate of deposit shall be given by the Company in every case where such deposit as is herein provided for has been made and shall state the name of the person on whose behalf such deposit has been made and the amount of the debenture stock comprised in the certificate deposited by him. The Company shall retain every debenture stock certificate which has been deposited until the certificate of deposit in relation thereto is surrendered unless the directors of the company are satisfied that such certificate of deposit has been lost or destroyed. Any person acting as a proxy for any other person who has obtained a certificate of deposit must produce such certificate of deposit at every meeting where he so acts.

Add at the end of Clause 15, "or in respect of which he has received a certificate of deposit."

Clause 20. Before the word "holder" omit the word "registered."

The variations in the case of a trust deed for securing debentures are similar, a debenture to bearer being, of course, set out in the Second Schedule, and the necessary alterations being made.

OTHER FORMS FOR DEBENTURE OR DEBENTURE STOCK TRUST DEEDS OR DEBENTURES OR DEBENTURE STOCK CERTIFICATES.

LETTERS PATENT ASSIGNMENT IN TRUST DEED.

(See 7 Ed. 7, c. 23, s. 28 (4) as to filing in the Patent Office.)

The Company as beneficial owner doth hereby assign and transfer unto the said trustees their executors administrators and assigns all that the letters patents specified in the   part of the First Schedule hereto and the full and exclusive benefit thereof and any and every improvement extension or renewal thereof and the right to apply for and take out further patents in relation thereto and all rights powers and benefits to the said invention letters patent and premises belonging To Hold the same unto the said trustees their executors administrators and assigns for all the residue of the respective terms for which the same were granted and any further or other term which may be granted in respect of the same patents or any patents for improvements thereto, add

(1) Power for trustees to grant licences with the consent of the company while it is carrying on its business.

(2) A covenant by the company to pay all fees and royalties now or hereafter payable in respect of said patents and any patents for improvements thereto.

(3) Power to trustees to make such payments on default by the company and that any payments so made are to be repaid with interest by the company and until repayment to be a charge.

PUBLIC HOUSES.

Where part of the security is a public-house or public-houses, there should be a covenant by the company in the following form :—

The Company hereby covenants to conduct its business in a proper manner and at all times to apply for and do all things necessary for obtaining the renewal of every licence enjoyed by it and not to do or omit or suffer anything to be done or omitted on any licensed property which will endanger the licences thereof and to insure all licences in their full value to the satisfaction of the trustees and to apply and treat all money received in respect of any such insurance or by way of compensation for the non-renewal of any licence as part of the specifically mortgaged property.

REGISTERED LAND AND FOREIGN LAND.

Where the property dealt with is registered land, there should be a statutory charge on the register in addition to the trust deed. This will not require any stamp (t) where the trust deed is already executed. There will also be a covenant to execute and deliver to the trustees for registration instruments of charge in an approved form. Where foreign land is comprised in the security there should be a covenant by the company "To forthwith execute and do all documents and things for perfecting the title of the trustees to the property and to furnish the trustees with proper evidence of such documents and things having been done as soon as the same have been executed or done."

SHIPS.

If a ship is comprised in the mortgage, such ship should first be mortgaged and the mortgage registered under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (u).

Mortgages of ships are exempted from stamp duties under the Schedule to the Stamp Act, 1891 ; but a debenture charging ships will apparently have to be stamped, where the ships are charged by another document in favour of the debenture-holders (x).

GUARANTEE.

Not infrequently some guarantee or other company or person agrees to insure debenture stock or moneys secured by debentures. The insurance companies who do this business usually have their own forms; but the following form may be useful for insertion in a trust deed, the surety being made a party, and it can readily be adapted so as to be indorsed on a debenture in cases where there is no trust deed.

1. The   Company Limited (herein called the sureties) hereby covenants with the trustees that—

(1) If the Company (y) shall make default in the payment of any interest under these presents for a period of one month then the sureties shall pay such interest to the holders of the debenture stock or such of (t) Land Transfer Rules, 1903, r. 123.

(u) S. 31 et seq., and as to the effect of non-registration, see Barclay and Co. v. Poole, [1907] 2 Ch. 284.

(x) Deddington Steamship Co. v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, [1911] 1 K. B. 1078.

(y) The company means the company issuing the debentures as, it is assumed, there would be a definition to this effect.

them as are entitled thereto within one month after the trustees shall have demanded payment thereof and

(2) If the Company shall make default in the payment of the debenture stock when the same becomes payable under the provisions of these presents then the sureties shall pay such debenture stock to the debenture stock holders within three months after the trustees shall have demanded payment thereof.

2. It is hereby agreed that as between the Company (z) and the sureties the sureties shall be sureties only, but that as between the sureties and the trustees and the debenture stock holders the sureties shall be principal debtors so that the sureties shall not be released by time being given or by any other act or thing which would release them if they were only liable hereunder as sureties (a).

The deed will also contain a covenant by the company to pay a premium on the amount guaranteed to the sureties. (The proviso for redemption at the end of the deed will be made subject to the rights of the sureties (b).)

If the guaranteeing company reinsures, the risk the reinsurer will usually take will be default by the principal debtor, and not merely a liability to make good any insufficiency in the security; but, even if the latter be the true risk, the re-insurer will not be released by any alteration which was in the contemplation of the parties at the date of the contract of reinsurance, and so where the original guarantors were also trustees with very wide discretion as to realization, the fact that they had gone into liquidation and were realizing under a scheme of arrangement sanctioned by the Court was, on the facts of the case, insufficient to release the re-insurers (c).

PRINCIPAL MONEYS REPAYABLE WITH PREMIUM.

In some cases the principal sum is repayable with a bonus, such bonus to be payable in any event together with the principal sum.

(z) The company means the company issuing the debentures as, it is assumed, there would be a definition to this effect.

(a) Sometimes the demand must be made within a specified time, and the sureties are only liable to pay principal moneys after the realization of the security and the distribution of the proceeds.

(b) A scheme of arrangement under s. 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as it takes effect by operation of law does not affect the liability of a surety: London Chartered Bank of Australia, [1893] 2 Ch. 540; Re Fitzgeorge, [1905] 1 K. B. 462; Re Jacobs (1875), 10 Ch. 211; see, however, Mortgage Insurance Co. v. Pound (1896), 65 L. J. (Q. B.) 129, which depended on the fact that the company, instead of paying under the original arrangement paid on the footing of the new arrangement. On such an arrangement being made it is the duty of the surety to pay on the footing of the old arrangement at once, and it is therefore usually the surety who is interested in the new scheme: Dane v. Mortgage Insurance Co., [1894] 1 Q. B. 54; Finlay v. Mexican Investment Co., [1897] 1 Q. B. 517.

(c) Law Guarantee Trust and Accident Society v. Munich Reinsurance Corporation, [1912] 1 Ch. 138.

In such cases, unlike the cases where the company is given an option to redeem, and has to pay a bonus as the price of such redemption (d), the debenture or debenture stock deed will have an ad valorem stamp, calculated not only on the money lent, but also on the bonus (e). This appears to apply in cases where there is no absolute covenant to pay on a given date, if, when principal moneys become payable, even against the will of the company, e.g. by a winding-up order, the premium is payable. The debenture stock deed would in such case be varied by inserting in the first recital after the words "payment of the same" and in clause 2 after the words "the amount of the debenture stock then registered in his name," the words "together with a premium of £5 per cent. thereon." Clause 3, by inserting the word "premiums" before the word "interest" at the beginning. Clause 11 (1) and (3) by adding the words "and the premiums thereon" after the words "debenture stock," and the words "and premiums" after the words "debenture stock" wherever these words occur before the words "and the interest" in the provisos to the clause and clause 23 by inserting the words "all premiums and" before the words "interest thereon at the rate aforesaid."

In the conditions endorsed at the back of the debenture stock certificate (schedule 2) condition 2 add at the end "together with a premium of £5 per cent. per annum," and add the same words in clause 3 after the words "The debenture stock will become payable." Condition 5 between the words "and all" and the word "interest" on the first line insert the words "premiums and."

Similarly the registered debenture above given would be varied by striking out of clause 1 the words "the sum of £ " and substituting the words "the sum of £ being the principal moneys hereby secured together with a premium of £ ."

The interest payable under clause 2 would be payable on the principal moneys only. Condition 6 of the endorsed conditions would be varied by inserting the word "premiums" after the words "principal moneys" and the same remark applies to condition 8.

Similar alterations will be made in debenture trust deeds, etc.

Where the redemption is optional, the variations will be the same, except that in clause 2 of the trust deed and clause 1 of the debenture, the variation will be "and any premium which may be payable as hereinafter provided."

Clause 4 of the debenture stock deed will be split into two by inserting a new clause in the following form :—

"The Company may at any time [after the day of 19] give to the debenture stock holders six months notice of its intention to pay off the debenture stock and the debenture stock shall become payable with a premium at the rate of £ per cent. on the expiration of such notice;" and by commencing the second of the two clauses into which clause 4 is to be split as follows: "The debenture stock will be payable on the happening of any one of the following events" and will continue as in clause 4 except that at the end will be added the following words: "Provided always that such debenture stock shall be payable with a premium at the rate of £ per cent. if the company shall go into voluntary liquidation for the purpose of amalgamation of reconstruction (f). Condition 9 of the debenture will be varied by inserting a new condition enabling the company to pay off the debentures at £ on giving notice" and by inserting at the end the following words: "Provided always that the principal moneys shall be payable with a premium at the rate of £5 per cent. if the company shall go into voluntary liquidation for the purpose of amalgamation or reconstruction."

(d) Knight's Deep v. Inland Revenue, [1900] 1 Q. B. 217.

(e) Rowell v. Inland Revenue, [1897] 2 Q. B. 194.

Condition 2 of the debenture stock certificate would be split up and varied so as to make it accord with clause 4 of the trust deed.

POWER TO COMPANY TO REDEEM DEBENTURES TO BE ASCERTAINED BY DRAWINGS.

Not infrequently there are clauses requiring or enabling the company to redeem a certain number of the debentures of a series, the particular debentures to be redeemed are in such case usually ascertained by drawings, and sometimes provisions for a sinking fund are added (g). Even when the particular debentures drawn are to be repaid at a premium, and the other debentures are to be paid off at par, it is not thought that the scheme is bad as infringing the Lottery Acts (h). The premium would appear rather the price which the company pays to the debenture-holder for any inconvenience he may suffer by their drawing the debenture than a prize given to such debenture-holder. The following forms may be used for the purpose:—

1. The Company may redeem debentures of this issue in the year [or on the day of] and in each subsequent year it may redeem a like number of such debentures and also a number of such debentures equal to the number which it could have redeemed under this condition in any previous year or years but did not then redeem. Each debenture redeemed under this condition shall be redeemed at £ (i). All debentures redeemed hereunder shall be redeemed on one of the half-yearly days hereby fixed for payment of interest.

(f) The Stock Exchange authorities require this proviso where a quotation is desired, but if the company is given a power to redeem its debentures, etc., at par at any time then the proviso may be so drawn as not to apply at such time.

(g) If there are coupons attached to such debentures they should provide that interest shall only run "until the principal moneys are paid or this debenture is drawn for redemption, but subject nevertheless to the conditions in the debenture contained."

(h) See supra, p. 468.

(i) Where redemption is to be compulsory, substitute for this clause the following, "The company shall redeem debentures of this

2. Whenever any such redemption is to be made the Company shall give notice by advertisement in one London daily morning paper stating the number of debentures to be redeemed (k), the date and time when the drawing is to be held under the provisions hereinafter contained, and the date for redemption. Such notice shall appear not less than fourteen days before the day fixed for holding any drawing.

3. The particular debentures to be redeemed in each year shall be determined by drawings and all such drawings shall be held at the registered office of the Company in the presence of a notary public and any holder of an undrawn debenture of this issue may on producing such debenture attend. Every drawing shall be held at least one calendar month before the date of redemption of the debentures then drawn and immediately after any drawing has taken place notice will be given in a London daily morning paper of the numbers of the debentures drawn for redemption.

4. A debenture may at any time after it has been drawn for redemption be deposited [with all outstanding coupons] (l) for examination at the registered office of the Company and the Company shall on the date fixed for redemption or on the expiration of seven days after the date of such deposit whichever shall last happen pay to the holder of such debenture on demand the principal moneys thereby secured and all arrears of interest and from the date fixed for the redemption of any debenture all interest in respect of such debenture shall cease except that in the event of the company failing to make such payments as aforesaid interest shall continue from the date of such default until the time of actual payment (m).

5. Where the Company has redeemed or acquired any debentures of this issue it shall not have power to keep such debentures alive nor shall it have power to re-issue such debentures either by re-issuing the same or by issuing other debentures in their place (n).

1. SINKING FUND CONDITION.

(1) The Company shall in each year [after the year 19] set aside [out of the profits made by it in such year] a sum of £ [and if in any year the profits shall not be sufficient then the difference between the amount actually set aside in such year and the said sum of £

issue at £ each on the day of 19 and a like number at a like price on the day of and the day of in each succeeding year until the day of 19 when all the debentures of this issue then outstanding shall be redeemed at par."

(k) Omit the words "the number of debentures to be redeemed" where the company is bound to redeem a specified number.

(l) Omit the words in brackets where there are no coupons.

(m) As to payment of interest, see Gordillo v. Weguelin (1877), 5 C. D. 287.

(n) This clause is put in to meet s. 104 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, it is probably unnecessary where the company is bound to redeem, for there is "an obligation on the company so to do," i.e. to redeem "not being an obligation enforceable only by the person to whom the redeemed debentures were issued or his assigns," but it is usually desirable to have such a clause where there are provisions for drawings, and often in other cases.

shall be made good out of the profits of succeeding years] such sum and also any sums set aside and invested under this provision in previous years shall be applied in purchasing any debentures at any price not exceeding £ each at which the Company may be able to acquire them and in paying off any debentures which the company may at any time be able to redeem under the provisions hereof. Any moneys which at any time cannot be so applied as aforesaid may pending such application be invested by the Company in the names or under the legal control of the trustees in any investment in which trustees may by law be entitled to invest or may be left on deposit at any bank—and the company shall until the principal moneys hereby secured become payable be entitled to receive the income from and from time to time to vary any such investment for others of a like nature (o).

(2) The Company shall not be entitled to reissue any of the debentures which it has purchased or redeemed under this clause.

POWER TO APPOINT A RECEIVER (p).

The holder or holders of not less than two-thirds of the debentures of this issue shall have power at any time after the principal moneys hereby secured become payable by writing under his or their hand or hands to appoint a receiver and to remove any such receiver and to appoint another in his place and to fix the remuneration of any such receiver provided always that any such receiver shall be the agent of the Company: and the company alone shall be responsible for his acts and defaults.

A receiver appointed under the foregoing power shall have the following additional powers.

(1) Power to take possession of all or any part of the property and assets hereby charged.

(2) Power to carry on the business of the Company in such manner as he shall in his discretion think proper.

(3) Power without any further notice to exercise the power of sale or the other powers and authorities conferred on a mortgagee by sections 19, 21, and 22 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act 1881 and the provisions of the Conveyancing Act 1911 amending the same and so that all the provisions of those sections relating to any of the matters aforesaid shall with the necessary variations apply as though the same were hereby incorporated.

(4) Power to enter into any compromise or arrangement which he may consider expedient (q).

(o) Where there is a trust deed this covenant should be in such deed, and the money may be paid to the trustees, and the moneys invested will be treated as part of the specifically mortgaged property; see National Trust Co. v. Whicher (1912), 106 L. T. 310. From which it would appear that where debentures are to be redeemed by tender, regard must be had in most cases to the number offered as well as to the price asked; and so it will be unnecessary to accept a tender which will interfere with the purchase of a larger number of bonds, even at a slightly higher price.

(p) The wisdom of having such a power as this is somewhat doubtful. It sometimes deters the Court from appointing a receiver. The fact that the debenture-holders are carrying on the business of the company is a ground for winding-up in some cases: Re Chic, [1905] 2 Ch. 345; Re Alfred Melson, [1905] 2 Ch. 841, and though the Court will allow such a receiver to take possession after winding-up, it is doubtful if he can, after winding-up, carry on the business of the company: Henry Pound, Son and Hutchins (1889), 42 C. D. 402, and see supra, pp. 472 and 473, where the question is discussed.

(q) This authorizes the receiver to borrow: Robinson Printing Co. v. Chic, [1905] 2 Ch. 123.

(5) Power subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained to exercise without any further consent all the powers and authorities conferred on a receiver appointed under the powers conferred by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act 1881.

All moneys received by the receiver shall subject to the payment thereout of (1) the preferential debts referred to in section 209 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 and (2) all payments having priority to the charge hereby created which may be payable thereout and (3) all costs charges and expenses incurred by him in the exercise of the powers aforesaid and (4) any remuneration payable to such receiver be applied in payment of the principal moneys and interest secured by the debentures of this issue pari passu.

MAJORITY POWERS IN DEBENTURE.

The holders of three-fourths of the debentures of this issue for the time being issued and outstanding may by writing under their hands release or modify the rights of the debenture-holders or enter into any compromise or arrangement which the Court could sanction under section 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 if the same had been sanctioned by the statutory majority and every such release modification compromise or arrangement shall be binding on all the debenture-holders of this issue (r).

PARTLY PAID DEBENTURES.

Sometimes debentures are issued before payment in full of the sum thereby secured has been made in such case a debenture (in the form of the registered debenture above given) will require the following modifications (s).

Clause 1. Add after the words "the sum of £ " the words "or other the amount paid up in respect of this debenture."

Clause 2.—Substitute for the words "the sum of £ " the words "the amount for the time being paid up in respect of this debenture" and insert after condition 1 endorsed on the debenture the following conditions—

1. The registered holder of this debenture shall pay to the company in respect of the principal sum of £ to be hereby secured the following sums at the following dates that is to say:—

£ on application
£ on the day of 19

and the balance of £ as and when called up—but so that fourteen days' notice of each call shall be given and that no call shall be for a greater amount than £ or be made within one calendar month after the last preceding call. The Company will endorse on this debenture a note of each payment when the same is made.

(r) Such a clause will only be necessary in cases where there is no trust deed, as trust deeds almost invariably contain full provisions dealing with this matter.

(s) Formerly specific performance of such a contract could not be: South African Territories v. Wallington, [1898] A. C. 309; but now specific performance of such a contract can be granted, Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 105; in addition to the above alterations it may be desirable to give the company power to decline to register transfers of partly paid shares.

2. If before or on the day appointed for payment of any call or instalment the registered holder of this debenture does not pay the same he shall be liable to pay interest on such sum at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the date fixed for payment until the time of actual payment and the directors of the company may at any time before such default is made good give notice requiring him to make such payment within seven days from the date when such notice is given and stating that if such payment is not then made the directors of the company may forfeit this debenture and if such payment is not then made such directors may declare this debenture to be forfeited and thereupon this debenture and all sums paid up thereon shall be forfeited but the person who was the registered holder hereof before forfeiture shall remain liable to pay to the Company all calls instalments interest and other moneys presently payable in respect of this debenture before forfeiture.

Not infrequently the same result is arrived at by issuing scrip or provisional certificates usually payable to bearer (t), which can be exchanged for debenture or debenture stock when all instalments have been paid, and sometimes a letter of allotment (in a similar form to that given above for shares) is used instead of a scrip certificate. Such letter of allotment should state the dates when the different instalments become payable. It is, however, obvious that these methods have their disadvantages unless a charge is given by some document other than the debenture, as it may well be that if the company goes into liquidation before the final instalment is paid the scrip or allotment letter holders will find themselves to be mere unsecured creditors (u), and there may be difficulties under section 212 of the Act if the company goes into liquidation within three months of the debentures being issued. If a charge is given it will certainly have to be registered, and it may be that it will also have to be stamped in addition to the debentures. These last difficulties are to a considerable extent lessened where there is a trust deed; but in other cases partly paid debentures or debenture stock are preferable, except possibly in bearer cases where the specific performance difficulty arises.

FORM OF SCRIP CERTIFICATE (x).

The Company Limited.

Issue of £ 5 per cent. debenture stock No. £

This is to certify that the sums of £ and £ having been paid on application for and allotment of pounds of the above-mentioned debenture stock the bearer of this certificate will be entitled to that amount of such debenture stock on payment to the company of the instalments due thereon as under that is to say: £ on the day of 19 £ on the day of 19 and £ on the day of 19 . Payment in full may be made at any time under discount at the rate of £ per cent. per annum. In case of default in payment of any instalment on its due date the person in default will be liable to pay interest at the rate of £ per cent. per annum from such date until the date of payment and such default will entitle the company to cancel the allotment of the debenture stock to which this certificate refers and to forfeit any instalments paid.

At any time after the final instalment has beeen paid this scrip certificate together with all bankers receipts may be lodged at the registered office of the company and on the expiration of one week from the time when the same have been so lodged the company will register £ of the said debenture stock in such name or names as the bearer or bearers hereof may direct and will issue a certificate in respect of the same.

Interest at the rate of £ will be paid on the 19 and on every subsequent and on the various instalments from the last date of payment of interest or in the case of any instalment on which no previous interest has been paid from the date when such instalment became due.

The debenture stock is secured by a trust deed dated constituting a fixed charge on all the freehold and leasehold property of the company and a floating charge on all the rest of its undertaking and assets including its uncalled capital for the time being: the company may redeem the debenture stock at any time by giving six calendar months notice of its intention so to do and the debenture stock becomes payable on the earlier happening of the events specified in the trust deed.

All persons to whom scrip certificates for debentures of the issue within referred to have been issued will subject as hereinafter provided be entitled to the same rights in respect of the sums actually paid by them respectively in respect of the debentures of such issue mentioned in their respective scrip certificates as though such debentures had actually been issued (a).

2. The said A.B. (hereinafter called the scrip-holder) shall pay each of the instalments payable in respect of any of the debentures numbered to (hereinafter called the debentures) as and when the same becomes due and if any such instalment is not paid on its due date then the Company may at any time before such instalment is paid give the scrip-holder notice in writing requiring him to pay such instalment within seven days from the date when such notice is given and stating if such instalment is not then paid the directors of the Company may forfeit the rights conferred by or mentioned in this certificate and if such payment is not made by such date such directors may accordingly declare all rights conferred by or mentioned in this certificate to be forfeited and thereupon such rights shall be forfeited—but such forfeiture shall not relieve the scrip-holder from his liability to pay such instalment and all further instalments payable hereunder as and when such further instalments become due.

3. If the scrip-holder at any time while he is not in arrear with the payment of any instalment shall desire to renounce his right to the debentures or any of them then he shall leave at the registered office of the Company (1) this certificate and (2) a letter of renunciation showing the distinctive numbers of the debentures he proposes to renounce and signed by him and containing an agreement signed by the person in whose favour such renunciation is made to pay all instalments which shall thereafter become payable in respect of such of the debentures as are so renounced as and when the same become due and thereupon the Company shall cancel this certificate and shall issue such fresh certificate or certificates as may be necessary for showing what rights the person renouncing and the person in whose favour the renunciation is made respectively have to any of the debentures provided always that nothing in this clause contained and nothing done hereunder shall in any way relieve the scrip-holder from liability to pay any instalments in respect of any of the debentures the right to which he has renounced.

4. Any person acquiring any rights in manner mentioned in the last preceding condition hereof shall take the same free from all equities existing between the Company and any person previously entitled to such rights.

5. The scrip-holder may pay any instalments before the same become due and interest on any sum so paid shall run as from the date of such payment.

6. On payment of any instalment in respect of any of the debentures within mentioned the secretary of the Company or some other person authorized by the directors of the Company in that behalf shall endorse hereon a note of such payment.

7. All instalments and interest shall be paid to and by the Company at its registered office and this certificate shall when all instalments in respect of the debentures have been paid be exchangeable for the debentures at such registered office.

8. All notices to be given by the Company to the scrip-holder shall be given to him by letter sent through the post to him at some address to be supplied by him for the purpose or if he has given no such address at his within-mentioned address and any such notice shall be deemed to have been duly given within twenty-four hours from the time when the envelope containing the same was put into the post office (b).

FORM WHERE DEBENTURES ARE TO BE EXCHANGEABLE FOR SHARES.

FORM EMPOWERING DEBENTURE-HOLDERS TO APPOINT DIRECTORS OF THE COMPANY (cc).

The holders of a majority of the debentures of this issue may appoint two directors of the Company and they shall be entitled at all times before the principal moneys hereby secured are paid to fill up any vacancy in the office of any director so appointed. The holders of three-fourths

(b) If there is a trust deed it will be enough to provide that notices may be given in manner given by the trust deed. In such case it will often be convenient instead of indorsing conditions to set them out in the trust deed, and to have a reference on the face of the scrip certificate to the trust deed.

(c) Such a clause is bad, where the debenture-holder is paying for his debenture a less sum than the par value of the shares he is to get in exchange for his shares: Mosely v. Koffyfontein Mines, [1904] 2 Ch. 108; it may, however, be good where the exchange can only be effected at a future date: ibid., 120.

POWER OF DEBENTURE-HOLDERS TO VOTE AT MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY (e).

Except upon the passing or confirmation of a special or extraordinary resolution each debenture-holder shall be entitled at every meeting of the company to   votes for every debenture held by him.

REGISTRATION OF MORTGAGES AND CHARGES.

The Companies Act, 1900, introduced certain provisions as to registration of mortgages or charges, these provisions were altered to a certain extent by the Act of 1907, and as so altered have been incorporated in the Consolidation Act. The provisions of the Act of 1900 apply to mortgages and charges created after the 1st of January, 1900, the provisions of the later Acts apply to mortgages and charges created after the 1st day of July, 1908 (f). None of these provisions apply to Scotland. A certain amount of difficulty has arisen as to what is the date of the "creation" of a charge on the one hand, Buckley, J., has held (g) that the date when the seal of the company is affixed to the debentures or a debenture trust deed is not the date when the charge is created. On the other hand, Joyce (h) and Neville, JJ. (i), have held that that is the date. According to the former view, which is, it is submitted, the preferable view, the date of the actual issue of the debenture is not necessarily the (d) Where there is a trust deed, this power should be conferred on a meeting. The articles of the company must, of course, also deal with the point.

(e) The articles of the company must likewise deal with this point. It is not thought that even now persons other than members can vote on special or extraordinary resolutions, for "members" only can under s. 69 of the Act of 1908, vote, though "persons entitled by the articles to a vote may demand a poll." This last expression first occurs in the Companies Act, 1907. It seems to have arisen from a recommendation of the Company Law Committee who reported in 1906 (see their report, paragraph 62), the committee apparently did wish to enable debenture-holders to vote where the articles of a company allowed it, but the Act does not seem to carry out this intention. The point is sometimes met by giving debenture-holders shares of a farthing each with voting powers.

(i) New London and Suburban Omnibus, [1908] 1 Ch. 621. S. 93 (3) of the Consolidation Act seems to make it clear that this decision and the one cited in the preceding note would not be law in cases of registration under that Act, and to throw doubt on the decisions themselves.

date when the charge is created, it would be enough that the money had been lent pursuant to an agreement that it should be secured by debentures; under such an agreement either a present equitable charge is given, in which case immediate registration is necessary, or a charge is to be given when called for, in which case the holder runs the risk of his security being a fraudulent preference or being avoided by section 212 of the Act (k).

The Consolidation Act (l) then provides that every mortgage or charge created (m) after the 1st day of July, 1908, which is either—

(1) a mortgage or charge for the purpose of securing any issue of debentures; or
(2) a mortgage or charge on uncalled share capital of the Company; or
(3) a mortgage or charge created or evidenced by an instrument which, if executed by an individual, would require registration as a bill of sale; or
(4) a mortgage or charge on any land, wherever situate or any interest therein (n); or
(5) a mortgage or charge on any book debts of the Company; (o) or
(6) a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the Company; shall, so far as any security on the Company's property (p) or undertaking is thereby conferred, be void against the liquidator and any creditor of the Company, unless the prescribed (q) particulars of the mortgage or

(m) A mortgage will be created for the purposes of this section where property purchased by a company and paid for out of its own moneys is subsequently conveyed to the trustees of an existing covering deed on their repaying such money to the company: Cornbrook Brewery v. Law Debenture Corporation, [1904] 1 Ch. 103; but not where there is a conveyance direct from the vendor to the trustees: Bristol United Breweries v. Abbot, [1908] 1 Ch. 279.

(n) These words were not contained in the 1900 Act.

(o) These words were not contained in the 1900 Act, but a charge or assignment of all a company's book debts, would usually be a floating charge: Illingworth v. Houldsworth, [1904] A. C. 355.

(p) The section only applies to mortgages or charges on the company's property, and not to mortgages or charges on property in which the company may have an interest in certain events which have not happened at the date of the mortgagee's claim: Law, Car, and General Insurance Corporation, [1911] W. N. 90 and 101.

(q) I.e. prescribed by the Board of Trade Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 285. For forms of such particulars, see post, p. 541.

charge, together with the instrument (if any) by which the mortgage or charge is created or evidenced, are delivered to or received by the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies for registration in manner required by the Act within twenty-one days after the date of its creation. These provisions are without prejudice to any contract or obligation for repayment of the money secured by the charge and when a mortgage or charge becomes void under this section the money secured thereby immediately becomes payable (r).

These provisions are, however, modified by the following provisions :—

(i) In the case of a mortgage or charge created out of the United Kingdom comprising solely property situate outside the United Kingdom, the delivery to and the receipt by the Registrar of a copy of the instrument by which the mortgage or charge is created or evidenced, verified in the prescribed (s) manner, has the same effect for the purposes of the section as the delivery and receipt of the instrument itself, and twenty-one days after the date on which the instrument or copy could, in due course of post and if despatched with due diligence have been received in the United Kingdom is substituted for twenty-one days after the date of the creation of the mortgage or charge as the time within which the particulars and instrument or copy are to be delivered to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies. The copy of the instrument by which the mortgage or charge is created or evidenced must under the Order of the Board of Trade of March 29th, 1909, be certified to be a true copy under the seal of the Company or under the hand of some person interested therein, otherwise than on behalf of the company.

(ii) Where the mortgage or charge is created in the United Kingdom but comprises property outside the United Kingdom the instrument creating or purporting to create the mortgage or charge may be sent for registration notwithstanding that further proceedings may be necessary to make such mortgage or charge valid or effectual according to the law of the country in which such property is situate (t).

(r) Under the 1900 Act the charge itself had to be filed within the 21 days; but as was pointed out in Yolland, Husson, and Birkett, Ltd., [1908] 1 Ch. 152, the word "filed" was wrongly used; what the section really meant was supplied or furnished to the Registrar, the 1900 Act, moreover, did not make the principal moneys repayable in case of default.

(s) Prescribed by the Board of Trade and Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 285.

(t) The Act of 1900 contains 14 (2) the following provision in place of these two provisions :— "Where the mortgage or charge "comprises property out of the "United Kingdom it shall so far as "that property is concerned be "sufficient compliance with the re-"quirements of this section if a deed "purporting to specifically charge "such property be registered, not-"withstanding that further pro-"ceedings may be necessary to make "such mortgage or charge valid or "effectual according to the law of "the country in which such property "is situate."

(iii) If a negotiable instrument has been given to secure the payment of any book debts of a Company, the deposit of such instrument for the purpose of securing an advance to the Company is not for the purpose of the section to be treated as a mortgage or charge on those book debts; and the holding of debentures entitling the holder to a charge on land will not be deemed to be an interest in land (u).

The Registrar must keep, with respect to each company, a register in the prescribed form of all such mortgages and charges created by the company after the 1st day of July, 1908, and requiring registration under the section, and must on payment of the prescribed fee (x), enter in the register, with respect to every such mortgage or charge, the date of creation, the amount secured by it, short particulars of the property mortgaged or charged, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to the charge (y).

Where a series of debentures containing, or giving by reference to any other instrument, any charge to the benefit of which the debenture-holders of that series are entitled pari passu is created by a company, it is sufficient if there are delivered to or received by the Registrar within twenty-one days after the execution of the deed containing the charge, or, if there is no such deed, after the execution of any debentures of the series the following particulars:—

(a) the total amount secured by the whole series; and

(b) the dates of the resolutions authorizing the issue of the series and the date of the covering deed, if any, by which the security is created or defined; and

(c) a general description of the property charged; and

(d) the names of the trustees, if any, for the debenture-holders;

together with the deed containing the charge, or, if there is no such deed, one of the debentures of the series, and the Registrar must, on payment of the prescribed fee (x), enter such particulars in the register (z).

Where more than one issue is made of debentures in the series, there must be sent to the Registrar for entry in the register particulars of the date and amount of each issue, but an omission to do this does not affect the validity of the debentures issued (a).

(u) There are no similar provisions in the 1900 Act; see Driver v. Broad, [1893] 1 Q. B. 539, 744, as to debentures which confer a floating charge on land, being an interest in land within s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds.

(x) 10*s*. where the amount of the mortgage or charge or as the case may be the total amount secured by the whole series does not exceed £200, £1 in other cases. Order as to fees of March 29, 1909.

Sub-section (3) slightly varies the provisions of the 1900 Act, but the only material difference would seem to be that this sub-section, which in cases which come within it affords an alternative method of registration, gives a limit of time within which there must be registration, while under the corresponding section of the Act of 1900, registration of a trust deed to secure debentures (b), or debenture stock (c), or of a series of debentures (d) could be made at any time, but only those debentures or that part of the debenture stock which had been created either within the twenty-one days preceding such registration or after such registration were protected (e), now it would appear that registration would protect the whole series. It will be observed that in this clause the twenty-one days runs not from the date of the creation of the mortgage or charge but from the date of the execution of the deed containing the charge, or, if there is no such deed of any debentures of the series, this wording, coupled with the fact that the sub-section speaks of the resolution authorizing, and not of the resolution creating, the charge, seems to make it clear that under the existing Act, at all events, a mortgage or charge cannot be said to be created by the mere sealing of the debentures, which are to confer the charge, and it would seem to be, at all events, very arguable that it amounts to a statutory reversal of the decisions under the 1900 Act, declaring that the date of sealing was the date of the creation of a mortgage or charge within the meaning of that Act (f). An issue of debenture stock can be registered under this provision (h).

Where fresh property has been substituted for that originally comprised in the mortgage under powers contained in the trust deed, the registration of the trust deed and other particulars required by this sub-section will be sufficient for the purposes of the section, as only a general description of the property charged is required (h).

Where any commission allowance, or discount has been paid or made, either directly or indirectly, to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any debentures of a company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any such debentures, the particulars required for registration under the section include particulars as to the amount or rate per cent. of the commission, discount, or allowance so paid or made, but an omission to do this does not affect the validity of the debentures issued.

The deposit of debentures as security for any debt of the company is not for the purposes of this provision an issue of the debentures at a discount.

The Registrar gives a certificate under his hand of the registration of any mortgage or charge registered in pursuance of the section, stating the amount thereby secured, and the certificate is conclusive evidence (i) that the requirements of the section as to registration have been complied with.

The company must cause a copy of every certificate of registration given under this section to be endorsed on every debenture or certificate of debenture stock which is issued by the company, and the payment of which is secured by the mortgage or charge so registered; but if any debenture or certificate of debenture stock has been issued before the mortgage or charge was created the company need not endorse on it any such certificate of registration (k). It is the company's duty to send to the Registrar for registration, particulars of every mortgage or charge created by the company and of issues of debentures of a series requiring registration under the section, but such registration may be effected on the application of any person interested, and such person will be entitled to recover all fees properly paid to the Registrar on such registration.

The register kept in pursuance of the section is open to the inspection of any person on payment of the prescribed fee (l) not exceeding one shilling for each inspection. Every company must keep at its registered office a copy of every instrument creating a mortgage or charge requiring registration under the section; but in the case of a series of uniform debentures, a copy of one of such debentures is sufficient (m).

The Registrar of Joint Stock Companies may, on evidence being

(i) This certificate is absolutely conclusive even in cases where the Registrar has made a mistake: Yolland, Husson, Birkett & Co., Ltd., [1908] 1 Ch. 152; or has omitted some of the necessary particulars: Cunard Steamship Co. v. Hopwood, [1908] 2 Ch. 564; in this case, EADY, J., did not think it necessary to order rectification of the particulars, although the date of the resolutions had been omitted; but BUCKLEY, J., did, on a motion to extend the time for registration, order the rectification of the particulars where a wrong date had been given as the date of the resolutions: Harrogate Estates, Ltd., [1903] 1 Ch. 498.

If any company makes default in sending to the Registrar for registration the particulars of any mortgage or charge created by the company, and of the issues of debentures of a series, requiring registration with the Registrar under the foregoing provisions of the Act, then, unless the registration has been effected on the application of some other person, the company, and every director, manager, secretary, or other person who is knowingly a party to the default, will on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the default continues (p). And if any company makes default in complying with any of the other requirements of the Act as to the registration with the Registrar of any mortgage or charge created by the company, the company and every director, manager, and other officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorized or permitted the default will, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, unless registration has been effected on the application of some other person (q).

Any person who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the delivery of any debenture or certificate of debenture stock requiring registration with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies without a copy of the certificate of registration being endorsed upon it will without prejudice to any other liability be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds (r).

A Judge of the High Court, on being satisfied that the omission to register a mortgage or charge within the time required by the section, or that the omission or misstatement of any particular with respect to any such mortgage or charge, was accidental, or due to inadvertence or to some other sufficient cause, or is not of a nature to prejudice the position of creditors or shareholders of the company, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may, on the application of the company or any person interested, and on such terms and conditions as seem to the Judge just and expedient, order that the time for registration be extended, or, as the case may be, that the omission or misstatement be rectified (f).

These applications can, no doubt, be made by originating summons, but, as a matter of fact, they are almost always made by motion, the motion or summons being assigned by ballot to a particular Judge by application in the central office in the ordinary way (g). Where the company is the applicant, the application is usually ex parte, in other cases the company is made respondent. On a motion to extend the time for registration the Court will not decide whether or no the debenture requires registration (h). There must be evidence to show that the omission to register or the misstatement of a particular with respect to the mortgage or charge in question was "accidental or due to inadvertence or to some other sufficient cause or is not of a nature to prejudice the position of creditors or shareholders of the company or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief." The evidence consists of an affidavit not infrequently sworn by the secretary of the company.

In E. F. Beattie & Co., Ltd. (i), an application was granted on the ground of bonâ fide belief that registration was not required; in Bootle Cold Storage Co. (k) on the ground of a misunderstanding of the act and delay of the Stamp authorities; in Joplin Breweries (l) on the ground that the delay had been caused by the illness of a director; in Mendip Press (m) on the ground that there had been a misunderstanding of the law; in Cunard Steamship Co. (n) the application proceeded and was granted on the same ground. The Tingri Tea Co. (o) was the case of an Indian deed, and the application was made as the persons responsible had no knowledge that registration was required. It is stated in Buckley (p) that it is the practice to support the application with evidence that no winding-up order is pending and that no judgment has been recovered against the company and is unsatisfied. In Tingri Tea Co. (q), which is cited for this proposition, there was also evidence that no notice of a meeting for the purpose of winding-up had been given, and in Bootle Cold Storage Co. (r) there was the same evidence, and, in addition, evidence that the company was carrying on business. It has been suggested (s) that in a case of sufficient magnitude it may be well to give notice to some of the largest unsecured creditors so as to enable them to be heard, and that the Court may suspend the order so as to enable unsecured creditors to come in and demand payment or security before the order goes. The Court has jurisdiction to make more than one order extending the time for registering a debenture. Joyce, J., made such an order with a view to an appeal in I. C. Johnson & Co. (t) and it has been done in other unreported cases. The power to extend the time for registering mortgages or charges created between the 1st of January, 1901, and the 1st of July, 1908, and which require registration under the Companies Act, 1900, is preserved by the Interpretation Act, 1889 (u).

In Joplin Brewery Co. (x), Buckley, J., following the analogy of the Bills of Sale Acts, intimated that orders for extension of time for registration of debentures, should be made without prejudice to the rights of parties acquired prior to the time when the debentures are actually registered. This was followed by Eady, J., in Spiral Globe Co. (y), but he made the order, though a winding-up was in progress. In S. Abrahams & Co. (z), Buckley, J., declined to make an order as there was a winding-up in progress, and an order qualified in the usual way would, he said, be useless. In this case the only persons who would have been injured by the making of the order were other holders of debentures of the same series as those it was sought to register; these persons were not entitled to benefit by the non-registration of the debentures, for it was part of their contract that such debentures should rank pari passu with those held by them, and it is therefore thought that an order in the form of that in I. C. Johnson & Co. (a) ought to have been made notwithstanding the winding-up. The effect of qualifying an order in this way, is to render it nugatory against unsecured creditors, if a winding-up has commenced before actual registration (b). While the company is a going concern, the words qualifying the order will

FORM OF ORDER EXTENDING THE TIME FOR REGISTERING DEBENTURES WHERE SOME OF THE DEBENTURES OF A SERIES HAVE BEEN DULY REGISTERED OR DO NOT REQUIRE REGISTRATION.

FORMAL PARTS.

The Court being satisfied that the omission to register the several debentures of the appellant Company set forth in the schedule to this order within the time required by the Companies Act, 1900, was accidental doth pursuant to the 15th Section of the said Act order that the time for registration of the said debentures be extended until the day of 19 inclusive. Provided always that this order is to be without prejudice to any right (other than the rights in respect of debentures of the said series) which may have been or may be acquired against the holders of the said debentures set forth in the schedule to this order prior to the time when the last-mentioned debentures shall be actually registered, and it is hereby declared that except so far if at all as may be necessary for giving effect to the proviso aforesaid such proviso shall not interfere with the rights of equality among themselves attached to all the debentures of the said series but so that in the event of the debentures set forth in the said schedule being avoided as against parties having any such rights as are preserved by the said proviso none of the holders of the debentures of the said series other than the holders of the debentures set forth in the said schedule shall by reason of such avoidance be required to accept any less share of the assets comprised in his security than he would have taken if there had been no such avoidance.

THE SCHEDULE BEFORE REFERRED TO.

[Re I. C. Johnson & Co., Ltd., Court of Appeal, May 5, 1902; [1902] 2 Ch. 101, at p. 111.]

Although the whole of the Companies Act, 1907, is repealed by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and there is no provision in the latter Act corresponding with section 12 of the former Act, still the Interpretation Act, 1889 (f) seems to keep alive the provisions of the section, and the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies would no doubt still register under such provisions, if requested to do so. Under that section it was the duty of every company within three months after the 1st day of July, 1908, to send to the Registrar for registration a statement of the total amount outstanding at that date of the debts of the company secured by mortgages or charges created before that date, which, under the provisions of the Act, would have required registration had they been created on or after the first day of July, 1908, except those already required to be registered under section 14 of the Companies Act, 1900, and the Registrar was bound on payment of the prescribed fee (g) to enter those particulars on the register of mortgages and charges.

The neglect of the company to comply with the provisions of this subsection does not prejudice the rights under any such mortgage or charge of any person in whose favour the mortgage or charge was made ; but if the company fail to comply with the requirements of this section, the company, and every director, manager, secretary, or other person who is knowingly a party to the default, will on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the default continues (h).

Description of Mortgage or Charge.	Date of Creation of Mortgage or Charge.	Amount.

Limited companies (including companies registered in Scotland) must in addition keep a register of mortgages, and enter therein all mortgages and charges specifically affecting the property of the company, giving in each case: (1) a short description of the property mortgaged or charged; (2) the amount of the mortgage or charge: and (3) except in the case of securities to bearer, the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled thereto (j). This section requires registration of the property charged, and not of the instrument creating the charge, and therefore it would seem necessary to register a mortgage by deposit of title deeds (k), and it would seem also a floating security (l) but not a charge not created by the company, as where it buys an equity of redemption (m). It has been said that transfers of debentures need not be registered (n), but this view does not seem to accord with the words of the Act. The register may be kept in an informal book, e.g. on the last pages of the register of transfers and the Act will be complied with if the, entries substantially agree with the facts (o). Any director, manager, or other officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the omission of any entry required to be made in pursuance of the section is liable to a fine not exceeding £50 (p).

The copies of instruments creating any mortgage or charge requiring registration under the Act with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, and the register of mortgages kept in pursuance of section 100 must be open at all reasonable times to the inspection of any creditor or member of the company without fee, and the register of mortgages must also be open to the inspection of any other person on payment of such fee, not exceeding one shilling for each inspection as the company may prescribe.

If inspection of such copies or of the register is refused, any officer of the company refusing inspection, and every director and manager of the company authorizing or knowingly and wilfully permitting the refusal, will be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds, and a further fine not exceeding two pounds for every day during which the refusal continues; and, in addition to the above penalty as respects companies registered in England or Ireland, any Judge of the High Court sitting in chambers, or the Judge of the Court exercising the Stanneries Jurisdiction in the case of companies subject to that jurisdiction, may by order compel an immediate inspection of the copies or register (q).

This right of inspection carries with it the right to take copies (r), and the fact that the person asking for inspection has some ulterior motive hostile to the company would appear not to affect such rights (s). Further, the right to inspect extends not merely to a person entitled but also to his agent (t); on a winding-up the right of inspection ceases (u). Non-registration under section 43 of the Companies Act, 1862, which section 100 of the present Act reproduces with the modification next noticed, did not affect the security of the mortgagee, even when he was a director or manager, except perhaps in cases where the fact of such non-registration has induced some other person to lend money or otherwise act, in a way which he would not have done, if the section had been complied with (x). The present section differs from that contained in the Act of 1862, in that persons other than creditors or members can inspect the register; but, though Lord Halsbury, in Wright v. Horton (y), laid some stress on the fact that a person proposing to lend money could only inspect the register if he happened already to be a creditor or member, it is not thought that this alteration makes any difference, for the principle at the bottom of the cases seems to be that the Courts cannot attach an additional penalty to the penalty imposed in express words by the Act (z).

DEBENTURE-HOLDERS' ACTIONS.

The writ in a debenture-holder's action should be headed "In the Matter of the Company, Limited." The plaintiff, where he is not the sole debenture-holder or the sole debenture-holder of his issue, should be a person against whom the company has no right of set-off, and whose debentures are otherwise unimpeachable (a): and he should sue on behalf of himself and all other debenture-holders of the company of the same class as himself, or, if he holds debentures of more than one class of the same classes (b), in such cases the trustees of any covering deed for further securing the debentures should be made parties (c). It is also necessary to have as parties in these actions a representative of any subsequent debenture-holders or the trustees of the trust deeds (if any) for securing the same and other persons having subsequent incumbrances (d); but, except where foreclosure is sought (e), and perhaps in cases where an order for sale cannot be made under O. 51, r. 1B, R. S. C., owing to the plaintiff being the only holder of debentures of a particular issue (f), it would appear to be unnecessary for a representation order under O. 16, r. 32 (b) to be obtained (g). An order for foreclosure will not be made on the application of a debenture-holder in the absence of any other debenture-holder of the same class (h). Any debenture-holder of the same class as the plaintiff who objects to the course taken by the plaintiff may apply to be added as a defendant. Such application may be made by motion or summons in chambers, and is usually granted as a matter of course (i). A plaintiff in a debenture-holder's action is dominus litis, and can discontinue the action even after judgment if he has no notice of any other debenture-holder who wishes to take the benefit of the judgment (k). Where two or more debenture-holders start actions simultaneously, the general rule is to stay the action or actions except the first, and to give the conduct to the person who first issued his writ (l).

Before an action can be commenced against a company which is being wound up compulsorily or subject to supervision, a summons for leave to commence the action must be taken out (m), and, on such leave being obtained, the order of the Lord Chancellor of 29th November, 1895, provides that the matter shall be assigned to the winding-up Judge.

Where an order has been made in the High Court for the winding-up of a company, any action or proceeding by a mortgagee or debenture-holder for the purpose of realizing his security or by any other person for the purpose of enforcing a claim against the company's assets or property which is pending in the High Court or before any Judge thereof is, without further order, transferred to the Judge who exercises the winding-up jurisdiction (n). Here again leave to proceed with the action must be obtained (m).

This rule applies to supervision cases as well as to compulsory

D. 730, as to making a personal order, and appointing a receiver over property not subject to the charge.

(l) The actions are usually consolidated, see Re Swire (1882), 21 C. D. 647. The plaintiff in the first action will not get the conduct if his action is defective: Re Macrae (1884), 25 C. D. 16; or, if his debt is doubtful: Re Ross, [1907] 1 Ch. 482. Where a receiver has been appointed in a subsequent action, that action will be continued and the others stayed, but the plaintiff in the first action will usually be given the conduct of the consolidated actions. Where the different actions have been assigned to different judges they will be brought before the Judge who is dealing with the action which is to proceed; any action which was not originally assigned to that Judge being transferred to him by an order of the Lord Chancellor, see O. 49, R. S. C. A Judge of the High Court can restrain a person from proceeding with an action in the Palatine Court; Connolly Brothers, [1911] 1 Ch. 731.

(m) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 142. For forms of such orders, see pp. 561 et seq. Leave will almost always be given in these cases: David Lloyd & Co. (1877), 6 C. D. 339; and supra, p. 473, and infra, p. 569.

(n) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 42 (1); see also ibid., r. 43 as to the power of the Judge doing the winding-up work in the High Court to order transfers from inferior Courts, and ibid., r. 44 as to the powers of County Court Judges to order transfers, and O. 49 r. 5, R. S. C.

cases (o), and in supervision cases it occasionally happens that the master does not know of the order and the liquidator does not know of the rule, with the result that the action goes on as if there had been no order. When the mistake is found out in such cases application should be made for the purpose of retrospectively ratifying the proceedings since the order and also in some cases for the purpose of enabling the matter to proceed before the master (p).

The rule also applies to actions commenced in the Manchester or Liverpool District Registry (q). It is thought that it does not apply to actions by the company to set aside debentures (r); it is doubtful whether matters of this sort can be raised by a summons in the winding-up, but probably they can where the liquidator is enforcing a right the company had not got (e.g. under the fraudulent preference provisions), or is availing himself of a special remedy given by the Act in a winding-up (e.g. misfeasance proceedings) (rr). Possibly an action will be more often necessary where the mortgage is a legal mortgage.

In the case of applications in Chambers in matters so transferred where the practice in winding-up is different from the practice of the Chancery Division, Rule 42 (1) of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, provides that the practice in winding-up prevails.

Where any action brought by or against a company against which a winding-up order has been made is transferred to the judge of the High Court with winding-up jurisdiction the Registrar may under the general or special directions of such judge hear determine and deal with any application matter or proceeding which if the action had not been transferred would have been determined in chambers. These provisions apply to the proceedings on any action in which by the Rules of the Supreme Court or otherwise the chamber proceedings are directed to be dealt with by the Registrar (s).

The Rules of the Supreme Court provide that—

"Upon a winding-up order being made against a company proceedings in any action against such company at the instance or on behalf of debenture-holders pending before the judges to whom for the time being company business is assigned shall be dealt with by the Registrar in Companies (Winding-up)" (t).

Not infrequently where there are special reasons for an early (q) English McKenna Process, Ltd., Bowering v. The Co., 1911, E. 1238. In this case the district registrar on request sent the file to London after the order. A subsequent application made to Mr. Justice EADY, in chambers to transfer the action to Liverpool was dismissed on the ground that the action had come to London properly under the rule, and that in the circumstances it was not convenient to transfer it.

(r) It is obviously desirable to raise such matters by summons in the winding-up, if possible, as this will prevent security for costs being ordered. Such an application was made by misfeasance summons in J. H. Selkirk & Co., 00353 of 1906, PARKER, J., January 29, 1907. After some demur on this point a writ was issued, and Mr. Registrar HOOD took the view that it was not necessary to make an order transferring the action to the winding-up Judge.

sale of the property comprised in and subject to the charge created by debentures, a sale is asked for either on or before judgment (tt). This can be done under O. 51, r. 1 (b), R. S. C., which runs as follows: "In debenture-holders' actions where the debenture-holders are entitled to a charge by virtue of the debentures or of a trust-deed or otherwise and the plaintiff is suing on behalf of himself and other debenture-holders (u), and where the Judge in person is of opinion that there must eventually be a sale, he may in his discretion direct a sale before judgment and also after judgment before all the persons interested are ascertained whether served or not." In a case where such an order is asked for the Court will not in the absence of a subsequent incumbrancer make an order giving liberty to sell, but will order that the property be sold with the approbation of the Judge and the proceeds brought into court, so as to enable absent debenture-holders to be served with notice of the application in chambers for approval of a conditional contract (x). It would also seem to be usual in such cases for the statement of claim which shows the reason for immediate sale to be verified by affidavit (y). Where a sale is ordered with the consent of prior incumbrancers, informal notice with a view to obtaining such consent may be given (yy). It would seem to be usual to insert a declaration of charge in the minutes in a debenture-holder's action (z); but the practice on this point varies very much.

Where a writ is issued in a debenture stock holder's action it will be in substantially the same form, except that foreclosure will usually not be asked for (c).

RECEIVERS APPOINTED BY THE COURT (cc).

A debenture-holder may at any time issue his writ and apply for the appointment of a receiver; but, except perhaps in cases where the principal moneys secured by the debenture are immediately payable, the Court has a discretion in the matter even in cases where the company appears and consents (d). The effect of making an appointment is to cause a floating security to crystallize, and become a fixed security. The Court will exercise its discretion in favour of making the appointment not only when the principal moneys secured are immediately payable, but also where there is interest in arrear (e), or where the security is in jeopardy (f). On a winding-up debenture-

(f) London Pressed Hinge Co., [1905] 1 Ch. 576 (in this case a creditor had issued a writ and signed judgment and was in a position to issue execution); McMahon v. North Kent Iron Works Co., [1891] 2 Ch. 105 (a petition for winding-up the company had been presented and was standing over with a view to resolutions for voluntary winding-up and other creditors were commencing or threatening proceedings); Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, [1893] 1 Ch. 574 (execution actually levied and other proceedings threatened); Victoria Steam Boats Co., [1897] 1 Ch. 158 (a petition for winding-up was pending); see also Wildy v. Mid-Hants Railway (1868), 16 W. holders are entitled to realize their security immediately (g), and it follows that in such cases a receiver will be almost invariably appointed. Even in cases where the mortgagee has already taken possession, the Court will appoint a receiver (h). When the action is commenced by writ, a receiver is appointed on motion (i), and it is preferable to proceed in the same way when the action is commenced by originating summons; but in such cases there is jurisdiction to make the order on summons (k). Where the action is commenced by writ it is very usual to obtain leave to serve notice of motion with the writ (l), or in cases where for any reason it is not desirable to give two clear days' notice as prescribed by the rules (m), leave to serve short notice of motion with the writ, such application is made in open Court and ex parte: the Court sometimes gives leave to serve notice of motion with an originating summons (n). In very urgent cases the Court will appoint a receiver ex parte (o), and an order for a receiver has even been made before the writ was issued (p), but it will usually grant an injunction in lieu of a receiver on such an application, if that will meet the purpose.

Any person who obtains an order for the appointment of a receiver or manager of the property of a company, or appoints such a receiver or manager under any powers contained in any instrument, must, within seven days from the date of the order or of the appointment under the powers contained in the instrument, give notice of the fact to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, and such Registrar in cases where such business is an undertaking which has been acquired under statutory powers for public purposes, which will be defeated or seriously affected by a judicial sale (u): in such cases the Court can only appoint a receiver. Where a manager is appointed in a debenture-holder's action the appointment is usually made with a view to the security being enforced by sale (x), but the Court will, it would seem, also appoint a manager with a view to protecting a business which is in jeopardy (y). The Court will usually only appoint a manager for a limited time (z). If, as is now the practice, an order made on an interlocutory application for the appointment of a receiver and manager, does not limit the period during which the person appointed is to act as receiver, but does, as is also the practice, limit the period during which he is to act as manager, then the judgment in the action should extend the period during which such person is to act as manager and should not "continue the receiver and manager" (a). Orders extending the time during which a receiver is to act as manager must be drawn up, passed and entered.

Once a case for a receiver or a receiver and manager is made out, the first question that arises is who is to be appointed receiver or receiver and manager. The Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (b), provides that where an application is made to the Court to appoint a receiver on behalf of the debenture-holders or other creditors of a

The appointment is usually for three months, and is sometimes coupled with a special intimation, e.g. that he is to do nothing more than carry on the business in its ordinary course so far as to protect the assets: Daniell's Chancery Practice, 7th Edition, vol. ii. p. 1458, citing an unreported case, Melson v. Isle of Wight Brewery (1899), before KEKEWICH, J., February 7, 1899.

(a) Davies v. Vale of Evesham Preserves (1896), 73 L. T. 150. If a receiver is appointed until judgment or further order, and not generally, he will have to give further security if he is continued after judgment, unless, as is now usual in the case of a manager (see form of recognizance and bond, post, pp. 585, et seq.), the security covers an extension of the appointment: Brinsley v. Lynton and Lynmouth, etc., Co., [1895] W. company which is being wound up by the Court in England, the official receiver may be so appointed. It is, however, not very usual to appoint the official receiver receiver and manager (c). The rule of the Court is that where there is no reason to the contrary, it will generally appoint the liquidator of the company to be receiver and manager, because the duties of a receiver and manager and of a liquidator are practically identical, and the fact that one person performs them is likely to save expense (d). But the Court will not allow the rights of mortgagees to be prejudiced by the liquidation, and consequently, except under very special circumstances, it will give debenture-holders leave to proceed with their action notwithstanding a compulsory winding-up order (e) or an order for winding-up subject to supervision, and will decline to discharge a receiver and manager appointed at the suit of debenture-holders (f), or where good reason to the contrary is shown to change him for the liquidator of the company (g). Such reason exists where there are assets which can most conveniently be got in and realized by a business man and the official receiver is liquidator. It also exists in cases where it is clear that there will be no surplus for the general creditors after satisfying the debenture-holders (h). On the other hand, where there is a large amount of uncalled capital to be got in, that in itself will be a reason for appointing the liquidator receiver (i). It should be added that the Court cannot remove a receiver appointed by debenture-holders under a power, except, of course, where he is behaving improperly, such a receiver must on a winding-up order being made apply to the Court for leave to take or continue possession and there are many things which he cannot do after winding-up which a receiver and manager appointed by the Court (k) could do; but he is almost always given leave to go into possession (l). there is no special reason to appoint any particular person, the Court will usually, in the absence of opposition on the point, appoint the applicant's nominee if he is named in the notice of motion, and in such cases he will usually be named in the order making the appointment, which will save the expense and delay of a reference to chambers to ascertain who the receiver is to be; but if there is opposition to the applicant's nominee and the parties cannot agree as to the receiver to be appointed, the matter will be referred to chambers (m). The Court can appoint any person whom it pleases, but will require to be satisfied that the person to be appointed is a proper person, and it is slow to appoint a party to the action (n), and will not appoint the solicitor to the applicant (o). Joint receivers are very rarely appointed. The evidence required for the appointment of a receiver will consist of an affidavit showing that the applicant is entitled to the debentures in respect of which he is suing, exhibiting one of such debentures and putting forward the facts on which he relies as entitling him to a receiver, viz., the facts which make the principal moneys secured immediately payable, or which show that the security is in jeopardy. There must also be an affidavit as to the fitness of the proposed receiver.

The order appointing a receiver usually requires him to give security, though he is often authorized to act on the plaintiff's undertaking to be responsible for his receipts and liabilities (p). In these cases a summons to proceed is taken out, and on the return the Registrar or master fixes the security. The security is given and the Registrar or master thereupon gives a certificate that security is given (pp). Such certificate fixes the date for the accounts to be brought in and directs what is to be done with the balances, if this has not been done by the order. In cases where the order appointing a receiver is not to be drawn up till security is given (q), the order states that security has been given, and fixes the times for the receiver's accounts and gives directions as to his balances. In these cases if the matter is in the Chancery Division, the Registrar of the Court sends the matter to the master for security to be given, and, when this is done, the master returns it to the Registrar, who draws up the order—there is no summons to proceed in these cases. Companies (Winding-up) the Registrar performs both functions. Where an order that a proper person be appointed receiver is made the summons to proceed asks also that a person named in such summons may be appointed receiver. On the return an order is made appointing such person or some other receiver and giving directions as to accounts and balances. Where a named person is appointed without giving security and to act without remuneration (a very rare case except where the official receiver is appointed) the order itself gives directions as to accounts and balances. Except where a Guarantee Society is accepted as security or where the amount for which security is to be given does not exceed £500, the security usually required is the recognizance of the receiver with two sureties for an amount which in a debenture-holder's action is usually fixed at the amount he is likely to receive. Affidavit evidence on this point will be required and also subject as below mentioned as to the solvency of the sureties. Where a guarantee society is accepted, and the security does not exceed £2000, the bond of the receiver and the society is usually accepted, in other cases the receiver must in addition enter into a recognizance (r). Foreign societies may in a proper case be accepted (s), and Scotch societies which have submitted by their bond to the jurisdiction of the English Courts will be accepted (t). Where the amount for which security is to be given does not exceed £500, security may be given by an undertaking in Form 21 (a) of Appendix L to the Rules of the Supreme Court. Such undertaking must be signed by the receiver and his sureties, or, in the case of a guarantee or other company, sealed with the seal of such company or otherwise duly executed, and must be filed in the Central Office, or, where the proceedings are pending in a district registry, in such registry, and kept as of record until it has been duly vacated (u).

Where an order is made appointing a person receiver of personalty on his giving security, the receiver is not entitled to demand payment, until he has given security (x), but it is otherwise with regard to real estate (y).

In the cases of companies registered in England or Ireland a receiver must, if the debentures in respect of which he is appointed are secured by a floating charge (z), apply the first assets which come to his hands in payment of certain preferential debts which have priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of the debentures by virtue of sections 107 and 209 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (zz). These preferential debts are:—

1. All parochial or other local rates due from the company at the date mentioned in the Act (a) and having become due and payable within twelve months next before that date and all assessed taxes (b), land tax property or income

2. All wages or salary of any clerk or servant (c) in respect of services rendered to the company during four months next before the said date not exceeding £50.
3. All wages of any workman or labourer not exceeding £25, whether payable for time or for piece-work in respect of services rendered to the company during two months next before the date mentioned in the Act, and where any labourer in husbandry has entered into a contract for the payment of a portion of his wages in a lump sum at the end of the year of hiring he will have priority in respect of the whole of such sum or part thereof as the Court decides to be due under the contract proportionate to the time of service up to the date mentioned in the Act.
4. In cases where the company is not being wound up voluntarily for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another company all amounts (not exceeding in any individual case £100) due in respect of compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, the liability wherefor accrued before the date mentioned in the Act, but subject to the provisions of section 5 of Workmen's Compensation Act (d). The order appointing a receiver contains directions as to these payments, and any sums paid by a receiver under these provisions will be allowed when he passes his account (e), and they must be recouped, so far as possible, out of the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors (f). (f) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 107 (3). This only applies to payments which have accrued due before the winding-up: Mannesmann Tube Co., [1901] 2 Ch. 93, where a receiver was first appointed and then a winding-up took place, and poor rates and debts rank equally inter se, and where the assets are insufficient, abate in equal proportions (g).

It is the duty of the receiver and manager of the company to get in the assets, over which he is appointed receiver, and to carry on the business comprised in such assets with a view to a sale. In the case of contracts entered into by the company before his appointment, the receiver and manager is in no way liable for them (h), but he will not, at all events where there is a possibility of a surplus, be allowed to do anything prejudicial to the goodwill, and so he will usually not be allowed to disregard ordinary trade contracts (hh); but there are many exceptions to this rule (hhh); a receiver and manager who wishes to enforce such contracts must get the leave of the Court to sue in the company's name (i), unless, indeed, he has a personal right of action vested in himself as in the case of a bill of exchange payable to bearer or indorsed to him (k), or a chose in action which has been assigned to him (l), in which cases he may sue in his own name, his right of action being in all cases subject to any right of set-off or equity which the other party to the contract may have against the company.

The leave should, as in all cases where leave is obtained for a receiver to take any steps, be obtained on summons usually in the action (m), to be taken out by the person having the conduct of the action (n). Other parties to the action may apply and persons who are not parties may also apply in the action, and, indeed, this is the right course for them to take where the matter arises out of the exercise by the receiver of the duties of his office (o). The Court will, however, in a proper case give leave to commence or prosecute an action against a receiver (p). Where a receiver commences or prosecutes an action in the name of the company, he will not be personally liable for costs, except in the rare cases where he is made a party (q). Where proceedings are threatened against a receiver or the assets in his hands, the Court may require the claim to be made (r) in the action, and restrain proceedings being taken in another Court. In the case of uncalled capital in a winding-up, a receiver will either have to get leave in the winding-up to use the liquidator's name to get the calls in or he will have to get an order directing the liquidator to do so, on receiving a proper indemnity—the latter course being preferable (s). It would seem that where the former course has been taken the liquidator would, unless the indemnity covers all possible claims, be entitled to attend the taxation of the costs incurred (t).

The receiver is entitled to moneys recovered in misfeasance proceedings and calls in a winding-up, subject to paying the costs of getting in such funds, in priority to costs directed to be paid out of the assets (u).

A receiver is entitled to all books and documents relating to the title of the property comprised in the debentures, and where the Court considers it convenient it will order the trustees of a covering deed for securing the debentures, to deposit such deed and the other title deeds relating to the property comprised in the security with the receiver. In such case the receiver will usually have to allow the trustees access to the deed (v). It has, however, been held that a receiver and manager cannot hold books relating to the business of the company against the liquidator (x), and the Court cannot order securities deposited with the Registrar of the Land Registry under the Mortgage Debenture Acts, 1865 and 1870, to be delivered up to either a receiver or a liquidator (y). Where an order appointing a receiver is not conditional on security being given, the Court will require the parties to the action to give up possession to the receiver of all property comprised in the order (z). the parties to the action such an order may make the receiver a landlord within 8 Anne c. 18, and so entitle him to arrears of rent due at the time of an execution (a). The Court will treat parties who refuse to give up possession as guilty of contempt, and will grant a receiver a writ of possession or a writ of assistance, and will order tenants to attorn (aa) : it will, moreover, not allow his possession once taken to be disturbed without leave, but where the property in question is abroad, even where it is a debt and not immovable property, there the effect of the order of the Court is simply to make it a contempt of Court for a party to the action to interfere with the receiver ; but the Court does not attempt to put the receiver in possession. It is for him to take the necessary steps (b). The Court will in a proper case even on an interlocutory application, restrain a person whether a party to the action or not from interfering with its receiver (c), and it will also on an interlocutory application order any person to deliver up possession (d). Anything calculated to damage property under the management of the Court by a receiver and manager, whether it involves a breach of contract or not, will amount to interference (c). A receiver may (where he has given security or is entitled to act before doing so) demand payment of debts due to the company (e), but a debtor of the company may before he had notice of the appointment of a receiver of a debt comprised in a floating charge, pay the same to the company or an assignee of the company (f). A person who has acted as solicitor for the company may retain moneys in his hands against costs incurred before but not after the appointment of a receiver (g). A receiver will as against a prior mortgagee, be entitled to rents he has got in before the intervention of such mortgagee (h). Usually, if not in all cases, the appointment of a receiver and manager in a debenture-holder's action operates as a notice of dismissal to the employees of the company (i) ; this may give them a right of action, for the purpose of enabling the receiver to take possession : see Huinac Copper Mines, [1910] W. N. 218, where a company was ordered to revoke a power of attorney given to its agent, and to execute one in favour of the receiver, on the plaintiff's indemnifying the company against the acts of such receiver.

but it would appear that such right of action would be only against the company, and not against the receiver or his fund. A receiver appointed of a sublease cannot be sued for the rent of the head lease (k). It would seem, however, that a receiver of a lease is liable for the rent, at all events where he has received rent from sub-lessees (l). A receiver and manager appointed by the Court is primâ facie personally liable on all contracts he makes (m). It seems, however, that where a party privy to the action advances money for the preservation of the property and such advances are to have priority to the debentures, they will primâ facie not have priority to the receiver's right to indemnity. An order authorizing such a borrowing should state whether the charge is to be free from or subject to the receiver's lien (n). If a receiver borrows money on the security of the assets and does not pledge his own credit, the borrower will rank after the plaintiff's costs of action and the receiver's remuneration (o). The Court has power in a debenture-holder's action to authorize a receiver to borrow money as a first charge on the property subject to the debentures and ranking in priority to them (p); but debenture-holders will not be bound if a receiver and manager appointed by the Court gives security for a debt of the company without obtaining the leave of the Court (q). As it is the duty of a receiver and manager to carry on the business of the company and enter into proper contracts, he is primâ facie authorized to borrow and to be indemnified out of the assets of the company, and such borrowing, if entered into bonâ fide and in the ordinary course of business will primâ facie be treated as proper (r); but where a receiver has obtained leave to borrow a certain sum for general purposes, and has borrowed a sum in excess of the sum authorized, it will be on him to show that it was proper to borrow such excess (s).

Persons who have lent money to a receiver cannot claim any higher rights than he can claim, and so where a receiver would be entitled to an indemnity but for the fact that he is in default, creditors cannot claim such indemnity either against the estate or the receiver's sureties until the default has been made good (t).

Orders authorizing a receiver to sell chattels forming part of the property comprised in the debentures are also frequently made. Where a receiver is appointed with a direction that he shall pass accounts the Court or a Judge fixes a day upon which he must (annually or at longer or shorter periods) leave and pass such accounts and also the days upon which he must pay the balances appearing due on the accounts so left or such part thereof as shall be certified as proper to be paid by him. If any receiver neglects to leave and pass his accounts and pay the balances thereof at the time so fixed, the Judge before whom such receiver is to account may when his subsequent accounts are produced to be examined and passed, disallow the salary claimed by the receiver and order him to pay interest at 5 per cent. per annum on the balances which he has neglected to pay in during the time that the same shall appear to have been in his hands (u).

Receiver's accounts are to be in the Form No. 14 in Appendix L to the Rules of the Supreme Court. They have to be left at the chambers of the Judge to whom the matter is assigned (x) with an affidavit verifying the same in the Form No. 22 in Appendix L to the Rules of the Supreme Court and thereupon an appointment must be obtained by the person having the conduct of the action for the purpose of passing the account (y). The Master or Registrar decides what persons other than the one having the conduct of the action may attend the taking of the account. Usually only the person interested in any surplus there may be will be allowed to attend.

Where the order appointing a receiver is silent on the subject he will be entitled to a reasonable remuneration (z). The amount of such salary or remuneration is not usually fixed till after the receiver has passed his first account; it may be either a gross sum or a ment and for rent, as he might reasonably have expected to recoup himself for these out of the sales of cars; but he was not allowed for moneys borrowed for cars to be shown at a show as this was speculative, or for a £1500 overdraft at the Bank, though the moneys were properly applied, as he ought to have obtained leave.

percentage of the amounts he has received, but there is no settled scale of remuneration, at all events, in the case of a receiver and manager, and the scale allowed to a liquidator in a compulsory winding-up is no guide (a). A receiver and manager, whether appointed with or without remuneration, may be allowed special remuneration for services not rendered in his character of receiver and manager, even where such services have not been sanctioned before they were rendered (b). A receiver is entitled to be fully indemnified out of the fund for all costs incurred by him in relation to such fund, but he is not entitled to indemnity for costs in defending an action brought against himself personally which can in no way benefit the estate (c) ; but it is otherwise if the proceedings are proceedings in the action in which he is appointed, and are with reference to the accounts brought in by him (d). A receiver will be entitled to such indemnity even after he has passed his final account and been discharged, and may apply at any time before the fund is distributed (e). The costs and remuneration of receivers and managers are occasionally settled by the Taxing-Master, but usually they are dealt with by the master (f). If any person wishes to charge a receiver with having received more than appears by his account, then he must give notice of his intention to the receiver, stating so far as he is able the amount sought to be charged and the particulars thereof in a short and succinct manner (g).

A receiver cannot purchase the property over which he is appointed receiver without the sanction of the Court (h).

If a receiver fails to leave any account or affidavit or to pass such account or to make any payment or otherwise, the receiver or the parties or any of them may be required to attend at chambers to show cause why such account or affidavit has not been left or such account passed or such payment made or any other proper proceeding taken, and thereupon such directions as shall be proper may be given at chambers or by adjournment into Court, including the ORDER GIVING RECEIVER IN DEBENTURE-HOLDER'S ACTION LEAVE TO TAKE PROCEEDINGS IN LIQUIDATOR'S NAME FOR GETTING IN CALL (d).

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,
Chancery Division. 1893 H. No. 450.
Companies (Winding-up).
MR. JUSTICE VAUGHAN WILLIAMS.

Monday the 12th day of June 1893.

Between Cartmell Harrison (on behalf of himself and all other Holders of Debentures of the Defendants The St. Etienne Brewery Company Limited, Plaintiff,
and
The St. Etienne Brewery Company Limited Defendants.
0036 of 1893.
In the matter of The Companies Acts 1862 to 1890.
In the Matter of The St. Etienne Brewery Company Limited.

The application of the Plaintiff in the above Action by Summons dated the 12th of May 1893 which upon hearing Counsel for the Applicant and the Solicitors for E.H.C. the Liquidator of the above-named Company in Chambers was adjourned to be heard in Court and coming on this day to be heard accordingly. And upon hearing Counsel for the Applicant and for the said E.H.C. the Liquidator of the above-named Company. And upon reading the Order in the above Action appointing Receiver dated the 3rd day of February 1893 the Affidavit of the Plaintiff filed the 12th May 1893 the Affidavit of E.H.C. filed the 18th May 1893 the Order to continue the Voluntary Winding-up of the said Company subject to the supervision of the Court dated the 20th February 1893.

IT IS ORDERED that upon the Liquidator of the above-named Company being properly indemnified (such Indemnity to be settled in the Chambers of the Registrar in Companies Winding-up in case the parties differ) against all Costs charges and expenses which the said liquidator has already incurred in the winding-up (such costs charges and expenses being limited to the Costs of and occasioned by making the call hereinafter mentioned) or may be put to or may become liable to pay in respect of such Indemnity or Actions or other proceedings as are hereinafter referred to W.B.P. the Receiver in the above Action be at liberty in the name of the Liquidator or the Company to get in and bring such Actions or take such other proceedings as may be necessary for getting in the Calls and any other moneys due and remaining unpaid in respect of Shares held by the Contributories respectively of the said Company.

AND IT IS ORDERED that the Books of the said Company shall remain in the Custody of the said Liquidator and that the Receiver shall have liberty to inspect the same at all reasonable times.

AND IT IS ORDERED that the Costs of all parties of this Application be Costs in the Winding-up.

(d) At the date of this order debenture-holders' actions were not headed "In the Matter of the Company"—this was introduced by the order of the Lord Chancellor of November 29, 1895.

The next step in the action, except where the company consents to judgment on the application for a receiver, after an application for the appointment of a receiver and after an appearance has been entered, is to take out a summons for directions under Order 30 R. S. C. If the parties agree and the company appears before the master and agrees to appear at the hearing by counsel and to consent an order may be made on such summons that the evidence may be taken by affidavit, and in such case, but not otherwise (e), the order on the summons for directions may order the action to be set down for hearing on minutes without pleadings as a short cause (in which case the ordinary ten days' notice of trial under Order 36, r. 14, R. S. C. is necessary), or, and this is the better course, an order may be made on such summons that the action be set down on motion for judgment without pleadings to be heard on minutes as a short cause, in which case two clear days' notice is required (f). Some of the judges, however, require a statement of claim to be delivered even in cases where the company appears before the master and agrees to appear by counsel at the hearing and to consent (g). If the parties do not agree to affidavit evidence the order on the summons for directions must direct delivery of a statement of claim in the ordinary way. No summons for directions can be taken out against a person who has not put in an appearance, and in such a case the right course is to file a statement of claim and affidavit of service under Order 13, r. 12, R. S. C., and then, after the expiration of ten days (cp. Order 27, r. 11, R. S. C.) a notice of motion may be filed and the motion set down. A statement of claim cannot be dispensed with in these cases (h).

And it is ordered that in such case the defendant Company and the liquidators thereof for the time being do all such acts and execute all such conveyances and deeds as may be necessary for vesting in the plaintiff the said mortgaged property, such conveyances to be settled by the Judge in case the parties differ. And any of the parties are to be at liberty to apply to this Court generally as they may be advised. [Sadler v. Worley, 1893—S—4421, [1894] 2 Ch. 170.]

Judgments or orders directing accounts or inquiries to be taken or made must be brought into the Judge's chambers by the party entitled to prosecute the same within ten days after they have been passed and entered, and, in default, any other party to the cause or matter is at liberty to bring in the same, and such party will have the prosecution of the judgment or order unless the Judge otherwise directs (t).

(r) Cumming v. In Metcalfe's London Hydro (1895), 13 Reports 501, the Court required the following additional direction to be inserted: "Let the defendants be at liberty at any time before foreclosure to apply to the Judge in Chambers for payment and transfer to the plaintiff on account of the moneys due to him of any money or securities in Court to the credit of this action or in the receiver's hands."

(s) In this case, Sadler v. Worley, [1894] 2 Ch. 170, KEKEWICH, J., said it was not necessary to expressly reserve liberty to apply for a sale before the time limited by the Master's certificate.

On a copy of the judgment or order being left a summons must be issued to proceed with the accounts or inquiries. The summons will be served on all parties, and filed in default against parties who have not entered an appearance. Upon the return of the summons the Master or Registrar, if satisfied by proper evidence that all necessary parties have been served with notice of the judgment or order, gives directions as to :—

(1) The manner in which each of the accounts and inquiries is to be prosecuted ;
(2) The evidence to be produced in support thereof, and by whom the inquiries are to be answered.
(3) The parties who are to attend on the several accounts and inquiries ; and
(4) The time within which each proceeding is to be taken.

The summons to proceed stands adjourned for these directions to be carried out, and the matter will be adjourned from time to time as may be necessary. All such directions may afterwards be varied by addition thereto or otherwise, as may be found necessary (u). Ultimately the Registrar or Master makes his certificate without any further summons (uu).

If upon the hearing of the summons to proceed it appears to the Master or Registrar by reason of absence or for any other sufficient cause the service of notice of the judgment or order upon any party cannot be made or ought to be dispensed with the Master or Registrar may, if he shall think fit wholly dispense with such service or may at his discretion order any substituted service or notice by advertisement or otherwise in lieu of such service (x), and the Judge in person may direct that any person on whom service has been dispensed with shall be bound as if served (y).

In May, 1896, the Judges of the Chancery Division gave the following direction : " In ordinary cases the judgment in a debenture-holder's action should not be served on the debenture-holders, but they should have notice given to them by circular or letter or advertisement if the case so requires full discretion being reserved to serve the notice formally if so required " (yy). The practice in ordinary actions is to send by post a copy of the circular. This, however, does not make the recipient a party (z), it is usual to allow debenture-holders who have received such a notice, and desire to do so, to enter an appearance, and in some chambers they are allowed to attend proceedings at their own risk as to costs, in others they are not allowed to do so (a).

This notice is not the notice of judgment referred to in O. 16, r. 40, R. S. C., and does not require personal service or endorsement under O. 16, r. 43, R. S. C. (b).

It is the usual practice to serve notice on debenture-holders, even where trustees for them are before the Court (c). The Judges of the Chancery Division have also directed that " all incumbrancers (other than debenture-holders) subsequent in order of priority to the plaintiffs' debentures should be made parties, and not served with notice of judgment under O. 16, r. 40 ; and where a sale is directed with the consent of prior incumbrancers (as in the case of a creditor's action for sales of real estate) informal notice with a view to obtaining such consent may be given (d). Proceedings may be stopped where the necessary parties have not been served with notice of the judgment or order (e). In the case of bearer debentures advertisements are invariably directed, and they are occasionally ordered in other cases (ee). O. 55, r. 44, R. S. C. provides, for excluding persons who have not come in in answer to advertisements, but the practice is not to exclude such persons—but to carry over the sums due to them (eee).

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,
Chancery Division.

19 A. No.

MR. JUSTICE

In the matter of the A. Company Limited.
Between C. D. on behalf of himself and all other holders of mortgage debentures of the defendant company Plaintiff and the A. Company Limited Defendant.

TAKE NOTICE that a judgment dated the day of 19 has been pronounced in this action (which has been instituted to ascertain who are the holders of the Company's debentures to realize the property charged thereby and to divide the proceeds amongst the parties entitled) and by such judgment the inquiries and accounts necessary for these purposes are directed.

THE material parts of the judgment are set forth in the schedule.

A list of the debenture-holders with the particulars of the debentures held or believed to be held by them respectively has been left in the Judge's Chambers [or in the chambers of the Registrar Companies (Winding-up)] and your name is included therein as the holder of debentures Numbered for £ each. From the said list it appears that £ interest is due in respect of your debentures.

If you are such holder it will be necessary in order that you may participate in the benefit of the judgment that your debentures should be produced before the Master (h) [or before the Registrar Companies (Winding-up)] in the Chambers of the Judge [or of the Registrar Companies (Winding-up)] day the day of 19 at o'clock in the noon is the day appointed for this purpose when you must attend either personally or by your solicitor or agent at the Chambers of the Honourable Mr. Justice Room No. in the Royal Courts of Justice Strand London [or at the Chambers of the Registrar Companies (Winding-up) Bankruptcy Buildings Carey Street London] and produce your debentures.

If you are no longer the holder of the debentures or any of them you are requested at once to let me know the names and addresses of the person or persons to whom you have transferred such as are no longer held by you.

(g) This is the ordinary form: see Annual Practice, 1912, vol. ii. p. 187, Appendix L, Form 9A. Yearly Practice 1912, p. 2105, Form 32.

(h) Occasionally debentures have been produced before the receiver, if there is one: Daniell's Chancery Forms, 5th Ed. 783, note (h): but the almost invariable practice is for them to be produced in chambers.

If you desire it you can forward the debentures by post or otherwise to me for production, I will return them by post in due course.

CERTIFICATE IN DEBENTURE-HOLDER'S ACTION.

(Title.)

I hereby certify that the result of the inquiries and accounts which have been made and taken in pursuance of the Order in this action dated the 12th January, 1903, is as follows :—

The plaintiff and the defendants have attended by their respective solicitors.

1 and 2. THE defendant The Cambrian Coke Company, Ltd., created and issued a First Debenture for £7000 dated the 1st of July 1897 to the defendant The L. and P. B., Ltd., or other the registered holder or holders for the time being of the said debenture and the same is still outstanding and there is now due in respect thereof to the said defendant the L. and P. B., Ltd., the sum of £4000 for principal together with interest thereon at the rate of £5 per cent. per annum from the 29th of September 1902.

THE said defendant The Cambrian Coke Company, Ltd., also created and issued a debenture charge dated the 11th of August 1902 whereby the said defendant The Cambrian Coke Company, Ltd., covenanted with the plaintiffs L.G.M. and G.H.J.D. and each of them in consideration of their joining as guarantors for the repayment of a loan of £2000 to the said defendant The L. and P.B., Ltd., that the said defendant The Cambrian Coke Company, Ltd., would on demand of the said plaintiffs L.G.M. and G.H.J.D. or either of them pay to them or him all moneys which they or he should pay to the said defendant The L. and P.B., Ltd., in pursuance of the said guarantee together with interest thereon at £5 per cent. per annum from the date of the respective payments. THE said First Debenture dated 1st of July 1897 has priority over the said debenture charge dated 11th of August 1902.

THE said defendant The Cambrian Coke Company, Ltd., also created and issued a First Mortgage Debenture for £6000 dated 12th July 1895 in favour of F.W.N. and F.J.H. both of   but such debenture was subsequent to its issue namely on the 16th of July 1897 paid off and discharged.

NO debentures or charges except as aforesaid have been issued by the defendant The Cambrian Coke Co., Ltd.

3. THE property and assets of the defendant The Cambrian Coke Company, Ltd., comprised in and charged by the said First Debenture of 1st July 1897 and the debenture charge of 11th August, 1902, now consists of the particulars set forth in the Schedule hereto except the debentures and shares particularized in item No. 5 of such schedule is not included in the charge created by the said First Debenture of the 1st July 1897.

THE evidence adduced consists of the 3 several affidavits of the plaintiff G.H.J.D. respectively filed 7th July and 19th November 1903, and 17th May 1904, the affidavit of A.W.G. filed 17th December 1903, the joint affidavit of G.H.J.D., F.W.N. and F.J.H. filed 13th June, 1904, and the exhibits in the said affidavits referred to the said First Debenture of the 1st July 1897 and the debenture charge of the 11th August 1902 the three Orders dated respectively 1st October 1902 and 12th January 1903 the two Certificates of Lodgment in Court dated respectively 6th March and 27th April 1903 and the Certificate of the Fund.

Dated 17th June 1904.

THE SCHEDULE.

2. THE leasehold interest in land and premises at   in the County of Glamorgan on part of which the business of the Company was carried on. The said land and premises are held under two Indentures of Lease as follows: One for a term of   years from the Part of the said leasehold land together with the Patent Fuel works erected thereon was by an Indenture dated the 11th July 1896 underleased to the Company, Ltd., for a term of years from the 20th day of December 1888 (less the last three days thereof) at the annual rent of £ . The said Company, Ltd., is now in Liquidation.

3. Machinery and plant used at the works of the defendant The Cambrian Coke Company, Ltd., and forming part of same, locomotive engine and travelling crane of the estimated value of £ .

5. 85 Debentures of £ each part of an issue of £ in the said of of the estimated value of £100 and 200 shares of £10 each in the last-named Company estimated to be of no value. (Note.—These debentures and shares are not included in the charge created by the said First Debenture dated 1st July 1897.)

6. in shares in the estimated to be of no value.

7. Balance from time to time to be certified to be due from the Receiver appointed in this action by the Order of 1st October, 1902. [Re The Cambrian Coke Co., Ltd., Mouchel and Another v. The Company and others, 1902 C, No. 2985, Mr. Registrar Hood, June 17, 1904.]

Where the action is proceeding before the Registrar Companies (Winding-up), the certificate with the accounts, if any, to be filed therewith must be filed in the chambers of the Registrar; and where the action is proceeding in the Chancery Division, the certificate and accounts, if any, must be transmitted to the central office to be filed. The certificate will from the time when it is filed be binding on all the parties to the proceedings, and on all other persons whose rights are ascertained by it, unless it is discharged or varied upon application by summons to be made before the expiration of eight clear days from the filing of the certificate (l). Any debenture-holder or other person whose rights are ascertained by the certificate may move to discharge or vary the certificate. The certificate may set out the amount of uncalled capital due from each member of the company, though no call can be made in the action, and though the fact of such statement being made may put a debenture-holder who is also a shareholder in a worse position than other shareholders (m). Any party may, before the proceedings before the master are concluded, take the opinion of the Judge upon any matter arising in the course of the proceedings without any fresh summons for the purpose (n); but some of the Judges will not allow this course to be taken (o).

Sometimes a separate certificate will be made by the master with a view to enabling an interim distribution to be made. In such cases an application is made by summons for the requisite order; a separate certificate will be in the same form as a general certificate (oo). The further consideration will come on in chambers (p), and summons for such further consideration must be taken out. Such summons where the action has been commenced by writ must be served two clear days before the return thereof, unless the Court otherwise orders (q). Where the action has been commenced by originating summons it may, after the expiration of eight days and within fourteen days from the filing of the Master's or Registrar's certificate, be brought on for further consideration by a summons to be taken out by the party having the conduct of the matter, and after the expiration of such fourteen days, by a summons to be taken out by any other party. Such summons will be in the following form: "That this matter the further consideration whereof was adjourned by the order of the day of 19 may be further considered," and must be served six clear days before the return. This rule does not apply to any matter the further consideration whereof has at the original or any subsequent hearing been adjourned into Court (r). The order in which costs are paid if the fund is deficient is as follows (s): (1) The plaintiff's costs of the realization of the property (t) including the costs of an abortive attempt to sell; (2) The balance due to a receiver and manager including his remuneration. In the (n) O. 55, r. 69, R. S. C. This rule would seem to be applicable where a simple question of principle arises, and it is desired to have the opinion of the Judge to guide the master. In other cases the question should be raised on a motion or summons to vary the Master's certificate.

(s) Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co. (1884), 28 C. D. 317.

(t) As to costs of realization where the liquidator has realized, see Ex parte Grissell (1875), 3 C. D. 411; Marine Mansions Co. (1867), 4 Eq. 601; Ormerod Grierson, [1890] W. N. 217. These cases show that such costs will rank in priority to the debenture-holders; and see also Staffordshire Gas and Coke Co., [1893] 3 Ch. 523; Professional Life Assurance Co. (1867), 3 Ch. 167, if contrary to this view would not be followed now—it was discussed in Perry v. Oriental Hotels (1871), 12 Eq. 126. With regard to the costs of preservation as opposed to case of a bankrupt receiver and manager, if there are any debts properly incurred by him in carrying on the business, the Court will see that such debts are paid directly to the creditors of the business, and such payments will have the same priority as if the receiver had not become bankrupt (u); (3) the costs, charges, and expenses of the trustees of any trust deed for securing the debentures, these costs should, it would seem, in all cases be taxed as between solicitor and client (x), and even where the trustees appear by the same solicitor as the company which is not entitled to any costs (owing to there being no surplus), they will get a full set of costs (y), though such costs will not include any separate costs of the company. The trustees' costs include all costs, charges and expenses properly incurred by the trustees; (4) the costs of the plaintiff to the action, or, if the original plaintiff for any reason cease to act and another be substituted for him, the costs of both plaintiffs pari passu. A second debenture-holder who brings an action to realize property (z) which is insufficient to pay the first debenture-holders, will be entitled to any costs incurred in proceedings for the benefit of the first debenture-holders, and not for the benefit of his own security only—such costs ranking, of course, in front of the first debentures (a), as against the mortgagor company or a subsequent incumbrancer the plaintiff is never entitled to more than party and party costs; but where the fund is not sufficient to pay the debentures of the class held by the plaintiff in full, then the plaintiff will be entitled to solicitor and client costs, as his class of debenture-holders are the only persons interested in the fund (b). Further, even where the realization by the liquidator, Perry v. Oriental Hotels Co. (1871), 12 Eq. 126 must now be taken to be overruled so far as it gives these priority over the debenture-holders: cp. Lathom v. Greenwich Ferry (1895), 72 L. T. 790. The case of a receiver borrowing for preservation purposes is different, for then the charge is the creature of the action: New Zealand Midland Railway, [1901] W. N. 105; cp. also Anglo-Austrian Printing Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 891. The summons and order in Re Callender's Paper Co., Lyon v. The Company, 1906 C. No. 1881 (set out below, pp. 634 et seq.), should also be consulted as to what are costs of realization.

class of debenture-holders to which the plaintiff belongs can be paid in full, the Court will make a charging order under the Solicitors Act, 1870, in favour of the solicitor of the plaintiff for the difference between party and party and solicitor and client costs, if it be shown that the plaintiff is not in a position to pay such difference, and that the case is otherwise a proper one for a charging order. Such charging order will not extend to any fund to which the debenture-holders of such class are not entitled nor to any surplus available for payment of subsequent incumbrancers or the company (c); the Court will not, however, make such an order where the plaintiff is in a position to pay the costs (d). The defendant company and all subsequent incumbrancers can only get their costs out of any surplus there may be after satisfying all claims of persons having priority (e). If the plaintiff has been ordered to pay the costs of any application such costs will be set off against the costs he is entitled to (f), but this would appear to be a matter for the Taxing-Master (g).

Where the security is believed to be insufficient to pay both principal and interest, it is not usual to proceed with the interest account, but payments will be made generally on account. It is probably better to insert words to this effect in the order, but the mere fact that payments have been made on account of principal, will not amount to a final appropriation of the moneys to principal, so as to preclude claims to interest on the amounts paid, if the security ultimately proves sufficient, in cases where, as is usual, the instrument creating the security directs that interest shall be paid in priority to principal out of the proceeds of realization (h). In the converse case where payments have been made on account of interest, but there has been no final appropriation, the Court will, if the security prove deficient, treat such payments as payments on account of principal, and disallow any claims of the Revenue authorities to income-tax thereon (i). Mortgagees are not entitled to the benefit of the doctrine of fraudulent preference (k). The position of debenture-holders against whom the company has cross demands, would appear to be as follows: the demand by and the demand against the company, putting aside the case where the company's claim is for calls (l), can usually be set off against one another (m), where both claims existed at the date of the winding-up (n), and since section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875 (now replaced by section 207 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908), came into force, the rule applies even where the cross claim is for unliquidated damages (o).

There are, however, exceptions to this rule, e.g. where the debt due from the debenture-holder arises from misfeasance proceedings (p), or cannot possibly result in a money demand (q).

If at the date of the winding-up there is no right of set-off or mutual credit, then the debenture-holder will not be entitled to receive anything from the fund, unless he has made good his debt to it (r). If such debt is presently payable at the date of the distribution of the fund (s) the mere fact that the amount of the debt has not then been ascertained will not entitle him to participate in the fund (t). The administration of the fund in such a case would appear to be worked out as follows: treat the debt due from the debenture-holder as having been paid so as to ascertain the total amount divisible among the debenture-holders, then ascertain what sum the debtor is entitled to as his dividend in respect of his debentures out of such total amount. If he is entitled to a larger amount than his debt he will get the difference, otherwise he will get nothing (u). The position of an assignee, if the debenture is not a negotiable instrument and does not contain any condition protecting him, is that he takes the debenture subject to any cross demand which arises out of and is inseparably connected with the issue of the debenture (x), and also subject to any debt whether presently payable (y) or not (z) which the company had against the holder of the debenture at the time of the winding-up (a), or at the time of the

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,

CHAPTER VIII.

PETITIONS.

REDUCTION OF CAPITAL.

SUBJECT to confirmation by the Court a company limited by shares, if so authorized by its articles (a), may by special resolution reduce its share capital (aa) in any way, and in particular and without prejudice to the foregoing power may—

(a) extinguish or reduce the liability on any of its shares in respect of share capital not paid up ; or

(b) either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, cancel any paid-up share capital which is lost or unrepresented by available assets ; or

(c) either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, pay off any paid-up share capital which is in excess of the wants of the company ; and may, if and so far as is necessary, alter its memorandum by reducing the amount of its share capital and of its shares accordingly (b).

In cases where the articles of association do not contain any power to reduce capital, three meetings will be necessary : there must first be a special resolution to alter the articles, and at the second meeting after such resolution has been passed and confirmed, the reduction must be passed as an extraordinary resolution, such extraordinary resolution being subsequently confirmed as a special resolution (c). An application is

(aa) Stock may be reduced under these powers : Household Property and Investment Co., [1912] W.N. 110.

(b) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 46. These provisions apply also to companies limited by guarantee and having a share capital, if registered on or after January 1, 1901 : ibid., s. 56.

(c) Cp. West India and Pacific Steamship Co. (1868), 9 Ch. 11 n. ; Patent Invert Sugar (1885), 31 C. D. 166 ; and Oregon Mortgage Co., [1910] S. C. 964, which establish that the special resolution for altering the articles and the special resolution for reduction cannot be passed concurrently ; and John Crossley and Sons (1892), W. N. 55, which shows that the first part of the resolution for reduction may be passed at the meeting for confirming then made by petition to the Court (d) for an order confirming the reduction (e).

From the confirmation by a company of a resolution for reducing share capital or, where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of any unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, from the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction the company must add to its name until such date as the Court may fix, the words "and reduced" as the last words of its name (f), and those words will, until the date so fixed, be deemed to be part of the name of the company (g). Apparently a company which abandons a scheme for reduction, which it has started, will have to get leave to discontinue the use of the words "and reduced" (h).

In cases where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital the Court may, if it thinks expedient, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced" (i).

Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case, if the Court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company would be admissible in proof against the company will be the alteration of the articles; see also Union Plate Glass Co. (1889), 42 C. D. 513, for a case where this course was adopted.

(d) The Court means the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company: Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 285. As a matter of fact, the petition may be presented either to any Judge of the Chancery Division (such Judge being ascertained by ballot in the ordinary way) or to the Judge having jurisdiction to wind up the company. This was the case before the Act came into force: Islington and General Electric Supply (1892), W. N. 81; and Ocean Queen Steamship, [1893] 2 Ch. 666, and is so still: see General Order as to Reduction of Capital of 1909: Essex and Suffolk Equitable Insurance, [1909] W. N. 102. For cases where there is a county court which has jurisdiction to wind up the company: Rugeley Gas Co. (1899) W. N. 127; Portsmouth and District Vacuum Cleaner Co., [1908] W. N. 203, and infra, p. 695, note (l). No rules have been made in either of the Palatine Courts under the Act, and the rules and practice of the High Court are consequently applicable. In the County Courts O. 41 A of the County Court Rules set out in the appendix to this book pp. 1507 and 1508 applies. In the High Court the affidavit in support is required when the petition is presented, but further affidavits may be made afterwards.

(e) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 47.

(f) In John T. Clark & Co., [1911] S. C. 243, the omission of these words without leave was held to deprive the Court of its jurisdiction to sanction a reduction.

(h) Mordey, Carney & Co. (1885), 53 L. T. 736; see also Kirkstall Brewery (1877), 5 C. D. 535.

(i) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 48. See post, pp. 669 and 670 and p. 674, as to the cases where the Court will allow the words "and reduced" to be dispensed with.

entitled to object to the reduction (k). The Court, if satisfied with respect to every creditor of the company who is entitled to object, under the last cited provision, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit (l).

A creditor whose existence is known of and who simply lies by and does nothing, will even when his identity is unknown not be considered to have consented to the reduction (m).

Once the Court is satisfied that this section has been complied with and that the resolutions have been duly passed, it would seem that the Court should sanction the reduction unless it considers that it ought to refuse its sanction out of regard to the interests of those members of the public who may be induced to take shares in the company, or because it does not consider that the reduction is fair and equitable as between the different classes of shareholders (n).

Generally speaking, in ascertaining how a loss should be borne between different classes of shareholders, the Court acts upon the principle that a reduction is a sort of anticipation to a limited extent of what would take place in a winding-up (o). Thus, primâ facie, if there are preference and ordinary shares, and the preference shares are entitled to priority as regards dividends but not as regards capital, the amount written off the shares of the company should be borne rateably by all the shares (p), even though the company had no power to reduce its capital when the preference shares were issued (q) ; but if the preference shares have priority as regards capital, the other shares must in the first instance bear any loss (r) ;

(k) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 49. As to settling the list of creditors and the other proceedings required by this section, see post, pp. 652, et seq. Under these provisions a lessor is entitled to have a sum appropriated to answer future rent : Telegraph Construction Co. (1870), 10 Eq. 384. In Palace Billiard Rooms, [1912] S.C. 5, a landlord was held entitled to have a sum equivalent to the full amount of his future rent set aside.

J. 434, in which Credit Foncier of England (1871), 11 Eq. 356 was not followed ; and see also Palmer, vol. i. 10th Ed. 1196. It may be noticed that under the general orders in force at the date of these decisions creditors were required to consent in writing ; this is no longer so : General Order as to Reduction of Capital, 1909, rr. 16 and 17, and it may be that in some cases it will be competent for a certificate to find that a creditor, whose identity is unknown, has consented to a scheme.

Again, in the case of deferred shares whose only right on a winding-up is to have a certain proportion of the assets after the other shares have had their capital returned, the deferred shares must primarily bear the loss (s). If the losses on a winding-up are to be borne by shareholders in proportion to the amounts paid up at the commencement of the winding-up on their shares, the loss should primâ facie not be borne by fully and partly paid-up shares equally (t).

At one time there was a doubt as to whether the Court could reduce some of the shares of a company without reducing others (u). This doubt has now been completely dissipated (x), and the Court can even reduce some of a particular class of shares without reducing other shares of the same class (y).

Another doubt, which has likewise been dissipated (z), was as to whether the Court could sanction an alteration which altered the voting rights of the different shareholders (a).

The Court will in a proper case, and where it is not inequitable, sanction a reduction of capital which involves an alteration of the rights of the shareholders inter se, and the fact that the company's articles contain a power for the different classes of shareholders to sanction alterations in the rights of such classes (b) will, where the power has been exercised, have considerable weight with the Court (c). The Court can allow a company to purchase some of its shares, even when the shares are all of the same class (d).

(s) London and New York Investment Corporation, [1895] 2 Ch. 860.

(t) Credit Assurance and Guarantee Corporation, [1902] 2 Ch. 178. This case was reversed on appeal, [1902] 2 Ch. 601, but without affecting, it is thought, the general principle that this is the prima facie rule.

D. 363, NORTH, J., required a circular calling the attention of the shareholders to the fact that rights were being altered.

(d) British and American Trustee and Finance Corporation v. Couper, [1894] A. C. 399.

With regard to other schemes which the Court has sanctioned or can sanction, it has sanctioned a scheme by which moneys not immediately required were returned to the shareholders on the footing that they could be called up again (e), it has sanctioned a scheme by which shares which had been illegally purchased have been cancelled (f) and a scheme by which vendors' shares were, with the consent of the vendors, cancelled (g); and also one by which preference shares which had been issued on the footing that they were to be paid off out of accumulated profits were so paid off (h). In a case where there were both deferred and ordinary shares, the deferred shares ranking pari passu with the ordinary shares as regards dividend, it sanctioned a complicated scheme by which in consideration of certain deferred shares being surrendered, the rest were subdivided and raised to the rank of ordinary shares (i), and it has also sanctioned a scheme by which arrears of preferential dividend were cancelled, and the right to future dividend altered (k), in both these last two cases the company had powers of modifying the rights of different classes of shares. In another case a company which had originally power neither to modify rights nor to subdivide its shares or reduce its capital, took powers to do all these things, and the Court sanctioned a scheme, which had been approved by all classes of shareholders, by which some ordinary shares which had been surrendered to the society were cancelled, and the preference shares were reduced and subdivided, and the other ordinary shares were reduced and consolidated, and the arrears of preference dividend were cancelled, and the whole of the preference and ordinary shares were consolidated into one class (l). In another case the Court has sanctioned a scheme by which a company formed under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 110, but subsequently registered under the Companies Acts as a limited company, cancelled certain shares which the company had purchased before such registration, and also extinguished the liability in respect of uncalled capital which could only be called up for the purposes of a winding-up (m). In another case a company had a capital of £100,000 shares divided into 100,000 shares of £1 each, and such capital was reduced to £70,000, consisting of 40,000 fully paid shares of £1 each, and 60,000 shares of 10*s.* each on which varying amounts had been paid (n). Where a vendor has sold certain property to the company, the Court can sanction a scheme by which the company returns the property, and the vendor returns shares issued to him (o) and also where the property a person has sold proves less valuable than was anticipated, a scheme by which he surrenders shares without receiving any consideration for them (p). In one case (q) Buckley, J., held that the Court could not sanction a scheme by which shares were to be surrendered, if capital had not been lost and was represented by available assets, unless the company had capital in excess of its wants, and was returning such capital to its shareholders; but this case has, it is conceived, been overruled by Poole v. National Bank of China (r). Since this case it is conceived that there is no reason why a company which has issued shares at a discount should not cancel capital to the amount of such discount, and write down such shares so as to make the holders only liable to the extent that they would have been if the company could have validly issued shares at a discount (s). The Court can sanction a scheme by which capital is returned as being in excess of the wants of the company, even though the company proposes immediately afterwards to borrow such moneys from the shareholders (t), and a scheme under which preference shareholders (u) are to receive debentures in lieu of their shares; but the Court declined to sanction a scheme by which certain fully paid shares with valuable rights were given up on the terms of an arrangement by which the holders were to receive ordinary shares of far greater nominal value (x). Swinfen Eady, J., there, after pointing out that the case did not come within either of the three cases expressly mentioned in the Act of 1877, pointed out that the scheme involved a large number of shares being issued, without the company in its corporate capacity receiving any consideration ; but the company could clearly have paid for these shares at par, as was done in British and American Trustee and Finance Corporation v. Couper (y), although in that case, as in every case of a purchase by the company of its own shares, there was no consideration moving to the company in its corporate capacity, and it was not suggested in Couper's Case (z), and seems contrary to the reasoning alike in that case and in Poole v. National Bank of China (a) to say that a company could not pay for shares on a scheme for reduction, whatever sum is their full value ; it is submitted that the scheme now under consideration, or something very like it, could be carried into effect. Where the certificate for the shares is under seal and refers to the memorandum and articles, money repayable on a reduction constitutes a specialty debt, and the Statute of Limitations will not bar the right to them until the expiration of twenty years (b).

(q) Anglo-French Exploration, [1902] 2 Ch. 845. This case seemed to proceed on the footing that the three cases for reduction of capital expressly mentioned in the Act of 1877 (and now in s. 46 (1) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908), were the only cases in which a company could reduce its capital. This view was disapproved in Poole v. National Bank of China, [1907] A. C. 229, and also, it is thought, in British and American Trustee and Finance Corporation, [1894] A. C. 399, and is now, apart from these decisions, quite untenable in view of the very clear words of s. 46 (1). (s) See Eastern and Australian Steamship (1893), 68 L. T. 321. CHITTY, J., made such an order in Plaskynaston Tube Co. (1883), 23 C. D. 542, which case, however, seems to proceed on the erroneous reasoning that a company could issue shares at a discount. In New Chile Gold Mining Co. (1888), 38 C. D. 475, NORTH, J., declined to make such an order where there was no evidence of loss. This case, it is thought, is now overruled.

In one case (c) the Scotch Court declined to alter the capital of a company from £50,000 divided into 50,000 £1 shares with 12*s.* 6*d.* paid up to £50,000 divided into 31,250 fully paid £1 shares and 18,750 £1 unpaid shares, which were to be surrendered to the company on the ground that there was no reduction. There was, it is true, no reduction in the nominal capital of the company ; but is that always necessary (d) ? And there certainly was a reduction of liability on some of the shares in respect of uncalled capital. In the case now under consideration the scheme apparently would not, as such scheme often would, work unfairly. Another case where the Scotch Court doubted if it would have had jurisdiction, though it did not decide the point, was a scheme by which the company proposed to cancel all its preference and ordinary stock, the preference having priority both as to dividend and capital secured by the memorandum, and to issue instead ordinary stock to the extent of 95 and 90 per cent. of the previous holdings of the preference and ordinary stockholders respectively (e). Here again, the difficulty seems more apparent than real, but such schemes and a good many others can now, it is thought, be carried out in substance by complying with the provisions not only of the reduction sections, but also of section 45 (reorganization of capital), or section 120 (compromise with creditors and members) or both (f). An arrangement by which a company surrenders part of its assets, with the object of improving the rest, does not amount to a reduction of capital (g).

The Court has sanctioned a scheme by which the issued, but not the unissued shares were reduced (h), and one by which every holder of five £1 shares got two £1 shares, and every holder of less than five shares and of shares beyond a multiple of 5, got an 8*s*. share for each such share (i).

The question of how far, if at all, it is necessary to prove a loss on reduction of capital, is one that has considerably exercised the Courts. The practice until recently was to require evidence of this in all cases except, of course, cases where capital was being returned, as being in excess of the wants of a company, such evidence being required to protect creditors, and not to enable a majority of the shareholders to bind a minority (k). This practice has now been held by the House of Lords to be entirely erroneous, the position apparently being that either creditors are concerned or they are not; if they are, then the proceedings directed by section 49 of the Act must be taken, and section 50 prevents the Court making any order unless satisfied of their consent or that their debts and claims have been discharged or have determined or have been secured; if on the other hand they are not entitled to object it is not the business of the Court to protect them (l). At the same time it is usual on a summons for directions in cases not under section 49 (1) to make an order allowing creditors who desire to object to attend the hearing (m); in such a case it is thought that it would be open to a creditor to say that by reason of the absence of any loss of capital or otherwise, the case is one in which the proceedings mentioned in section 49 ought to have been directed (n), and if he is successful it would seem that the petition should be ordered to stand over till the creditors are ascertained (o).

(o) Such orders were made in Union Finance Co. (1887), W. N. 253; Eastern and Australian Steamship (1893), 68 L. T. 321.

Where the reason for reduction is that capital is lost or unrepresented by available assets, it may be desirable to have evidence of such loss, or of the fact that the capital is not represented by available assets, so as to show that the scheme will work fairly as between the shareholders; but, apart from this, it will not be necessary to prove loss of capital (p), though it is desirable to do so as difficulties are sometimes raised if it is not done.

Where evidence of loss is necessary such evidence should be clear and not based on purely speculative evidence (q), and though no doubt money spent on goodwill or on preliminary expenses can usually not be said to be lost, at the same time it is thought that such moneys can usually be written off (r).

In ascertaining whether capital has or has not been lost a company need certainly not throw on to reserve funds more than their due proportion of any loss there may have been (s), and probably sums standing to the credit of reserve funds (t) or profit and loss (u) need not be taken into account at all. The Court will usually not sanction a reduction in the case of a company which is on the eve of winding-up (x), though it will with a view to a scheme of arrangement, do so even in a winding-up (y).

Where shares are subdivided, or preferential, or other rights altered by a resolution, which is contingent on the sanction of the Court being obtained to a reduction of capital, the subdivision or alteration of rights will fall to the ground, if such sanction is withheld (z).

TO HIS MAJESTY'S HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

The humble petition of the above-named Company (hereinafter called the Company) showeth as follows :—

1. The Company was registered on the day of 1895 under the Companies Acts 1862 to 1893 as a Company Limited by shares.

2. The registered office of the Company is situated at in the County of London.

3. The objects for which the Company was formed are as follows [Here set out the main objects for which the Company was formed] and other objects set forth in the memorandum of association thereof.

4. The nominal capital of the Company is £100,000 divided into 50,000 preference shares of £1 each numbered 1 to 50,000 both inclusive in the capital of the Company and 50,000 ordinary shares of £1 each numbered 50,001 to 100,000 in the capital of the Company. All the said preference shares and all the said ordinary shares have been issued and all such shares are fully paid up except the ordinary shares numbered 90,001 to 100,000 in the capital of the Company, upon which the sum of 10 shillings per share has been paid. All the said shares have to the extent that they are paid up been paid for in cash except the shares numbered to both inclusive such last-mentioned shares were issued pursuant to a contract in writing dated the day of 18 and duly filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies (a).

5. It is provided by the Articles of Association of the said Company that the holders of the said preference shares shall be entitled after setting aside such moneys as may be thought fit to a reserve fund to a cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the amounts paid up on their shares and on a winding-up to have the amounts paid up on their shares returned to them before any return is made in respect of any other share of the Company but such shares do not confer any vote at any general meeting of the Company or any further other right to participate in the dividends or assets of the Company.

6. It is further provided by the said articles that subject to the said rights of the preference shareholders all dividends shall be divided among the holders of ordinary shares in proportion to the amount paid up on their shares and that on a winding-up any surplus assets remaining after paying the debts and liabilities of the Company and the costs of liquidation and repaying to the shareholders of the Company the amounts paid on their shares shall be divided among the ordinary shareholders and that any such surplus assets or any losses to be borne by the ordinary shareholders shall be divided among or borne by such ordinary shareholders in proportion to the amounts paid by them or which ought to have been paid by them at the commencement of the winding-up in respect of the ordinary shares held by them and that each ordinary shareholder shall have one vote for every share held by him.

7. The said articles also contain the following clauses [set out in full (1) the article giving power to reduce capital and (2) the article relating to class resolutions].

8. The Company have suffered losses by reason of [or state any other reason for reduction.]

9. The financial position of the Company on the day of 19 was as follows :—

The capital paid up was . .	£
The reserve fund was . . .	£
The undivided profits were . .	£
The assets of the Company amounted to	£
Less liabilities	£
Showing a loss of capital of . .	£

10. It is proposed to write off such loss as follows :—

By appropriating

Part of the undivided profits . .	£
Part of the reserve fund . .	£
By writing off from each preference share 5*s*.	£
By writing off from each ordinary share 10*s*.	£

11. By special resolutions of the Company duly passed and confirmed at extraordinary general meetings held on the day of 19 and on the day of 19 it was resolved as follows :—

1. "That the capital of the Company be reduced from £100,000 divided into 50,000 preference shares of £1 each and 50,000 ordinary shares of £1 each to £62,500 divided into 50,000 preference shares of 15*s*. each and 50,000 ordinary shares of 10*s*. each and that such reduction be effected by writing off 5*s*. per share part of the sum of £1 per share which has been paid on each of the preference shares of £1 each and the sum of 10*s*. per share part of the sum of £1 per share which has been paid on each of the ordinary shares of £1 each numbered 50,001 to 90,000 in the capital of the Company and the whole of the sum of 10*s*. per shares which has been paid on each of the ordinary shares of £1 each numbered 90,001 to 100,000 in the capital of the Company—and by reducing each of the said 50,000 preference shares of £1 each to a share of 15*s*. and each of the said ordinary shares of £1 each to a share of 10*s*.
2. "That in the event of the said reduction being confirmed by the Court whether with or without modification Article 60 of the Company's Articles of Association whereby it is provided that each shareholder shall have one vote for every ordinary share held by him be altered by the omission of the word 'ordinary' therefrom."

12. By a resolution of the holders of preference shares duly passed and confirmed at separate meetings of the holders of such shares held pursuant to Article of the Company's Articles of Association on the day of 19 and the day of 19 it was resolved as follows:—

1. "That this separate meeting of the holders of preference shares of the Company hereby consents on behalf of all the holders of shares of such class to the scheme for the reduction of capital (and to the alteration of the Company's Articles of Association) resolutions for which have this day been passed at an extraordinary general meeting of the Company.

2. "That upon the said reduction of capital being confirmed by the Court and upon the Articles of Association of the Company being altered in manner aforesaid the rights of the holders of preference shares of the Company be modified accordingly."

13. On the same days a resolution in the same terms substituting the word "ordinary" for the word "preference" was duly passed and confirmed at separate meetings of the holders of ordinary shares held pursuant to the said article.

14. The reduction proposed to be effected by the said special resolution does not involve either the diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid up share capital.

15. The form of minute proposed to be registered is as follows:—

"The capital of the Company Limited and Reduced is henceforth £62,500 divided into 50,000 preference shares of 15*s.* each and 50,000 ordinary shares of 10*s.* each instead of £100,000 divided into 50,000 preference shares and 50,000 ordinary shares of £1 each. At the time of the registration of this minute all the said 50,000 preference shares have been issued such shares are numbered 1 to 50,000 both inclusive and are and are to be deemed to be fully paid and 40,000 ordinary shares numbered 50,001 to 90,000 both inclusive have been issued and are and are to be deemed to be fully paid and the remaining 10,000 ordinary shares numbered 90,001 to 100,000 both inclusive have been issued but nothing has been or is to be deemed to be paid up thereon."

YOUR PETITIONER THEREFORE HUMBLY PRAYS AS FOLLOWS:—

1. That the reduction of capital sought to be effected by the special resolution above set out may be confirmed and that the minute above set out may be approved by this Court.

2. That this Court may dispense altogether with the addition to the name of the Company of the words "and reduced" or may fix a date at which the addition of the words "and reduced" to the name of the Company may be discontinued.

3. That all proper directions may be given for the purposes aforesaid.

NOTE.—It is not proposed to serve this petition on any one.

In cases where the reduction involves either a diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment of any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, the title will be in the same form as in the above petition and with the necessary modifications to meet the particular case so will clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 11, and 15, and, where appropriate, clauses 5, 6, 12, and 13, and in cases where suitable, a clause similar to clause 9. For clause 8 will be substituted a clause in the form given below in the skeleton form of petition, and in proper cases clause 10 will be replaced by a clause like the one given below.

SKELETON FORM OF PETITION

In cases where reduction involves either a diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment of any shareholder of paid-up share capital.

1. Date of incorporation.
2. Place of registered office.
3. Objects of Company.
4. Capital and shares into which it is divided.

[5 and 6. Where necessary rights of different classes of shares.]

7. Article authorizing reduction [and where necessary article as to class resolutions].

8. Resolutions for reduction [and where necessary class resolutions approving same].

9. The capital of the Company is in excess of its wants (in proper cases state any facts that lead to this conclusion) or the rights conferred by the said preference shares are very inconvenient as is shown by the following facts [set out facts].

or

it will be for the benefit of the Company to return to each shareholder the sum of £ paid up on each share held by him and to borrow a sum of £

or

[10. In a proper case state the financial position of the Company.]

[11. In a proper case show how the reduction is to be effected as e.g. it is proposed to find the sum of £ for making the payments aforesaid out of the moneys now standing to the credit of the Company at its bank—such sum of £ will be charged to the companys reserve fund which consists entirely of accumulated profits (b).]

Prayer of Petition the same as in the petition before set out except that paragraph 2 of the prayer will except in very exceptional cases be :—

"That this Court will fix a date at which the addition to the name of the Company of the words 'and reduced' may be discontinued."

(b) There would appear to be no objection to paying more than the par value of any capital to be written off, at all events where the excess is paid out of profits. To such a case The Development Co. of Central and West Africa, [1902] 1 Ch. 547, would not apply, even if it is good law, as to which see supra, pp. 642 and 643.

The Rules of the Supreme Court for the time being in force and the general practice of that Court, including the course of procedure and practice in chambers, apply as regards all proceedings in relation to the confirmation of any reduction of capital by the Court so far as is practicable except if and so far as the Act or the General Order as to reduction of capital of 1909 otherwise provide. In particular, if and when the Court is for the time being a Judge of the Chancery Division, the provisions of O. 5, r. 9 (A), R. S. C. (providing that where chambers are attached to two Judges each shall have full jurisdiction over every cause or matter assigned to either of them according to arrangements made between themselves) applies to such proceedings as being business assigned within the meaning of the rule (ff).

(ff) Order as to Reduction of Capital, 1909, r. 4

The petition and all notices, affidavits, and other proceedings under the petition must be intituled in the matter of the company and in the matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (g).

When the petition has been presented, an application must in every case be made ex parte by summons in chambers to the judge (which means any Judge of the High Court having for the time being jurisdiction to confirm the reduction of capital of companies and includes any Registrar Master, or other officer exercising the powers of any such Judge (h) for directions as to the proceedings to be taken preliminary to the hearing of such petition or otherwise with reference thereto (i).

Upon the hearing of the summons, or upon any adjourned hearing or hearings thereof, or any subsequent application, the Judge may make such order or orders and give such directions as he may think fit as to all proceedings to be taken on and with reference to the petition, and more particularly with respect to the following matters.

(a) The publication of notice of the presentation of the petition.

(b) In cases within section 49 (1) of the Act (i.e. where the proposed reduction involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in other cases if the Court so directs) the proceedings to be taken for settling the list of creditors entitled to object to the proposed reduction: fixing the date with reference to which the list of such creditors is to be made out, pursuant to that section; and generally fixing a time for and giving directions as to all other necessary or proper steps in the matter of the petition whether expressly mentioned in any of the Rules of the Order or not.

In cases within section 49 (1) of the Act, the first insertion in a newspaper of the notice of presentation of the petition and fixing the date with reference to which the list of creditors is to be made out, will be directed to be made at such time before the date so fixed as the Judge shall think fit, not being, unless for special reasons shown to the satisfaction of the Judge, less than one calendar month before the date so fixed, and in such cases the first order upon the summons for directions may be in the Form No. 1 (ii) in the schedule to the rules, with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require (k).

(k) General Order as to Reduction of Capital, 1909, r. 6. The Court occasionally requires the list of creditors to be brought up to the date of the hearing by an affidavit showing that all creditors since the date to which the list was brought have been paid or have consented: Safety Oil Co. (1892), W. N. 133;

After the issue of the summons for directions the practice varies according to whether the case is or is not one within section 49 (1) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. To consider first cases within the section. The section provides that where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either (a) diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital, or (b) the payment to any shareholder of any paid up share capital, and in any other case, if the Court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction.

The Court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction.

Where a creditor entered on the list whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the Court may direct, the following amount; (that is to say)—

(i) If the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or though not admitting it is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim;

(ii) If the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent (kk) or not ascertained, then an amount fixed by Court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the Court (l).

In cases where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, the Court cannot dispense with a list of creditors being settled (m).

In such cases the procedure is as indicated by the following notes and forms, and the form of order will according to circumstances be either in the following form which is Form 1 in the schedule to the order as to reduction of capital 1909, or in some similar form.

Solicitor for the said Company.

The result of the settlement of the list of creditors must be stated in a certificate by the master in the case of an application to the Chancery Division or by the Registrar in the case of an application to the Judge in Companies Winding-up, and such certificate must state what debts or claims (if any) have been disallowed, and must distinguish the debts or claims the full amount of which the company are willing to appropriate, and the debts or claims (if any) the amount of which has been fixed by inquiry and adjudication in manner provided by section 49 (3) of the Act, and the Order as to Reduction of Capital, and the debts or claims (if any) the full amount of which is not admitted by the company, nor such as the company are willing to appropriate and the amount of which has not been fixed by inquiry and adjudication as aforesaid; and must show which of the creditors have consented to the proposed reduction, and the total amount of the debts due to them, and the total amount of the debts or claims the payment of which has been secured in manner provided by section 49 (3) of the Act, and the persons to or by whom the same are due or claimed; but it is not necessary to show in such certificate the several amounts of the debts or claims of any persons who have consented to the proposed reduction or the payment of whose debts or claims has been secured as aforesaid (d).

(d) Order as to Reduction of Capital, 1909, r. 16.

(e) Ibid., r. 17. It will be noticed that it is no longer requisite that the consent shall be in writing. In any case within section 49 (1) of the Act, the petition must not be heard until the expiration of at least eight clear days from the filing of such certificate as is mentioned in Rule 16 of the Order (g).

Before the hearing of the petition notices stating the day on which the same is appointed to be heard must be published at such times and in such newspapers as the Judge directs. Such notices may be in Form No. 8 in the schedule to the order, with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require (h).

FORM OF ADVERTISEMENT OF PETITION WHERE THERE HAS BEEN AN INQUIRY AS TO DEBTS.

In the Matter of the Company, Limited, and reduced, and in the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Notice is hereby given that a petition presented to the High Court of Justice on the day of for confirming a resolution reducing the Capital of the above-named Company from £ to £ is directed to be heard before Mr. Justice on the day of , 19 .

C.D. of Solicitors for the Company.

NOTICE BY CREDITOR OF THE COMPANY OF INTENTION TO APPEAR AND OPPOSE PETITION.

(Title same as Petition.)

Take notice that a creditor of the above-named Company settled on the list of creditors made and settled in the above matter (i) and whose debt or claim has not been discharged or determined, or secured

(g) Order as to Reduction of Capital, 1909, r. 18.

(h) Ibid., r. 19.

(i) The proper course for a person whose debt or claim has been wholly disallowed would seem to in manner provided by section 49 (3) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 and who has not consented to the proposed reduction of capital intends to appear on the hearing of the petition for the reduction of the capital of the above-named Company advertised to be heard on the day of 19 and to oppose such petition (l).

When a member wishes to oppose a scheme for reduction on the ground that it will operate unfairly, he should attend at the hearing of and oppose the petition, and not take steps to restrain the company from proceeding with the resolutions (m).

Even in cases which do not involve either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, it is necessary to take out a summons for directions. The order on such summons is usually in the form on page 671, except that the last paragraph of such order is not usually inserted; the Court may, however, in a proper case dispense with advertisements. Thus it has done so on evidence that the company had never carried on business and had never issued a prospectus (n), or that it has only a few small creditors (o). Applications to the Court to dispense with the words "and reduced" between the presentation and hearing of the petition in cases where there is no return of capital and no reduction of liability in respect of unpaid capital should be made on application in chambers (p) on affidavit be to take out a summons to vary the certificate of the Registrar or Master. Such summons would in some cases be adjourned to come on with the petition, as was done in Re Credit Foncier, etc., of England (1871), 11 Eq. 356; see also Telegraph Construction Co. (1870), 10 Eq. 384.

(l) Any creditor settled on the list of creditors whose debt or claim has not before the hearing of the petition been discharged or determined or been secured in manner provided by s. 49 (3) of the Act, and who has not before the hearing consented to the proposed reduction may, after giving two clear days' notice to the solicitor of the company of his intention so to do, appear at the hearing of the petition and oppose the application: General Order as to Reduction of Capital, 1909, r. 20; as to costs, ibid., r. 21, and see also post, p. 676. It would seem members are entitled to appear in all cases: cp. Barrow Hæmatite Co. (1888), 39 C. D. 582, at p. 589. It is usual in cases where no list of creditors is settled for the order on the summons to authorise creditors, who would not seem to be in the same position as members as regards opposing, and members to attend: see also Securities Insurance Co., [1894] 2 Ch. 410, and Tambracherry Estates Co. (1885), 29 C. D. 683.

evidence (q). Nowadays it would seem that they are but rarely acceded to, but the fact that the company carries on business to a large extent abroad was at one time considered to be a reason for dispensing with such words (r); but it would appear that this can no longer be considered to be the case (s). Sometimes the Registrar requires only a limited use of the words "and reduced" (t).

ORDER ON SUMMONS DISPENSING WITH A LIST OF CREDITORS, ETC., AND REQUIRING A LIMITED USE OF THE WORDS "AND REDUCED" UNTIL THE HEARING.

(Title.)

UPON the application by Summons dated the 17th day of May 1911 of the above-named J.C. & J. Field Limited and Reduced the Petitioner named in the Petition presented unto this Court in the above matters on the 17th day of May 1911 and upon hearing Counsel for the Applicant and upon reading the said Petition and the joint and several Affidavits of H.S.S., G.M.B. & C.E. filed the 18th day of May 1911 and the several Exhibits therein referred to and the Court being of opinion that the proposed reduction of the Capital of the said Company does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid up Capital or the payment to any Shareholder of any paid up Capital.

IT IS ORDERED that the List of Creditors of the said Company and the Office Copy Affidavit verifying such list mentioned or referred to in the Rules of Procedure of this Court of the 3rd May 1909 under the above-mentioned Act and thereby directed to be left in the Chambers of the Judge be dispensed with (u).

AND IT IS ORDERED that the said Petition be placed in the paper for hearing before his Lordship Mr. Justice Neville on Tuesday the 30th day of May 1911 when any creditor or shareholder who desires to object may attend and be heard.

AND IT IS ORDERED that notice of the presentation of the said Petition and of the said day fixed for the hearing thereof be inserted in the London Gazette of the 23rd day of May 1911 and in The Times Newspaper of the 24th day of May 1911.

AND IT IS ORDERED that the addition of the words "and Reduced" to the title of the said Company be dispensed with except on bill heads, invoices, correspondence and other documents and articles of office stationery generally used or executed by the said Company until the hearing of the said Petition. [J. C. and J. Field, Ltd. and Reduced, 00141 of 1911. Mr. Registrar HOOD, May 23rd, 1911.]

(u) The general order applies to this class of reduction except in so far as it is dispensed with.

FORM OF ADVERTISEMENT WHERE ENQUIRY AS TO DEBTS DISPENSED WITH.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,

Chancery Division.

MR. JUSTICE

In the Matter of the Company Limited [and Reduced (x)]

In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Notice is hereby given that a petition was on the day of 19 presented to His Majesty's High Court of Justice for the confirmation of the reduction of the capital of the above-named Company from £ to £ and Notice is hereby further given that the said petition is directed to be heard before the Honourable Mr. Justice on the day of 19 and any person interested in the said Company whether as a creditor or otherwise desirous of opposing the making of an order for a confirmation of the said reduction of capital should appear at the time of hearing by himself or his counsel for the purpose and a copy of the said petition will be furnished to any such person requiring the same by the undersigned on payment of the regulated charge for the same.

Solicitors for the said Company.

If the Court is satisfied that the necessary preliminaries have been gone through and complied with, it may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit (y). It may no doubt slightly modify the resolution in so doing, but it cannot substantially alter them (z). In one case it directed that the order should be without prejudice to the rights of shareholders whose shares had been forfeited, and who were alleged to be insolvent (a), and, in another case (b), where certain shareholders were to receive perpetual debenture stock in place of their shares, it directed that such debenture stock should not be irredeemable but redeemable at the end of forty years.

The Registrar of Joint Stock Companies on production to him of an order of Court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company and delivery to him of a copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court) showing with respect to the share capital of the company as altered by the order the amount of the share capital the number of shares into which it is to be divided and the amount of each share and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share must register the order and minute (c). The minute must state the amount paid up on "each" share, and where different amounts are paid up on different shares, it will be necessary to show by referring to the numbers of the shares, what is paid up on each (d). This latter provision is obviously not applicable to stock which must be fully paid and has no numbers.

It is usual, though probably not absolutely necessary (e) for the Court to require the minute to state not only what the capital is after reduction, but what it was before reduction (f).

On the registration and not before the resolution reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered will take effect (g).

Notice of the registration must be published in such manner as the Court directs (h). The Court cannot dispense with this notice (i), but it is only necessary to advertise the fact of registration and the minute need not be set out (k). The order generally is for such advertisements to be inserted in the same newspapers as those in which the hearing of the petition was advertised.

The Registrar of Joint Stock Companies must certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute and his certificate will be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of the Act with respect to reduction of capital have been complied with and that the share capital is such as is stated in the minute (l). So the reduction will be valid once the order and the certificate of the Registrar has been obtained, even in cases where the Articles of Association contain no power to reduce (m), or where the special resolution has not been properly passed (n).

The minute when registered will be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum, and will be as valid and alterable as if it had originally been contained therein ; and must be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration.

If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it will be liable to a fine not exceeding £1 for every copy in respect of which default is made, and every director or manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the default will be liable to a like penalty (o).

In any case of reduction of share capital, the Court may require the company to publish as the Court directs the reasons for reduction, or such other information in regard thereto as the Court may think expedient with a view to give proper information to the public, and, if the Court thinks fit, the causes which led to the reduction (p).

Another point the Court deals with on the order is the question of how long the company is to retain the words "and reduced" as part of its name (q), the usual order in such cases is to require them to be retained for a period of one month. In one case Wright, J., stated it was his practice to dispense with them altogether in the case of companies whose business was abroad (r), as they were liable to lead to mistakes, and Neville, J., in the case of a company carrying on business in Australia dispensed with them, on the ground that they were likely to be misunderstood in Australia (s). In one case (t), where there had been a slip in convening the meetings, Parker, J., ordered the petition to stand over for fresh meetings to be held, and dispensed with the words "and reduced" in the meantime.

In Lawrence and Bullen (u) the Court to avoid copyright difficulties dispensed with the use of the words "and reduced" on the company entering into certain undertakings. The Court will sometimes sanction a limited use of the words "and reduced" (x), but some of the Judges take the view they have no power to do this.

The Court will also in such cases, if the case be within section 49 (1), give directions for the purpose of securing creditors who are entitled to object and have not been paid off or consented, and whose debts have not determined or been discharged. In such cases it is not

(o) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 52.

(p) Ibid., s. 55. The Court occasionally avails itself of this power. EADY, J., required it in Truman, Hanbury, Buxton & Co., [1910] 2 Ch. 498, where dividends had very recently been paid, and there was a very large reduction which was thrown entirely on one class of the shares, such class of shares being all in a few hands, and it was also required in Barclay, Perkins & Co., Times Newspaper, May 24, 1911. unusual for payment into Court to be directed with liberty to the company or any such creditor to apply for payment out (y); but sometimes the Court is satisfied by a sum being paid to a separate account at a bank, or even by a sum being appropriated in the books of the company (z).

Members of the company past or present will not be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount paid or (as the case may be) the reduced amount if any which is to be deemed to have been paid on the share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute; but if any creditor entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of share capital, is by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim not entered on the list of creditors and after the reduction the company is unable within the meaning of the provisions of the Act with respect to winding-up by the Court, to pay the amount of his debt or claim, then

(1) Every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, will be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration; and

(2) If the company is wound up, the Court, on the application of any such creditor, and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid may, if it thinks fit, settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding-up.

Nothing in this section affects the rights of the contributories among themselves (a).

If any director, manager, or officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor entitled to object to the reduction, or wilfully misrepresnts the nature or the amount of the debt or claim of any creditor, or if any director or manager of the company aids or abets in or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as is above mentioned, every such director, manager or officer will be guilty of a misdemeanour.

(y) For form of Order see Sharp Stewart & Co. (1867), 5 Eq. 155; and the Order in Colorado Mortgage and Investment Co., 00146 of 1910, post, pp. 682 et seq.; and see General Order as to Reduction of Capital, 1909, r. 22. The application for payment out will be by summons.

(z) In some cases the Court only requires an undertaking. Where this is not so the Order will not go till the Registrar is satisfied by proper evidence that the Judge's requirements have been complied with.

(a) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 53.

With regard to costs in cases under section 49 of the Act where a creditor who appears at the hearing under Rule 20 of the General Order as to Reduction of Capital of 1909, is a creditor the full amount of whose debt or claim is not admitted by the company, and the validity of such debt or claim has not been inquired into and adjudicated upon under section 49 (3) of the Act, the costs of and occasioned by his appearance will be dealt with as to the Court may seem just, but in all other cases a creditor appearing under Rule 20 will be entitled to the costs of such appearance, unless the Court is of opinion that in the circumstances of the particular case his costs ought not to be allowed (b).

The general practice in cases not coming under rules 20 and 21, is to give creditors and members their costs where their appearance at the hearing has assisted the Court, or where there is a question of doubt or difficulty (c). It would seem proper for appeals in matters of reduction of capital to be placed in the interlocutory list (d).

With regard to fees the provisions of the General Order as to reduction of capital of 1909 are as follows :—

"Solicitors' fees.—Solicitors shall be entitled to charge and be allowed "for duties performed under the Act in relation to matters dealt with by "this Order the same fees as they have heretofore been entitled to charge "and be allowed for the like duties performed under the Companies Acts, "1862 to 1907, unless the Court or Judge shall otherwise specially direct.

"Court fees.—The same fees of Court shall be paid in relation to pro-"ceedings dealt with by this Order as have heretofore been paid in relation "to like proceedings dealt with by the General Orders of the 21st day of "March, 1868, and the 2nd day of March 1869, and such fees shall be "collected by stamps in the like manner as the same have heretofore been "collected or in such other manner as may from time to time be directed by "the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury in pursuance of the "powers vested in them by the Public Officers' Fees Act, 1879 (e)."

(k) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 41. The resolution in such case need not be a special resolution, and does not require to be confirmed by the Court; but every copy of the memorandum issued after the date of the alteration must be in accordance with the alteration. A company making default in complying with this provision will be liable to a fine not exceeding £1 for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the default will be liable to a like penalty, and see supra, pp. 83 and 84.

RESOLUTION FOR RETURNING ACCUMULATED PROFITS IN REDUCTION OF PAID-UP CAPITAL—THE UNPAID CAPITAL BEING THEREBY INCREASED BY THE AMOUNT RETURNED (l).

That a sum of 7*s.* per share be returned to each shareholder out of the undivided profits which the Company has accumulated in reduction of the capital paid up by him on his shares and to the intent that the capital unpaid by him in respect of his shares may be thereby increased by a similar amount.

In some cases, e.g. where a particular class of shares is to be bought out and extinguished, it may be desirable to have an agreement with the holders of shares of such class.

An Agreement made this day of 19 . Between The Company Limited hereinafter called the Company of the one part and the several persons whose names and addresses and the denoting numbers of whose shares are set out in the schedule hereto (m) being the holders of all the founders shares of the company of the other part.

Whereby it is agreed between the parties hereto as follows :—

1. The Company shall be at liberty to take such steps as may be requisite for passing a resolution for increasing its capital from £10,000 to £20,000 by the creation of 20,000 new ordinary shares of £1 each and for reducing such increased capital from £20,000 to £19,500 by cancelling all its 500 founders shares of £1 each and returning to the holders of such shares the capital paid up on the same and the parties hereto of the second part shall not take any steps to prevent such increase or reduction or either of them.

2. In the event of such increase and reduction of capital being effectually carried out each of the holders of the founders shares of the company shall in respect of each founders share held by him receive in addition to the capital paid upon his founders shares a sum of £ out of the accumulated profits of the company and shall be allotted and accept an allotment of of the new ordinary shares of the company, the full nominal amount of such shares to be paid by him on allotment.

3. In the event of such increase and reduction not having been effectually carried out before the day of next the Company or any holder of founders shares may give notice in writing terminating this agreement and thereupon this agreement shall become void.

4. Any notice under these presents shall be deemed to be duly given if left at the registered office of the Company.

(l) The resolution in this case need not be confirmed by the Court ; the resolution must be a special resolution : Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 40, and see supra, p. 258. The memorandum to be filed with the Registrar of Companies will be in the form of the first minute on p. 688, supra, except that it will speak of the registration "of this memorandum" and not of "this minute."

(m) Where the course proposed is within the powers which can be exercised by a class resolution, it is best to have and to recite such a resolution authorizing one of the class to enter into the agreement.

THE SCHEDULE HEREINBEFORE REFERRED TO.

Names and Addresses.	Denoting numbers of founders' shares.

It is sometimes desirable to accompany the notice for the meetings for passing the resolutions by an explanatory circular; such circular would be in some such form as the following :—

THE COMPANY LIMITED.

In order to carry on the business of the Company it is necessary to raise fresh capital, but owing to the rights conferred on the holders of founders shares, it is felt that it will be difficult if not impossible to do this.

Under these circumstances the directors have entered into a conditional agreement with all the holders of founders' shares.

The following are the material terms of such agreement :—

1. Capital of the Company to be increased by the creation of 15,000 new ordinary shares of £1 each and such increased capital to be reduced by cancelling all the founders shares—and repaying to the holders of such shares the amounts paid up by them on their shares as provided by the notice sent herewith.

2. In the event of the proposed resolutions being passed and of the proposed resolution for the reduction of the capital of the Company being subsequently confirmed as a special resolution and sanctioned by the Court each holder of founders shares in respect of each founders share held by him prior to such cancellation to receive in addition a sum of £ (n) out of the accumulated profits of the Company and to be allotted and accept an allotment of of the new ordinary shares which the Company proposes to issue, the full nominal amount of such shares to be paid on allotment.

3. Either party to be entitled to give the other notice determining the agreement if such increase and reduction have not been effectually carried out by 19 .

The following is another form of circular in cases where the holders of one class of shares are by the scheme for reduction to give up certain rights and are to receive in return votes :—

THE COMPANY LIMITED.

[State reasons for reduction.]

The preference shareholders are by the scheme referred to in the notice of meeting sent herewith to give up the following rights [the rights are here set out] in return each preference shareholder will receive one vote for each share held by him if the reduction becomes effective and not otherwise.

ALTERATION OF OBJECTS OF COMPANY.

The Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890 (o) gave powers of altering the memorandum of association so far as concerns the objects of a company; these powers are re-enacted by the present (n) See Anglo-French Exploration Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 845; Development Co. of Central, etc., Africa, [1902] 1 Ch. 547.

(o) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 62.

Act (p). These provisions seem by virtue of section 263 of the Act to extend to altering similar provisions in the deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, costs, book regulations, or other instrument constituting or regulating a company registered under Part VII. of the Act, and not being provisions contained in an Act of Parliament relating to the company or in letters patent, or a royal charter (pp).

They only authorize alterations in particular specified ways, and under these powers a company cannot alter the entire scope of its business (q).

Thus, a company will not be enabled, under these provisions, to alter its business from one to protect cyclists into one to protect cyclists, motorists, and tourists generally (r), nor was a company formed for the purpose of investing its funds in Government securities allowed to alter its objects so as to invest in all sorts of securities (s). In another case the Court, while sanctioning a scheme for altering a single ship company, into a company owning and working unlimited ships, intimated that, if there had been any opposition, it would have withheld the requisite sanction (t).

Further, the Court will. not, under these provisions, alter a memorandum of association simply for the purpose of enabling a company to set out at length and in modern form, a number of powers or objects which it has already got (a).

These are matters for a reconstruction scheme, and the provisions, now under discussion are not meant to enable a company to avoid reconstruction in a proper case, and so to deprive dissentients of their rights (b).

A company formed without shares or capital can be wound up, and consequently can avail itself of these provisions to alter its memorandum (c).

It has now been decided that a company registered under the Companies Act, 1856 (d), and not under the later Acts, can avail itself of these powers to alter its memorandum (e). Of course, these powers also enable a company registered under the Companies Act, 1862, to alter its memorandum of association.

Companies formed under the provisions of any Companies Act prior to that of 1856, may alter the form of their constitution by substituting a memorandum and articles of association for a deed of settlement (f), where they have registered under Part VII. of the Act (g), or have registered but not been formed under the Act of 1856, or the Act of 1862 (h).

In such case the alteration is made in the same way as an alteration of the memorandum of association is made (i), and the substituted memorandum and articles will on the registration of the alterations being certified by the Registrar of Companies apply to the company in the same manner as if it had been registered under the Act with them, and the deed of settlement will cease to apply (i). A memorandum and articles may be substituted for a deed of settlement either with or without an alteration of the objects of the company (k). The object clause in the substituted memorandum must not merely set out the objects by reference to the old deed of settlement, and if the company proposes to convert itself from an unlimited into a limited company, it should register under section 57 of the Act before the petition is heard (l).

Turning to the alterations which may, under section 9, be made in the memorandum of association, or deed of settlement of a company.

They are divided into five heads. They are alterations that may be required—

1. To enable the company to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently (m). Under this head companies formed for purchasing reversions (n), and for investing in specified securities (o), have been allowed to make alterations enabling them to issue debentures and give security to their creditors, because these powers would enable them to carry on their main business on a larger scale, and consequently more efficiently; and in another case, a company formed for carrying on a manufacturing business was enabled to form a reserve fund, and to invest it, while not required in its business, in certain specified securities (p). Under this provision companies have been allowed to take general powers which may prove useful for carrying on their business (q).

II. To attain its main purpose by new or improved means (r). It has been said that the word "purpose" was probably intentionally used here, as being more limited than the word "objects," and that consequently this provision is not intended to enable a company, with a memorandum in modern form, to attain any one of its numerous objects by new or improved means (s).

III. To enlarge or change the local area of its operations (t). In one case a company whose operations were limited to India, was under this power enabled to extend such operations to other places (u); and in another case a company formed to acquire land in Egypt was allowed to acquire land in the Soudan also (x). Again, a company formed to work laundries at Kircaldy, was allowed to work laundries at other places in the county of Fife (y).

IV. To carry on some business which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company (z). This is the power of alteration most frequently invoked.

By virtue of this power, companies formed to invest in certain specified securities, have been allowed to invest in a wider range of securities (a); a company formed to do marine insurance, has been allowed to undertake general insurance (b); a company formed to insure boilers has been allowed to insure kindred objects (c); and a company formed to insure cargoes, has also been allowed to insure ships respondentia, bottomry, etc. (d).

Again, under this power a bank has been allowed to undertake trusts and executorships, where part of the property was within the jurisdiction (e); and a company formed to supply electricity for telephonic purposes was allowed to supply electricity for other purposes (f). Under this power a company, which had been a registered Friendly Society, and had, under section 71 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, converted itself into a company limited by guarantee, was allowed to enlarge its objects (g), and, in another case where there was no opposition, a company was allowed to change itself from a single-ship company into a company with power to own and work unlimited ships (h).

V. To restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum (i). This power is rarely used. It was, however, useful in the case of an insurance company (k), which was not carrying on life assurance business, and wished to recover a deposit paid into Court under the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870, and it may also be useful sometimes in the case of companies seeking foreign concessions.

The alterations are made by special resolution, but they do not take effect until and except in so far as they are confirmed on petition by the Court which has jurisdiction to wind up the company (l).

In the case of a company registered in England, petitions may be presented either in the Companies (Winding-up) Department, or in the Chancery Division of the High Court (m).

Before confirming the alteration the Court must be satisfied that sufficient notice has been given to (a) every holder of debentures or debenture stock of the company; and to (b) all persons and classes of persons whose interests will in the opinion of the Court be affected (n) by the alteration, and it must also be satisfied that with respect to every creditor, who in its opinion is entitled to object and who has signified his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court (o). It is usual, as soon as the petition has been presented, to take out a summons for directions as to what notice should be given to debenture-holders and other persons whose interests may be affected by the proposed alterations, and what advertisements there are to be, and to fix a date for the hearing of the petition (p). The order usually directs specific notice of the alterations to be sent to each debenture or debenture stock holder (pp).

The Court has, however, power in the case of any person, or class, for special reasons, to dispense with the notices, which are required as above stated (q). Thus, in one case, where a company had never carried on business and only consisted of seven members, the Court dispensed with all advertisements (r), and advertisements were dispensed with where the shareholders and policy-holders of a company were the only persons concerned (s).

The Court must, in exercising its discretion under this section, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors (t).

Once the case is within either of the five headings referred to in section 9 (1), the Court has jurisdiction, and the considerations mentioned in section 9 (5) of the Act and set out above, are the only considerations which should guide it in the exercise of such discretion; it is no part of its business to consider whether the scheme is wise or unwise, expedient or inexpedient (u). The Court will, however, have regard to the total number of shareholders who support the resolution, and will be slow to confirm a resolution which will make no present alteration in the business of the company, but will only have the effect of rendering the views of an existing majority, permanently binding on the company (x). The Court will have to consider alike the persons who actively dissent and those who do not assent (y).

If it thinks fit it may adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members, and it may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement; but no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase (z).

The same petition might combine an application for reducing the capital of the company and for altering the object clause in its memorandum (a). In such case, it is thought, the company could, in spite of section 9 (5) of the Act, apply its capital in purchasing its shares (b). An order has also been made on a petition combining a scheme of arrangement, an alteration in the memorandum, and a reorganization of share capital (c).

The petition must be headed in the matter of the company (naming it), and in the matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. The name of the company being placed first in the title to the petition, and in notices and advertisements, whether the petition is presented in the Companies (Winding-up) Office, or in the Chancery Division (d); even where the petition is presented to the Companies (Winding-up) Office, it is headed in the Chancery Division, and is answered before one of the judges exercising the winding-up jurisdiction. In this case there is, of course, no ballot to ascertain what Judge the matter is to come before.

The evidence should include an affidavit exhibiting the memorandum and articles of the company and the minute book containing the minute relating to the special resolution sanctioning the proposed alteration (e). The certificate of the incorporation of the company and its register of members will also be exhibited. The affidavi should also explain the reasons for the proposed alteration, and it is often convenient for it to refer to and exhibit the petition.

When the matter comes before the Court, it may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part (f).

(z) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 9 (5).

(a) This was done in Empire Trust, Ltd. (1891), 64 L. T. 221; but for reasons not appearing in the report, the petitioners did not attempt to proceed with the reduction part of the petition. Orders have been made on such petitions, e.g., in London and New York Investment Corporation, Ltd. and Reduced, 00315 of 1907, NEVILLE, J., January 21, 1908; and in Customs and Bonded Warehouses, Ltd. and Reduced, 00218 of 1906, set out post, pp. 714 et seq.

(e) Omnium Investment Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 127. For form of affidavit, post, pp. 703 and 704. The practice in this and other matters above mentioned seems identical with the practice on a reduction of capital, and it will be necessary, therefore, to strictly prove the summoning of the meetings.

(f) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 9 (4).

Under this power to sanction an alteration in part the Court has sometimes added words making any new objects, which are to be inserted, pursuant to the resolution altering the memorandum, incidental to the original objects of the company (g).

The Court may also make the order on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper (h).

The most common condition imposed by the Court, as a term on which it will sanction an alteration, is one requiring the company to change its name, where the name represents the nature of the business the company carried on under its original memorandum, and not the business the company purposes to carry on under its altered memorandum.

In such case the Court will require that it should approve the new name, and the company's name will have to be altered by special resolution, and with the approval of the Board of Trade under section 8 (3) of the Act. Thus, in the case of a company formed to carry on business in India, which was taking power to do similar work elsewhere, this was done (i), and the same condition was imposed in the case of a company formed to acquire land in the Egyptian Delta, which acquired power to acquire land in the Soudan (k), in the case of insurance companies extending the scope of the risks they could insure against (l), in the case of investment companies extending the range of their investment powers (m), and in the case of a company formed to use electricity for telephonic purposes, but making alterations so as to enable them to use it for other purposes (n). But a change of name was not required where the company was not a trading company in the ordinary sense, and such a change would have involved considerable expense (o).

In one case an insurance company had as a condition to give an undertaking to obtain the consent of all its existing policy-holders, or to postpone the alteration until all the dissentient policy-holders had ceased to hold policies (p). In another case a company was compelled to give its debenture-holders a floating charge, by way of further security (q).

Another condition that is sometimes imposed is that the order shall be advertised in the same way as the petition (r). There is no established practice in the matter (s), and this condition is rarely imposed.

Sometimes the company is put on an undertaking to perform the condition imposed (t), but the more usual course is to direct that the order shall not go till the condition is complied with (u), and in such case the Registrar or Master will have to be satisfied with an affidavit or other evidence showing that the condition has been complied with. The certificate of the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies must be produced on a change of name. The order will be dated on the day when the condition is complied with, or if that is in vacation, on the first day of the next sittings.

In the case of a limited company not formed for profit and licensed by the Board of Trade to omit the word "limited" after its name (x), the Board of Trade must be served with the petition, and the Court will not sanction any alteration until it has been approved by the Board of Trade (y). The proposed alterations should in these cases be submitted to the Board of Trade before they are submitted to the meetings of the company.

An office copy of the order confirming the alteration together with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered or of the memorandum and articles substituted for a deed of settlement (z) must within fifteen days from the date of the order or such extended time as the Court may allow be delivered to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, and he must register the same and certify the registration under his hand. Such certificate will be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of the Act with respect to the alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth the memorandum so altered will be the memorandum of the company (a), or, if it be a case of substituted memorandum and articles, the substituted memorandum and articles will apply to the company as if

If default is made in delivering any such documents, the company will be liable to a fine not exceeding £10 for every day in which it is in default (c). The old Acts did not give the Court power to extend the time for delivering the necessary documents, but it was held that even after the expiration of the fifteen days it was the duty of the Registrar to register, though apparently the Court could not compel him to do so (d). Applications of this sort are very rare, and should be made by motion.

FORM OF PETITION FOR ALTERING PROVISIONS OF MEMORANDUM OF ASSOCIATION AS TO OBJECTS.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,
Chancery Division.

MR. JUSTICE

In the Matter of the Company Limited,
and
In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908.

TO HIS MAJESTY'S HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

The humble petition of the above-named Company hereinafter called the Company showeth as follows:—

1. THE Company was registered on the day of 19 under the Companies Acts 1862 to 1900 with a nominal capital of £50,000 divided into 50,000 shares of £1 each.

2. THE registered offices of the Company are situated at in the City of London.

3. THE objects for which the Company was established are stated by its Memorandum of Association to be—

(a) To invest money in the purchase of or otherwise acquire and hold any bonds stocks obligations or securities of foreign colonial or British Governments States dominions sovereigns provinces or ruling or public authorities or the shares or obligations of foreign railways or other undertakings having the guarantee of or subsidized by a foreign or colonial or British Government State dominion sovereign province municipality or ruling or public authority or any other security for the payment of which the credit or any property or revenue of any such Government State dominion sovereign province municipality or ruling or public authority is pledged charged or made liable.

(b) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 264 (2) (b).

(c) Ibid., s. 9 (7).

(d) Criccieth Pier and Harbour Co. (1891), W. N. 15. It may be doubted whether, having regard to the provision enabling the Court to extend the time for registration, the Registrar should register an order after the expiration of the fifteen days, until the Court has extended the time.

(e) Usually it is desirable to set out the whole of the objects.

4. OF the said shares of the company 25,000 have been issued and the sum of 10*s.* is paid up or credited as paid up on each such share.

5. BY a special resolution of the Company passed and confirmed at extraordinary general meetings of the Company held on the day of 19 and the day of 19 it was resolved as follows :—

"That the Memorandum of Association of the Company be altered by inserting after clause (a) thereof a clause (a 1) in the following words that is to say : To invest the moneys of the Company in or lend the moneys of the Company on the security of or otherwise to acquire and hold any bonds debenture stock obligations or mortgages of any companies or corporations formed or incorporated under British foreign or colonial law."

6. IT is at the present time very difficult to carry on the present business of the Company so as to obtain an adequate rate of remuneration owing to the somewhat limited range of investments authorized by the Company's Memorandum of Association and the further business which it is proposed to carry on under the proposed new clause of the Company's altered Memorandum of Association can under existing circumstances be conveniently and advantageously combined with the existing business of the Company.

7. THE Company has sufficient working capital and its financial position is shown by the following summary which is extracted from its last balance sheet which was brought down to the 19 .

The capital paid up was	£
The reserve fund was	£
The undivided profits were	£
	£
The assets of the Company amounted to . .	£

8. The Company has issued 100 debentures of £100 each all of which are now outstanding and it has not issued or agreed to issue any other debentures or debenture stock.

9. NO one will be prejudiced by the proposed alteration of the Memorandum of Association of the Company and under the circumstances it is just and equitable that the same should be confirmed by this Court.

Your Petitioner therefore humbly prays :—

1. That the alteration of the Memorandum of Association of the Company sought to be effected by the special resolution above set out may be confirmed by this Court.

2. Or that such other order may be made in the premises as to this Court may seem meet.

NOTE.—It is not proposed to serve this petition on any one.

PETITION WHERE IT IS PROPOSED TO SUBSTITUTE MEMORANDUM AND ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION FOR A DEED OF SETTLEMENT.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,

Chancery Division.

MR. JUSTICE NEVILLE.

In the Matter of the A.B. Co. Ltd.

In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908.

TO HIS MAJESTY'S HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

The Humble Petition of your Petitioner The A.B. Co. Ltd. (hereinafter called the Company).

Showeth as follows :—

1. The Company was constituted under a deed of settlement (hereinafter called the deed of settlement) dated 18 and expressed to be made between A.B. of the first part C.D. of the second and the several other persons who had on the said day of 18 signed their names and affixed their seals and who should thereafter sign their names and affix their seals to the deed of settlement of the third part. The said Company was registered under Part VII. of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 as a Company limited by shares on the day of 1910.

2. The registered office of the Company is situate at in the City of London.

3. The capital of the Company is £20,000 divided into 20,000 shares of £1 each 15000 of such shares have been issued and paid for in full and no other shares have been issued.

4. The objects for which the Company was established were set out in clause 4 of the deed of settlement and were as follows that is to say :

[The objects will be here set out in extenso.]

5. The following resolution was duly passed as an extraordinary resolution and confirmed as a special resolution at extraordinary general meetings of the company held on the day of 19 and the day of 19 respectively that is to say :—

"That the Memorandum and Articles submitted to this meeting and 'for the purpose of identification subscribed by X.Y. a solicitor of the "Supreme Court be and the same are hereby approved and that pursuant "to the provisions of sections 9 and 264 of the Companies (Consolidation) "Act 1908 the form of the Company's constitution be altered by substi-"tuting such Memorandum and Articles of Association for the Company's "deed of settlement dated the day of 19 and for "all regulations subsequently made and now in force and that the directors "be and they are hereby authorized to apply to the Court to confirm this "resolution under the said Act."

6. The objects of the Company as set out in the Memorandum of Association referred to in the said special resolution are the same as those contained in the deed of settlement and in paragraph 4 of this petition set out and in the same words except for a purely verbal alteration in clause 3 (d) of such Memorandum of Association (corresponding to clause 4 (d) of the deed of settlement). Such alteration was necessitated by the difference in form of the two documents.

[Or set out any differences there may be giving the reasons for the proposed alterations.]

7. With regard to the provisions of the deed of settlement (as the same has been varied from time to time) which would if the Company had been originally formed under the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 have been required to be contained in the Company's Articles of Association the new Articles of Association referred to in the said special resolution do make certain alterations in such provisions. Such alterations have been made for the purpose of Stock Exchange requirements and for the purpose of bringing the said Articles of Association up to date having special regard to Acts of Parliament and decisions of the Courts since the year 18 when the Company was registered.

8. The proposed alteration in the form of the constitution of the Company is rendered desirable by reason of the fact that the Company proposes to offer some of its shares for subscription to the public and it is thought that intending investors may well be deterred from subscribing if the documents regulating the Company are different to the documents which ordinarily regulate companies.

9. The financial condition of the Company is sound as is shown by its balance-sheets.

10. Under the circumstances it is just and equitable that the alterations in the form of the constitution of the Company proposed to be effected by the special resolution set out in paragraph 5 of this petition should be confirmed by the Court.

Your petitioner therefore humbly prays as follows :—

1. That this Court may confirm the alteration in the form of the constitution of the Company proposed to be effected by the special resolution set out in paragraph 5 of this Petition by substituting the Memorandum and Articles of Association referred to in such special resolution for the deed of settlement of the Company dated 18 and for all regulations of the Company subsequently made and now in force.

2. Or that such other order may be made in the premises as to this Court may seem meet.

NOTE.—It is not proposed to serve this petition on any one.

Where any notice is accompanied by an explanatory circular, as is sometimes desirable, it should be headed in the same way as a similar circular in the case of a reduction of capital (see supra, p. 691), and should make clear any points not shown by the notice summoning the meetings.

(m) This form is substantially taken from Governments Stock Investment Co. (No. 2), [1892] 1 Ch. 597.

REORGANIZATION OF SHARE CAPITAL.

A company limited by shares may by special resolution confirmed by an order of the Court modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association (n) so as to reorganize its share capital, whether by the consolidation of shares of different classes, or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes; but no preference or special privilege (nn) attached to or belonging to any class of shares can be interfered with except by a resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class and confirmed at a meeting of shareholders of that class, in the same manner as a special resolution of the company is required to be confirmed, and every resolution so passed will bind all shareholders of the class.

Where an order is made under this section an office copy thereof must be filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies within seven days after the making of the order or within such further time as the Court may allow, and the resolution will not take effect until such a copy has been so filed (o).

This section apparently applies only where the preference or special privilege is given by the memorandum itself, and not where powers to issue shares with special privileges conferred by the memorandum have been exercised (p). There seems to be some question as to the majority requisite at the first class meeting. Must there be an absolute majority of all the shareholders of the class to pass the resolution? or is it enough for any majority of shareholders of the class assembled in general meeting to pass it, provided, of course, that they hold the requisite number of shares? It is submitted that the latter view is the correct one, as the section speaks of "a majority in number of shareholders," not of "the majority," or "a majority in number of the shareholders" (pp). Questions, too, may be raised as to whether proxies could be counted in ascertaining such majority—probably they could not, as the Act seems, when it intends to allow proxies in ascertaining a particular number, to say so (q).

(n) The section has no application where the preferential rights are determined by the articles, and not by the memorandum of association: Australian Estates and Mortgage Co., [1910] 1 Ch. 414.

(o) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 45; see also supra, pp. 318 and 319.

(p) Australian Estates and Mortgage Co., [1910] 1 Ch. 414. In the order given below (pp. 742 and 743) the contrary was assumed to be the case—the point was raised.

(pp) Cp. Clay v. The Grand Junction Waterworks (1904), 21 T. L. R. 31, where however the wording was different.

(q) Cp. s. 69 (special resolutions), and s. 120 (compromises); at the confirmatory meetings of the separate classes of shareholders under s. 45 proxies can, if the articles allow, clearly be used, as the resolution has to be confirmed in the same manner as a special resolution of the company. There is no common law right to proxies: Harbin v. Phillips (1883), 23 C. D. 14.

Where the scheme involves a compromise or arrangement under section 120, meetings directed to be held under that section, will serve as the first meetings of classes of shareholders (r).

Where all the members of the company are respondents, and appear by counsel and consent, the Court will sometimes sanction a reorganization even though no class meetings have been held (rr).

It is thought that the Court could confirm a compound scheme by which shares are first consolidated into one class and then divided into classes conferring different rights from the rights conferred by the original classes of shares, e.g. where the shares were originally divided into 5 per cent. preference shares and ordinary shares, they could by one scheme be all consolidated into ordinary shares, and then divided into 4 per cent. preference shares representing the original preference shares, and ordinary shares.

In Mellin's Food (rrr) the capital was divided into preference and ordinary shares; and the memorandum provided that the preference shares should rank "both as regards dividends and capital in priority to the ordinary shares," and that "the shares in the capital for the time being" might be divided into several classes with preferential, qualified, or special rights attached thereto, "but not so as to prejudice the preferential right hereby attached to the preference shares." It was held that the company could not increase its capital by issuing preference shares ranking pari passu with the original preference shares, unless it complied with s. 45. If this decision is right, it would seem that s. 45 forbids transactions that could have been carried out before it was passed.

The application is made by petition, and it is not usual for any advertisement to be directed (s). No summons for directions is issued on these petitions, the petition is presented and then is answered by the following words being written on it: "This Court doth order that all parties concerned do attend hereon on Tuesday, the day of , 19 , at the Royal Courts of Justice, Strand, London, and hereof give notice forthwith." The affidavits in support should prove notices of meeting, exhibit register of shareholders, memorandum and articles, certificate of incorporation, and possibly also the petition, and should explain the reasons for the reorganization.

PETITION FOR REORGANIZING SHARE CAPITAL BY CONSOLIDATING TWO CLASSES OF SHARES INTO ONE.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,
Chancery Division.

MR. JUSTICE

In the Matter of the A.B. Company Ltd.
In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908.

TO HIS MAJESTY'S HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

The humble petition of your petitioner the A.B. Company (hereinafter called the Company) sheweth as follows :—

(r) See the Order, in Welsh Flannel Manufacturing Co., Ltd., and Reduced, 00144 of 1908, infra, pp. 742 and 743. In this case the point arose and was argued.

(rr) This was done in Holloway Brothers (London), 0068 of 1912, NEVILLE, J., February 27th, 1912.

(rrr) Unreported, 0018 of 1912, NEVILLE, J., March 5th, 1912.

1. The Company was registered on the day of 1901 under the Companies Acts 1862 to 1900 as a Company limited by shares.

2. The registered office of the Company is situate at in the City of London.

3. The objects for which the company was established were as follows :—

[Here set out the main object or objects] and other objects specified in its Memorandum of Association.

4. The capital of the Company is of £30,000 divided into 10,000 preference shares of £1 each and £20,000 ordinary shares of £1 each. 5000 of the said preference shares and all the said ordinary shares have been issued and all such issued shares are fully paid up.

5. Clause 6 of the Company's Memorandum of Association provides as follows :—

"The preference shares above mentioned shall confer the following "rights and no others, that is to say—

"(1) The right to a 7 per cent. non-cumulative dividend on the amount paid up thereon payable out of the profits of the Company after setting aside such sum to reserve as the directors may from time to time think fit in priority to any dividend on any other shares the Company may issue.

"(2) The right on a winding-up to repayment of the capital paid up thereon before any sum is paid to any other shareholder of the Company in respect of his shares."

6. The following resolution was duly passed as an extraordinary resolution and confirmed as a special resolution at extraordinary general meetings of the Company held on the day of 19 and the day of 19 respectively that is to say—

"That the conditions contained in the Memorandum of Association "of the company be modified so as to reorganize its share capital by the "consolidation of all its shares into shares of one class of ordinary "shares."

7. A separate meeting of the preference shareholders of the Company was held on the day of 19 and at such meeting a resolution in the same words as the special resolution referred to in the last preceding paragraph of this petition was passed by a majority in number of the said preference shareholders holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class. Such resolution was confirmed in the same manner as a special resolution of the Company is required to be confirmed at a subsequent separate meeting of the preference shareholders of the Company held on the day of 19 (ss).

8. During the first seven years of its existence the Company did not pay any dividend since then it has not only paid the preference dividend in full but has paid the following dividends on its ordinary shares, that is to say in the year 1909 a dividend at the rate of in the year 1910 a dividend at the rate of in the year 1911 a dividend at the rate of . In addition the Company has a sum of £ standing to reserve.

9. The ordinary shares of the Company are in consequence of the foregoing facts at a considerable premium but there may be some difficulty in issuing preference shares at par. Further capital is required and it is felt that under all the circumstances of the case the best and fairest course is to issue the now unissued shares of the Company after first consolidating all the shares of the Company into one class.

10. Under the circumstances it is just and equitable that the reorganization of capital proposed to be effected by the special resolution of the company referred to in paragraph 6 of this petition should be confirmed by the Court.

1. That the modification of the conditions contained in the Memorandum of Association of the Company and the consequent reorganization of the share capital of the Company proposed to be effected by the special resolution passed and confirmed at the two extraordinary general meetings of the said Company held respectively on the day of 19 and the day of 19 and referred to in paragraph 6 of this petition may be confirmed by this Court.

2. Or that such other order may be made in the premises as to this Court may seem meet.

NOTE.—It is not proposed to serve this petition on any one.

ORDER ON PETITION TO CONFIRM SPECIAL RESOLUTION FOR REORGANIZATION OF CAPITAL.

(Title.)

Upon the Petition of the above-named Cadbury Brothers Limited whose registered office is situate at Bournville in the City of Birmingham on the 27th of November 1911 preferred unto this Court and upon hearing Counsel for the Petitioner and upon reading the said Petition the affirmation of J.S.L. the affirmation of G.C. both filed the 2nd December, 1911 and the several Exhibits in the said affirmations respectively referred to.

THIS COURT DOTH ORDER that the modification of the conditions contained in the Memorandum of the above-named Company and the consequent reorganization of its share capital proposed by the special resolution of the above-named Company passed and confirmed in accordance with section 69 of the above-named Act at extraordinary general meetings of the above-named Company held respectively on the 10th and 25th November 1911 which special resolution is set out in the schedule hereto be and the same is hereby confirmed in accordance with the provisions of the above-mentioned Act and it is ordered that the above-named Company do within 7 days from the date of this Order file with the Registrar of Companies an office copy of this Order.

second preference shares of £100 each (proposed to be subdivided into £1 shares) in Cadbury Brothers Ltd. be reorganized and consolidated into one class of 1,075,000 six per cent. cumulative preference shares of £1 each all ranking pari passu and conferring the right to a cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of six per cent. per annum on the capital for the time being paid up thereon and the right in a winding-up to payment off of capital in priority to all other shares and to participate in any surplus assets which may remain after paying off the remainder of the capital pari passu with the ordinary shares to the extent of twenty-five per cent. of their nominal value but no further so that no holder of preference shares shall be entitled as such holder to receive out of such surplus assets any sum in excess of an amount equal to 25 per cent. of the nominal value of the preference shares held by him and that the Company's Memorandum and Articles be altered accordingly. COMPROMISES AND ARRANGEMENTS.

Where a compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them (t), or between the company and its members or any class of them, the Court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or any creditor or member of the company, or, in the case of a company being wound up, of the liquidator, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, or of the members of the company or class of members, as the case may be, to be summoned in such manner as the Court directs.

If a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value of the creditors or class of creditors, or members or class of members, as the case may be, present either in person or by proxy at the meeting, agree to any compromise or arrangement, the compromise or arrangement will, if sanctioned by the Court, be binding on all the creditors or the class of creditors, or on the members or class of members, as the case may be, and also on the company or, in the case of a company in the course of being wound-up, on the liquidator and contributories of the company.

In the section the expression "company" means any company liable to be wound up under this Act (a).

This section originally only applied where a company was in winding-up, but the Act of 1907 extended it to other cases. It is not thought that the Court can under this section sanction any act

(t) The Court must be satisfied that there has been a meeting of creditors the amount of whose debts can be estimated: Albert Life Assurance Co. (1871), 6 Ch. 381. At the time of this decision, however, the rules in winding-up as to the debts which could be proved in winding-up were different to what they now are.

of a company, which, apart from such provisions, would be ultra vires. Thus, if a scheme involves a reduction of capital (b), or, it would seem, an alteration to the memorandum (c), or a reorganization of capital under section 45 of the Act, the company would, to get the sanction of the Court, have to go through the preliminaries under section 120, and also under the other relevant section or sections of the Act (d).

Under the provisions of section 120, secured as well as unsecured creditors can be bound (e), and compromises may be made between one class of creditors or contributories and another (f). If a company has foreign creditors (including colonial creditors) they will have to be summoned to the meetings (g), but such creditors will not be prevented by the mere fact of an arrangement under the section having been entered into here, from enforcing their rights against property abroad (h). For this purpose it would seem that a person is a foreign creditor who has entered into a contract which is intended to be governed by foreign law (i). The Court has sanctioned a scheme, which had already been sanctioned in New South Wales, and by its sanction bound the English creditors of a company (k).

(b) Cooper, Cooper and Johnson, [1902] 51 W. R. 314. The object of the section is not to enable the company to do anything, but to enable a majority of creditors or shareholders to bind a dissentient minority: Albert Life Assurance Co. (1871), 6 Ch. 381; Alabama New Orleans, Texas and Pacific Junction Railway, [1891] 1 Ch. 213.

(c) The point does not seem to have been taken in Edinburgh American Land Mortgage Co. v. Lang's Trustees, [1909] S. C. 488. When a special resolution is requisite the Liquidator may summon the meeting under s. 194 of the Act; if the winding-up is voluntary. If it is compulsory, presumably the Liquidator may under s. 173 of the Act, and rr. 121, et seq. of the Companies (Winding-up) rules, 1909, summon the meetings. See also s. 158 of the Act, but in such case it may be that the provisions of s. 67 of the Act may be found useful.

(d) There have been one or two unreported cases, where there was a reorganization of capital, and compliance with s. 120 was held to be sufficient, but the view above set out was held to be right in Panama Hat Co., 00413 of 1911, NEVILLE, J., February 27th, 1912; Mellin's Food, 0018 of 1912, NEVILLE, J., March 5th, 1912.

(g) Where there is more than one liquidation, it may be that only the creditors in each country will be entitled to be heard at meetings held in that country: Queensland National Bank, [1893] W. N. 128.

(k) Australian Joint Stock Bank, Times Newspaper, 1st April, 1910.

It has been held that the Court cannot compel a liquidator to enter into a compromise of which he does not approve (l), and the same remark would seem to apply to a going company; indeed, it has been held in Scotland that if the scheme involves something which is beyond the directors' powers (e.g. an amalgamation), the Court cannot even order meetings to be summoned until the Company in general meeting has approved of the scheme (ll).

The jurisdiction of the Court would seem, mutatis mutandis, to be very similar to that which it has on a reduction of capital, and ought, it is apprehended, to be exercised on much the same principles (m).

The Court must, of course, see that the necessary consents have been obtained. It will not be necessary to obtain the consent of any class of persons who are not interested in the property dealt with by the scheme (n), and the fact that a certain class of persons take a benefit under the scheme, will not necessarily be conclusive of their having an interest (o). Where a petition has failed on the ground that no meeting of one class has been held, if the sanction of that class is subsequently obtained, it will not be necessary to have fresh meetings of other classes which agreed to the scheme prior to the original petition (p).

The question of what is "a class" within the meaning of the section is not always an easy one, particularly where creditors are concerned—it seems that it must be confined to those persons whose rights are not so dissimilar as to make it impossible for them to consult together with a view to their common interest (q). It is also necessary for the debts of creditors who are to be bound to be capable of being estimated (r). The majority required by the section is a majority of those present at the meeting—and in ascertaining whether they represented the requisite value, only the debts or shares represented at the meeting will be taken into account (s). The Court must also satisfy itself that the scheme amounts to a compromise or arrangement; the word "compromise" no doubt involves the idea of a difficulty of some sort (t), though not necessarily either pending litigation (u) or a claim which is good in law (a); but the word "arrangement" seems to go further, and, subject to questions of ultra vires, to cover practically any transaction, except as has recently been held a sale (aa).

The decision is based on the fact that, as was held, a call could not be made on some only of the partly paid shareholders, and also that interest until repayment was due on the moneys advanced.

When the Court has satisfied itself that the scheme has been duly passed, and is one that it can sanction under the section, it will also satisfy itself that the majorities at the various meetings acted bonâ fide, and in particular that the minority has not been overruled by a majority who held other and conflicting interests, which induced them to exercise their votes in favour of the scheme (b). The Court will also, it would seem, consider the question whether the scheme is one that could reasonably be accepted by ordinarily intelligent men acting with a view to the interest of the class to which they belong (c), but the Court will be very slow to withhold its sanction on this last ground, for presumably the persons concerned will be the best judges of what is to their commercial advantage (d).

Under the section schemes have been sanctioned by which the property of the company was leased for a term of years (e), by which debenture-holders gave up their security for shares in a new company (f), by which they postponed the whole (g) or part of their security (h), by which they gave up their security for less than was due on it (i), and by which they agreed to accept annuities in lieu of part of their security (k), and perpetual debenture stock for terminable debentures (l). A sale for cash or shares must be authorized by a power in a trust deed, an order of Court or some other power (e.g. a special resolution under section 192) (aa), but subject to this dissentient shareholders can it is thought be deprived of their rights on a reconstruction (m). Under such schemes preference shareholders have received certificates entitling them to a share of the profits in lieu of capital written off on a reduction (mm), and shareholders of one class have been compelled to give up some of their shares to shareholders of another class (n); but the Court will be very slow to sanction a scheme which deprives a creditor of preferential rights which would have been respected in the winding-up (o).

These are only some of the instances where the Court will sanction a scheme (oo). Perhaps where there is a reduction of capital it may be possible to prevent non-assenting or objecting creditors from claiming the rights conferred on them by sections 49 and 50 of the Act. It is thought that the Court could not sanction a scheme by which persons are forced to take further shares (p); the most it can do is to say, "You must take these shares or nothing;" and even this it would seem it will be slow to do (q).

Where the scheme involved a trust deed for securing debentures, Vaughan Williams, J., would not allow it to contain a clause empowering a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the debentures to do, without the sanction of the Court, what with such sanction they could do under the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870 (r); but this is not the practice of the Court nowadays, and the same judge also required, and the Court now often requires, that if the scheme provided for the payment of the costs or the remuneration of persons whose assistance was required to carry out the scheme, it should contain express provision for bringing in the costs of remuneration for taxation or allowance by the Court (s). On sales to new companies he also required clauses by which the new company undertook to obey the order of the Court as to any proceedings the Court might think proper to be taken against the officers of the old company; and to apply a portion of the assets transferred in the payment of the costs of such proceedings; but these last requirements never applied where the old company was perfectly solvent, and what was being done was a mere sale to a new company (t), and such clauses are not now required at all. It is usual to insert in a scheme provisions enabling the company to assent to any modification of the scheme, which may be directed by the Court (u).

An order when made is binding on members and creditors (x), and can only be challenged on appeal (x); but this does not apply to members or creditors who belong to a class of which meetings have not been summoned (y). For this purpose a landlord will, on the sale of property by a company to which he has granted a lease of such property, be an unsecured creditor and rightly treated as a member of the class of unsecured creditors (z); but a policy-holder whose policy has matured at the date of the scheme will not be a member of a class of policy-holders (a). Where there is a winding-up that will by itself stay all actions, unless the winding-up is purely voluntary, in which case an order can be obtained under section 193 of the Act to stay all proceedings; then, when the scheme is sanctioned, the release (if any) by creditors which ensues is a release by operation of law, and will consequently not release sureties (b), who, on payment in full, will be entitled to step into the shoes of the principal creditor, and to have his rights under the scheme (c). Where there is no winding-up the Court has, it would seem, no power to order a stay of execution because a scheme is pending (d), otherwise the effect of a scheme would seem to be much the same, whether the company is or is not in liquidation. With regard to the practice, it is usual to take out a summons for an order directing meetings to be held, directions are then given as to the dates when the meetings are to be held, what notices sent, and what advertisements inserted (e), and also as to the proxies to be used. If the company

(e) Unless reduction or an alteration in the memorandum forms part of the scheme, it is usual only to direct advertisements as to the dates of the meetings. is being wound up by the Court or under supervision, or if there has been an application in a voluntary winding-up and liberty to apply has been reserved, the summons will be in the winding-up, in other cases an originating summons will usually be necessary. A petition is presented for the sanction of the Court when the scheme has been sanctioned by the meetings (ee). Such sanction has, however, been obtained by summons (f) or petition in an action (g). Moreover, even if the sanction of the Court has been obtained before that of all the meetings, the Court of Appeal will not reverse the decision of the Court below for that reason alone (h), and the Court, when the case has come to a hearing, will in a proper case direct further meetings (i). Section 120 does not expressly empower the Court to give directions as to the manner in which the meetings are to be held; where the company is in winding-up this defect would seem to be cured by sections 145 and 219 of the Act (k). This does not, of course, apply to cases where the company is not in winding-up; but in one case (k) Vaughan Williams, J., held that the Court had inherent jurisdiction to give directions as to the conduct of the meetings, and gave elaborate directions for the purpose of enabling the views and votes of foreign creditors to be taken quickly. It is usual to order a particular form of proxy to be used (l). Apparently no one can hold a proxy at a class meeting, unless he is a member of the class (m). The order directing meetings usually directs who is to be chairman of each meeting, and requires him to report the results of the meetings to the Court. This report will be verified by affidavit (mm). The summons will be supported by an affidavit exhibiting the scheme and giving such particulars as are necessary to enable the Registrar to judge what meetings should be held and advertisements inserted. The petition will be verified by an affidavit, which will be in much the same form mutatis mutandis, as in the case of reduction of capital, and the due summoning of the various meetings must be proved (mmm). Proceedings under this section, even where the company is not in winding-up, are in practically all cases brought in the winding-up department.

Where the company is in winding-up every application to approve a reconstruction or other scheme of arrangement under section 120 of the Act must bear a £5 impressed stamp, and the order, if made in Court, a £1 impressed stamp (n).

In a winding-up by the Court, if application is made to the Court to sanction any arrangement or compromise, the Court may, before giving its sanction thereto, hear a report by the official receiver as to the terms of the scheme and as to the conduct of the directors and other officers of the company, and as to any other matters which, in the opinion of the official receiver or Board of Trade ought to be brought to the attention of the Court. The report will not be placed on the file unless and until the Court shall direct (o).

2. The registered office of the Company is situate at .

3. The objects for which the Company was established are the carrying on of a certain business referred to in the Memorandum of Association of the Company and the conducting of all the usual operations connected with the spinning and manufacturing of wool cotton and mixed materials and carrying on the trade and business of spinners and manufacturers of woollen cotton and mixed goods and fabrics and the business of Merchants and Dealers therein and any other businesses manufactures and transactions which the Company might consider to be in any way auxiliary to the trades and businesses aforesaid or any of them or proper to be carried on in connection therewith and certain other objects set forth in the said Memorandum of Association.

4. Shortly after its incorporation the Company commenced and has since carried on its business.

5. The original capital of the Company was £30,000 divided into 3000 shares of £10 each but it was provided by the Memorandum of Association of the Company that the Company might increase its capital by the creation of new shares and might attach to any of such new shares or any of its original shares before the issue thereof any preference or guarantee which the Company in general meeting might think fit. The Company has since its incorporation in exercise of the said power and of the powers conferred on it by its Articles of Association increased its capital to £50,000 by creating 4324 Cumulative Preference Shares of £1 each and 15,676 Pre-preference Shares of £1 each.

6. By resolutions creating and defining the rights of the said Preference and Pre-preference Shares and dated respectively it was provided that the said Preference Shares should confer the right to a cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of per cent. per annum on the amount paid up thereon and that the said Pre-preference Shares should confer the following rights that is to say (1) the right to a cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of per cent. per annum on the amount paid up thereon ranking in priority to the dividend on the said preference shares and (2) the right on a winding-up to priority over the other shares of the Company as regards repayment of capital and to participate with the other shares of the Company in any surplus assets of the Company remaining after repayment of the capital paid up on such other shares.

7. The Company has issued 2600 of its ordinary shares the whole of its cumulative preference shares and 7556 of its pre-preference shares and no more; and all the said shares with the exception of 95 ordinary shares which have been forfeited have been fully paid. The said forfeited shares are all paid up to the extent of £8 per share.

8. By Clause 4 of the Articles of Association of the Company it is provided as follows :—" Subject to the provisions of the statutes and with the authority of a special resolution all the shares or as the case may be all the shares of any class may be consolidated into a smaller number of shares or divided into a larger number of shares. The said Articles of Association did not prior to the special resolution next hereinafter mentioned contain any power for the Company to reduce its capital.

9. By Special Resolution of the Company duly passed and confirmed at extraordinary general meetings held respectively on the 31st October 1909 and the 15th November 1909 it was resolved "That the Articles of Association of the Company be altered by inserting the following article to be called 4a after article 4. The Company may from time to time by special resolution (1) Reduce its capital (2) Cancel any shares which at the date of the passing of the resolution have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person."

10. By special resolution of the Company duly passed and confirmed at extraordinary general meetings thereof held respectively on the 15th November 1909 (after the confirmation of the Special Resolution in the last paragraph hereof mentioned) and the 30th November 1909 it was resolved as follows:—

(1) That the capital of the Company be reduced from £50,000 to £38,767 by cancelling the following shares which at the date of this resolution have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person namely the 400 Ordinary Shares of £10 each numbered 2601 to 3000 both inclusive and the 7233 Pre-preference Shares numbered 8444 to 15676 both inclusive.

(2) That the capital of the Company be reduced from £38,767 to £20,000 by writing the following sums off the following Ordinary Shares of £10 each namely the sum of £7 off each of the Ordinary Shares numbered 1 to 50 both inclusive 101 to 681 both inclusive and 702 to 1343 both inclusive (hereinafter called the £3 shares) and the sum of £8 off each of the Ordinary Shares numbered 1344 to 2065 both inclusive 2076 to 2532 both inclusive 2543 to 2590 both inclusive and 2596 to 2600 both inclusive (hereinafter called the £2 shares).

(3) That each of the forfeited shares of the Company being such of the shares numbered 1 to 2600 both inclusive as are not mentioned in the foregoing resolution be subdivided into 10 Ordinary Shares of £1 each and each of the £3 shares be subdivided into three Ordinary Shares of £1 each and each of the £2 shares into two Ordinary Shares of £1 each.

(4) That the capital of the company after such cancellation reduction and subdivision as aforesaid be reorganized by cancelling the preferences and special privileges attaching to 4324 Cumulative Preference Shares of £1 each which have been issued to the 7556 Pre-preference Shares of £1 each which have been issued and to the 887 Pre-preference Shares of £1 which have not been issued and by consolidating such shares and the 7233 subdivided Ordinary Shares into one class of 20,000 Ordinary Shares of £1 each.

11. Previously to the passing of such special resolution paid-up capital of the Company to the extent of £18,767 and upwards had been lost or was unrepresented by available assets and the arrears of the cumulative dividend on the said Preference Shares amounted to £3585 and on the said Pre-preference Shares to £4528.

12. The alterations in the capital of the Company effected or proposed to be effected by the Special Resolution lastly hereinbefore referred to formed part of a scheme of arrangement (being the scheme of arrangement set forth in the Schedule hereto) proposed to be made under section 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (r) between the Company and the Pre-preference Preference and Ordinary Shareholders thereof and it was a further part of such scheme of arrangement (1) that each holder of an original Ordinary Share of the Company should be entitled to retain only one out of the 2 or 3 fully paid subdivided shares to which he was entitled under such special resolution (2) that the remaining fully paid subdivided shares should be so applied as to give the Pre-preference Shareholders one of such fully paid subdivided shares for every two Pre-preference Shares held by him and (3) that the holders of the existing Pre-preference and Preference Shares should give up all rights and claims to any arrears of dividends in respect of such shares.

13. It was also part of the said scheme of arrangement that all interest in arrear in respect of the debentures of the Company down to and including the interest payable on the 1st day of July 1908 should be capitalized by the persons entitled to such interest receiving debentures of the existing issue in lieu of and in full satisfaction for the same. The persons entitled to such interest have all agreed with the Company that they will accept such debentures in lieu of and in full satisfaction for such interest in the event of this scheme being confirmed by this Court.

14. Pursuant to and in manner directed by an order of this Court dated the 16th day of December 1909 separate meetings of the Pre-preference Preference and Ordinary Shareholders of the Company were duly convened for the 9th day of January 1910 for the purpose of considering and if thought fit of approving with or without modification the said scheme of arrangement. The said scheme was unanimously approved without any modification at the separate meetings so convened. The whole of the Pre-preference Shareholders were present in person or by proxy at the meeting of the Pre-preference Shareholders and voted in favour of the said scheme. 17 out of 25 Preference Shareholders representing 3710 out of 4324 Preference Shares were present in person or by proxy at the meeting of Preference Shareholders and voted in favour of the said scheme 23 out of 25 Ordinary Shareholders representing 1839 out of 2600 Ordinary Shares (or counting the forfeited shares out of 2500 Ordinary Shares) were present in person or by proxy at the meeting of Ordinary Shareholders and voted in favour of the said scheme. With a view so far as necessary to comply with section 45 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 the resolutions approving the said scheme respectively passed by the said separate meetings of the Pre-preference and Preference Shareholders were duly confirmed in the same manner as special resolutions of the Company are required to be confirmed at separate meetings of the Pre-preference and Preference Shareholders held on the 30th day of January 1910.

15. The reduction of capital aforesaid does not involve the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up capital.

(r) The notices of the meetings stated that the special resolutions which were, of course, set out, formed part of such arrangement, and a copy of the scheme of arrangement was enclosed.

16. There is every prospect of the Company carrying on a successful business in the future but unless this scheme is sanctioned by the Court it will be years before any dividend is payable except on the Pre-preference Shares.

17. The form of minute proposed to be registered is as follows:— "The capital of the A. B. Company Limited and Reduced henceforth is £20,000 divided into 20,000 Ordinary Shares of £1 each numbered 1 to 20,000 all of which are Ordinary Shares instead of the previous capital of £38767 divided into 2600 Ordinary Shares of £10 each 4324 cumulative preference shares of £1 each and 8443 Pre-preference Shares of £1 each. At the time of the registration of this minute the sum of £1 has been and is to be deemed to be paid up on each of the 18163 shares of the Company which are issued and outstanding being the shares numbered 1 to 18163 both inclusive, and the sum of 16*s.* has been and is to be deemed to be paid up on each of the 950 shares 18164 to 19113 both inclusive. The remaining shares numbered 19114 to 20,000 both inclusive have never been issued and nothing has been or is to be deemed to be paid up thereon.

1. That this Court may sanction the scheme of arrangement set out in the schedule hereto and may declare the same to be binding upon the holders of the Pre-preference Preference and Ordinary Shares of the Company.

2. That the reduction and reorganization of capital resolved on by the special resolutions referred to in paragraph 9 of this petition may be confirmed and that the above-mentioned minute may be approved by the Court.

3. That to this end all inquiries and directions necessary and proper may be given and that a day may be fixed on and after which the Company shall be at liberty to discontinue the addition to its name of the words "and reduced."

4. Or that such other order may be made on the premises as to the Court shall seem meet.

And your petitioner will ever pray etc.

AMALGAMATION OR TRANSFER OF ASSURANCE COMPANIES' BUSINESSES.

Where it is intended to amalgamate two or more assurance companies, or to transfer the assurance business of any class from one assurance company to another company, the directors of any one or more of such companies may apply to the Court (a) by petition to sanction the proposed arrangement.

The Court, after hearing the directors and other persons whom it considers entitled to be heard upon the petition, may sanction the arrangement if it is satisfied that no sufficient objection to the arrangement has been established.

Before any such application is made to the Court (b): (1) notice of the intention to make the application must be published in the Gazette (bb); and (2) a statement of the nature of the amalgamation or transfer, as the case may be, together with an abstract containing the material facts embodied in the agreement or deed under which the amalgamation or transfer is proposed to be effected, and copies of the actuarial or other reports upon which the agreement or deed is founded, including a report by an independent actuary, must, unless the Court otherwise directs, be transmitted to each policy-holder of each company in manner provided by section 136 of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, for the transmission to shareholders of notices not requiring to be served personally, but it will not be necessary to transmit such statement and other documents to policy-holders other than life, endowment, sinking fund, or bond investment policy-holders, nor in the case of a transfer to such policy-holders if the business transferred is not life assurance business or bond investment business; and (3) the agreement or deed under which the amalgamation or transfer is effected must be open for the inspection of the policy-holders and shareholders at the offices of the companies for a period of fifteen days after the publication of the notice in the Gazette.

No assurance company may amalgamate with another, or transfer its business to another, unless the amalgamation or transfer is sanctioned by the Court in accordance with this section (c).

Where an amalgamation takes place between any assurance companies, or where any assurance business of one such company is transferred to another company, the combined company or the purchasing company, as the case may be, must, within ten days from the date of the completion of the amalgamation or transfer, deposit with the Board of Trade—

(a) Certified copies of statements of the assets and liabilities of the companies concerned in such amalgamation or transfer, together with a statement of the nature and terms of the amalgamation or transfer; and

(a) Such petitions are usually presented to the Chancery Division. It is thought, however, that they can be presented in the winding-up department where the company is not in liquidation: where it is in liquidation they should be presented in that department.

(bb) The expression "The Gazette" means the London, Edinburgh, or Dublin Gazette, as the case may be: Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 29.

(c) Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 13.

(b) A certified copy of the agreement or deed under which the amalgamation or transfer is effected; and

(c) Certified copies of the actuarial or other reports upon which the agreement or deed is founded; and

(d) A declaration under the hand of the chairman of each company and the principal officer of each company that to the best of their belief every payment made or to be made by any person whatsoever on account of the amalgamation or transfer is therein fully set forth, and that no other payments beyond those set forth have been or are to be made either in money policies, bonds, valuable securities, or other property by or with the knowledge of any parties to the amalgamation or transfer (d).

Section 136 of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, referred to above, contains the following provision:—

"Notices requiring to be served by the Company upon the shareholders "may unless expressly required to be served personally be served by the "same being directed according to the registered address or other known "address of the shareholder within such period as to admit of its being "delivered in due course of delivery within the period if any prescribed "for the giving of such notice and on proving such service it shall be "sufficient to prove that such notice was properly directed and that it "was so put into the post office."

The provisions of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, with respect to amalgamation above set out, do not apply where the only classes of assurance business carried on by both the companies are fire insurance business or accident assurance business, or fire insurance and accident insurance business, and the provisions with respect to the transfer of assurance business from one company to another do not apply to fire insurance business or accident insurance business (e).

In the case of a company carrying on life assurance business, which proposes to amalgamate with or transfer its life assurance business to another assurance company, the Court cannot sanction the amalgamation or transfer in any case in which it appears to the Court that the life policy holders representing one-tenth or more of the total amount assured in the company dissent from the amalgamation or transfer (f).

The expression "actuary" in the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, means an actuary possessing such qualifications as may be prescribed by rules made by the Board of Trade (g).

(d) Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 14. The Board of Trade need not be served with the petition.

(e) Assurance Companies Act, 1909, ss. 31 (f) and 32 (e).

(f) Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 30 (d).

(g) Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 29, and see Order of Board of Trade of June 6, 1910. Rules relating to Qualification of Actuaries, rr. 1 and 2, set out supra, p. 416.

The provisions as to amalgamation and transfer of assurance companies apply even when the transferor company is in liquidation (h), but the section is not an enabling one, and a company seeking to sell all its assets must have power so to do either in its original charter (i), or in its charter as altered under a power in that behalf contained in its original charter (k). Section 192 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, will enable an assurance company which has registered under Part VII. of that Act to enter into a scheme for reconstruction or amalgamation (l), subject, however, to the confirmation of the Court under section 13 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909.

Where it is impossible or very difficult to notify any policy-holder it would seem that the Court can dispense with such notification, except possibly in case of the amalgamation or transfer of a life assurance company or life assurance business where if such policy-holder dissented, such dissent would bring the total amount of dissentients up to one-tenth of the total amount assured by the company (m). Notices need not be sent to persons who have taken out policies in the transferor company between the time when the policy-holders were notified and the order (n).

Trustees under a deed for securing annuities will be policy-holders (o). Under the section it would appear that the Court cannot confirm a transfer of part of one class of a company's business (o). The Court cannot under the section bind dissentient policy-holders to take out policies with the new company, though under a scheme under section 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, it can no doubt require them to take such policies or nothing (p). It would appear that the old cases on novation will, having regard to the fact that section 7 of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1872, has not been reenacted, resume their previous importance. In such cases a tripartite agreement between the original debtor, the new debtor and the creditor must be shown (q). Such an agreement will in a proper case be inferred from the facts, and the question whether there is or is not such an agreement is in all cases a question of fact turning on the intention of the parties (r).

A person who knows of an agreement for amalgamation or transfer under which the new company is to take over the assets and pay the debts of the old company, and acts on the footing of such agreement as by paying premiums (s) and accepting bonuses from the new company cannot usually even in cases where he was not a creditor of the old company, but had only the right to resort to a given part of its assets (t), claim that his rights against the original debtor are intact (u). It will probably be more difficult to show novation in the case of an annuity than a policy seeing that in the former case payments are made to, and not as in the latter case, by the creditor (x). Where a policy has been delivered to the new company for endorsement and premiums have been paid there again, there will usually be novation (y). There are also some cases where the Court will infer an agreement by which the creditor is to be entitled to look to both the original and the new debtor (z), novation will perhaps be inferred easily where the policy-holder has in his character of shareholder in the old company received shares in the new company (a). Where there have been two transfers and novation with the ultimate debtor is sought to be established, probably a rather stronger case will be required than in the ordinary case of one transfer (b), and decisions in partnership cases where partners have come in or gone out will not necessarily be followed, even where the facts are otherwise the same, in the case of amalgamated companies, for in the latter class of case more will be required to establish novation (c).

An agreement will be entered into (d), and then the petition will be presented.

The petition will be supported by an affidavit of a director of each of the companies, exhibiting the agreement, the certificate of incorporation, and the memorandum and articles of association (containing all special resolutions in force) or deed of settlement of each company, and also the minute book of each company with duly signed minutes of the meetings, such signatures being duly proved. Before the petition is heard a summary showing the nature of the amalgamation or transfer (e), and the material facts embodied in the agreement (the agreement itself being open to inspection (f)), and the actuarial reports should be sent to each member with his notice of meeting. Each policy-holder entitled to notices or reports under section 13 (3) (b) of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, will receive such notices and reports, and will be informed of his right to inspect the agreement. It is also desirable at this stage to send a form to policy-holders of the transferor company, for the purpose of effecting novation (g), and substituting the liability of the transferee company for that of the transferor company. This form will be signed, filled in, and returned, and all forms so signed, filled in and returned with a copy of any notices or reports sent to policy-holders or members, will be exhibited to the affidavit of the secretary of the transferor company, which will, in addition, prove the due convening of meetings (as on a reduction of capital), the register of members and of policy-holders being exhibited. The secretary of the transferee company will prove that the meeting of that company was duly convened. Actuarial evidence will also be required. Such evidence should show what assets and what liabilities are to be taken over, and should state why the deponent regards the scheme as sound. Not infrequently a subsequent petition for payment out of the deposit will be necessary. Such payment will not, however, be directed where the transferor company remains liable on any of its policies of the same class as the business transferred, or where it carries on other business which requires a deposit, and is not transferred, and it has no other deposit (h).

(d) This agreement will be in the same form as an ordinary reconstruction agreement, except that it will provide for policy-holders (see petition, infra, pp. 760 et seq.), and will be conditional on the sanction of the Court being obtained.

(e) This summary will contain the matters set out in paragraphs 11 and 12 of the petition; see infra, pp. 762 and 763.

It is not usual to take out a summons when these petitions have been presented, as the only advertisement required is the one in the Gazette, and that must, to comply with the provisions of section 13 (3) (c), be inserted so as to give fifteen clear days for inspection of the agreement. If, however, it is desired that some of the requirements of section 13 (3) (b) of the Act shall be dispensed with, a summons asking for leave to dispense with such requirements will be taken out. In such case if leave is given, further advertisement will usually be required. Occasionally leave to dispense with some of these requirements is given at the hearing of the petition (i).

17. The transferee Company is in a prosperous and flourishing condition and is now and in the event of the transfer proposed to be effected by the transfer agreement being carried into effect will be in a thoroughly sound condition actuarially speaking and under the circumstances it is just and equitable that such transfer should be sanctioned by this Court.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray—

(1) That the transfer agreement and the transfer proposed to be effected thereby may be sanctioned by this Court.

(2) Or that such other order may be made in the premises as to this Court seem meet.

NOTE.—It is not proposed to serve this petition on any person.

Upon the Petition of Chairman

(jj) Paragraphs 13, 14, 15, and 16 will be omitted where the requirements of section 13 (3) of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, are (as will usually be the case) not complied with until after the petition is presented.

REMOVAL OF DEFUNCT COMPANIES FROM THE REGISTER.

Where the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation, he must send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation.

If the Registrar does not within one month of sending the letter receive any answer thereto, he must within fourteen days after the expiration of the month send to the company by post a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received, and that if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register.

If the Registrar either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter receive any answer, he may publish in the Gazette, and send to the company by post a notice that at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register and the company will be dissolved.

If, in any case where a company is being wound up, the Registrar has reasonable cause to believe either that no liquidator is acting, or that the affairs of the company are fully wound up, and the returns required to be made by the liquidator have not been made for a period of six consecutive months after notice by the Registrar demanding the returns has been sent by post to the company, or to the liquidator at his last known place of business, the Registrar may publish in the Gazette and send to the company a notice similar to the one above mentioned.

At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the Registrar may, unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by the company, strike its name off the register, and must publish notice thereof in the Gazette, and on the publication in the Gazette of this notice the company will be dissolved; but the liability (if any) of every director, managing officer, and member of the company will continue, and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved.

If a company or any member or creditor thereof feels aggrieved by the company having been struck off the register, the Court on the application of the company, or member, or creditor, may, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business or in operation, or otherwise that it is just that the company be restored to the register, order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company will be deemed to have continued in existence as if its name had not been struck off; and the Court may by the order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position as nearly as may be, as if the name of the company had not been struck off.

A letter or notice under this section may be addressed to the company at its registered office, or, if no office has been registered, to the care of some director or officer of the company, or if there is no director or officer of the company whose name and address are known to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum of association, addressed to him at the address mentioned in the memorandum of association (k).

The fact that a company's name has been struck off the register under this section would appear to be no bar to a compulsory winding-up order being made (l). There is, of course, in these cases often a difficulty about service, and it would seem right to take out a summons for directions on this point (m).

(k) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 242. "The Gazette" means as respects Companies registered in England, the London Gazette, as respects Companies registered in Scotland, the Edinburgh Gazette, and as respects companies registered in Ireland, the Dublin Gazette, ibid., s. 285.

(l) Anglo-American Exploration and Development Co., [1898] 1 Ch. 100; Grosvenor House Property Acquisition and Investment Building Society (1902), 71 L. J. (CH.) 748; see Alliance Heritable Security (1886), 14 Rettie 34. A creditor can, since the Act of 1900, petition for the company's name to be restored, and possibly the Court would not now allow a creditor to petition for a winding-up order, until he has got the name of the company restored to the register: Buckley, 9th Ed. 527.

(m) See the first two cases cited in last preceding note—in the latter

The fact that the company is in compulsory (n) or voluntary liquidation (o) will not prevent the name of the company being restored to the register under the section, but the Court will not make an order for this purpose unless it is shown that some good may accrue by the order going, e.g. that debts can be got in or that the company will be enabled to carry on its business, and that the company is carrying on its business or in operation (p). The Court has no power to impose a penalty as a condition of making an order for restoring the name of the company to the register (q).

Applications to restore a company's name to the register are usually made by petition. In some cases an order has been made on an originating summons, but this is contrary to the almost universal practice. The usual practice is to assign these matters to the winding-up Judge, but they may, apparently even when the company is in winding-up (s), be assigned a Judge of the Chancery Division, in which case such Judge will be ascertained by ballot in the ordinary way. Every petition should be headed in the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and in the Matter of the Company; the company's name in all cases coming as the second, and not, as in the case of petitions to alter the objects of the company or to reduce its capital, as the first title. The application must be by the company or a member thereof or a creditor. The company's name can presumably be used by any person who has a considerable holding of its shares (t). The Registrar of Joint Stock Companies must always be made a respondent and, though it is not necessary (u), it would appear desirable in all cases to have the company or its directors either as petitioners or as respondents. If of them the petition was served by advertisement—in the London Gazette and Times, and by sending a copy of the advertisement to the company's two principal creditors.

See order, post, pp. 770 and 771. The application must, where the company is in winding-up, bear a £2 impressed stamp. See the orders as to fees of July 31, 1908, and December 2, 1903. The order will in such case, if made in Court, bear a £1 impressed stamp: ibid.

(t) Anglo-American Exploration and Development Co., [1898] 1 Ch. 100; and see Johannesburg Mining and General Syndicate, [1901] W. N. 46, as to the company and not its liquidator being the proper petitioner.

(u) In Blandford Gas and Coke Co., 00128, of 1908, May 19, 1890, EADY, J., did not require the name of the company to be added, because the section did not require it; but he required the petitioners who were directors, to undertake to make the returns.

this is done the company can be ordered to pay the costs and to give the usual undertaking as to making returns required by the Board of Trade. The Court will sometimes, in ordering the petitioner to pay the costs of the Registrar, declare that such payment is to be without prejudice to any question between the company and the petitioner as to who shall ultimately bear such costs (uu). A summons for directions is never taken out in these cases now, and the petition is answered in the ordinary way, i.e. by writing on it the fiat of the Registrar fixing the day of hearing. It is unnecessary to advertise either the date of hearing or the presentation of the petition, but when an order is made restoring the name of a company, such order invariably directs the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies to insert an advertisement in the London Gazette only.

PETITION FOR RESTORING COMPANY'S NAME TO REGISTER.

Chancery Division.
MR. JUSTICE
In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908
and
In the Matter of the Company Limited.
TO HIS MAJESTY'S HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

The humble petition of the above-named Company (x) (hereinafter called the Company) sheweth as follows:—

1. The Company was registered under the Companies Act 1862 to 1900 on the day of 1901 with a capital of £ divided into shares of £ each.

2. The registered office of the Company is situate at

3. The objects for which the Company was formed are as follows: [Here set out the main objects for which the Company was formed], and other objects set forth in the Memorandum of Association thereof.

4. Of the said capital of the Company shares have been issued and the sum of 10*s*. has been or is deemed to have been paid-up in respect of each of such shares.

5. Ever since its incorporation the Company has carried on and it is now carrying on a large and prosperous business.

6. In the years 1909 and 1910 the Company omitted to make up and forward to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies (1) the annual lists and summaries as required by section 26 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908, and (2) a copy of the register containing the names addresses and the occupations of its directors and managers in compliance with section 75 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908, and in the year 1910 the Company changed its registered office from to but it omitted to give the said Registrar notice of such change as required by section 62 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908.

7. Under the circumstances aforesaid the Registrar of Joint (uu) This was done in Rockhouse Hotel Co., 0048 of 1912, NEVILLE, J., February 22nd, 1912. The petitioner in this case was a contributory.

(x) Or of A.B., a creditor or member, as the case may be, of the above-named company. Frequently two or three of the principal members or the liquidator join with the company as co-petitioners.

Stock Companies after taking as he alleges and the Company does not deny the preliminary steps required by section 242 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 caused the name of the Company to be struck off the register of Joint Stock Companies on the 1911 and notice thereof was published in the London Gazette of 1911.

8. The defaults and omissions made by the Company as stated in paragraph 6 hereof arose by reason of the inadvertence or negligence of a former secretary of the Company and the Company did not in fact receive any notice sent to it pursuant to the provisions of section 242 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 nor did any advertisement published in the London Gazette pursuant to the said section come to its knowledge at any time before the 19 .

9. By reason of the Company having been dissolved in manner aforesaid the Company is and will unless its name is restored to the register of Joint Stock Companies be unable to continue its business or to get in the book debts due to it and in particular the Company is unable to bring any action to recover a sum of £ which is now and has for the last six months been due and owing to it.

10. The Company was at the time of its name being struck off the register of Joint Stock Companies carrying on business and in operation and it is just that the name of the Company be restored to such register.

11. At the date when the name of the Company was struck off such register A.B. was the largest shareholder of the Company being the holder of shares (a).

Your Petitioner therefore humbly prays as follow:—

(1) That this Court may order that the name of the Company be restored to the register of Joint Stock Companies.

(2) That this Court do give such directions and make such provisions as to it may seem just for placing the Company and all other persons in the same position as nearly as may be as if its name had never been struck off such register.

(3) That such further or other order may be made as to this Court may seem meet.

NOTE.—It is intended to serve this petition upon the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies [and upon the Company] (b).

The petition will be supported by an affidavit of the petitioner or where the petitioner is the Company of one or more of its principal shareholders verifying and where necessary amplifying the facts set out in the petition and exhibiting the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company—and its certificate of incorporation and in some cases the certificate entitling it to commence business.

N. 46, referred to in the Scotch case of Healy v. Board of Trade (1903), 5 Fra. 644. Where a creditor is petitioner and the company is not made a respondent, as was apparently the case in Parrocha Iron Ore and Railway Co., Ltd. (Unreported), before WARRINGTON, J., on July 24, 1905, there is no one to give the undertaking.

(d) This order made in Brown Bayleys Steel Works, Ltd. (1905), 21 T. L. R. 374, is the common form of order. It is thought that BUCKLEY, J.'s remarks in this case as to the directors remaining personally liable, by reason of not giving directions relieving them from liability, are wrong. This would seem to be the view of Sir F. B. Palmer, vol. i. 10th Ed. pp. 1236 and 1237. The case is not referred to in the 9th (last) Ed. of Buckley.

FORM OF ADVERTISEMENT.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,

MR. JUSTICE NEVILLE.

In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908.

In the Matter of the Company Limited.

Notice is hereby given that by an order made the day of 1909 upon the petition of the above-named Company and of A.B. of in the county of Chairman of the said Company and of C.D. of in the county of respectively directors and contributories of the said Company and upon hearing counsel for the petitioners and for the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies and the petitioners by their counsel undertaking to make up and forward to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies (1) the annual list and summaries now in arrear for the years as required by section 26 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908.

A.B.
Registrar of Joint Stock Companies.

DEALINGS WITH DEPOSITS BY ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

Under the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, the Board of Trade are empowered to make rules as to (amongst other things) the investment of or dealing with deposits made under that Act, the payment of the interest or dividends from time to time accruing due on any securities in which deposits are for the time being invested and the withdrawal and transfer of such deposits. The rules so made are to have the same effect as if they were enacted in the Act and are to be laid before Parliament as soon as may be after they are made (f).

The Board of Trade, on June 6, 1909, issued the following order relating to these matters.

RULES RELATING TO DEPOSITS BY ASSURANCE COMPANIES PURSUANT TO SECTION 2 OF THE ASSURANCE COMPANIES ACT, 1909.

4. Where a lodgment of money or securities has been made under the preceding Rules (g) the Court may on the application of the Company order—

(a) Investment in such of the stocks funds or securities in which cash under the control of or subject to the order of the Court may for the time being be invested as the applicants desire and the Court thinks fit either by way of original investment or by way of variation of investment (h).

(b) Payment to the Company of the interest dividends or income from time to time accruing due on any stocks funds or securities in which the deposit is for the time being invested.

(c) Transfer or payment in the cases provided for in the rules following of the deposit or securities for the time being representing the same either from one ledger credit of the Company to another or out of Court.

(f) Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 2 (6).

(g) See supra, pp. 20 and 21, for these rules.

(h) This seems to limit the power of investment more than did the order made under the Life Assurance Act, 1870; see Blue Ribbon Life, Accident Mutual and Industrial Co (1890), 59 L. J. (CH.) 276.

5. In the subsequent provisions of these Rules the term "the deposit fund" means the money or securities deposited, or the stocks, funds, or securities for the time being representing the same, as the case may be.

6. In any case where it may appear to be just and equitable so to do, and in particular in any of the following cases, namely :—

(a) Where a Company having carried on or having intended to carry on only a class or classes of assurance business in respect of which a separate assurance fund is not required to be kept (that is to say either fire insurance business or accident insurance business) and having a deposit fund standing to the credit of the Company generally, intends subsequently to carry on a class of assurance business in respect of which a separate assurance fund is required to be kept ;

(b) where a Company having carried on employers' liability (i) insurance business or bond investment business (k) as the case may be and having a deposit fund standing to a special ledger credit in respect of the class of business in question, has a fund amounting to £40,000 set apart and secured for the satisfaction of the claims of policy-holders of that class, and intends subsequently to carry on in the first case bond investment business or in the second case employers' liability insurance business or in either of the said cases life assurance business ;

the Court may on the application of the Company order the deposit fund to be transferred from the general account of the Company to a special ledger credit in respect of a particular class of assurance business, or from one special ledger credit in respect of one particular class of assurance business to another special ledger credit in respect of another particular class of assurance business, or otherwise to be dealt with as may be just and equitable and not in contravention of any provisions of the Act.

7. In any case where it may be just and equitable so to do, and particularly in any of the following cases, namely :—

(a) Where a Company having carried on or having intended to carry on either fire insurance business, or accident insurance business, or both, and having a deposit fund standing to the credit of the Company generally, makes a further deposit in respect of any other class of assurance business ;

(i) With regard to employers' liability business, s. 33 (c) of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, contains the following provision :—

"As soon as the employers' liability fund set apart and secured for the satisfaction of the claims of policy holders of that class amounts to forty thousand pounds, the Paymaster General shall, if the company has made a deposit in respect of any other class of assurance business, return to the company the money deposited in respect of its employers' liability insurance business, and it shall not thereafter be necessary for the company to keep any sum deposited in respect of that business, so long as the sum deposited in respect of any other class of assurance business is kept deposited."

(k) S. 33 (c) of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, contains the same provisions in respect of bond investment business as those in respect of employers' liability insurance business mentioned in the last preceding note.

(b) where a Company has a deposit fund to a special ledger credit in respect of employers' liability business, and the employers' liability fund of the Company set apart and secured for the claims of policy-holders of that class amounts to £40,000, and the Company has or makes a further deposit in respect of any other class of assurance business as provided for in section 33 (e) of the Act;

(c) where a Company has a deposit fund to a special ledger credit in respect of bond investment business, and the bond investment fund of the Company set apart and secured for the claims of the policy-holders of that class amounts to £40,000, and the Company has or makes a further deposit in respect of any other class of assurance business as provided for in section 34 (c) of the Act;

(d) where a Company has ceased altogether to carry on within the United Kingdom, either assurance business of any class, or the particular class of assurance business to the special ledger credit whereof a deposit fund (not being the sole deposit fund) is standing, and all liabilities in respect of the deposit fund have been satisfied or are otherwise provided for;

the Court may, on the application of the Company, order the deposit fund to be paid or transferred out of Court and returned to the Company or as it shall direct.

9. Any application under these Rules to the Court shall be made in such manner as shall from time to time be prescribed by Rules of Court, and until otherwise prescribed in the like manner in which similar applications under the Life Assurance Companies Acts, 1870 to 1872, and the Employers Liability Insurance Companies Act, 1907, were made immediately prior to the commencement of the Act. Provided always that any application under Rule 6 or Rule 7 shall be served on the Board of Trade.

10. These Rules shall, so far as may be, extend to and authorize applications with regard to deposits already made by existing Companies under the provisions of the Life Assurance Companies Acts, 1870 to 1872, and the Employers Liability Insurance Companies Act, 1907, and for this purpose deposits made under the Life Assurance Companies Acts, 1870 to 1872, and the deposit funds representing the same shall primâ facie and in default of reason to the contrary be treated and dealt with as having been made in respect of the life assurance business of the Companies by or on behalf of which such deposits were made, and deposits made under the Employers Liability Insurance Companies Act, 1907, and the deposit funds representing the same shall primâ facie and in default of reason to the contrary, be treated and dealt with as having been made in respect of the employers' liability insurance business of the Companies by or on behalf of which such deposits were made.

Where any such deposit as in this Rule mentioned has been made by an Irish Company, the same may be ordered by the Supreme Court of Judicature in England to be transferred from the account of the Paymaster-General of the English Court to a corresponding account of the Accountant General of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland.

Under the Life Assurance Acts, 1870 to 1872, the power of the Court to order payment out to a company seems to have been far more limited. It could under them order payment out: (a) in the case mentioned in s. 3 of the Life Assurance Act, 1870, viz., so soon as its Life Assurance fund accumulated out of the premiums amounted to £40,000 (l); (b) where the company was dissolved or was in some other way released from all claims on the fund, and where there was no prospect of its continuing its business (m); and (c) where the money had been paid in unnecessarily, and in the mistaken belief that it was necessary to make such payment, and the company could not carry on any business which was within the Acts (n). In no other cases it would seem could the Court order payment out (o). Although the cases where the Court can order payment out have been extended it is thought that the cases where it will do so, will be rather fewer than more than formerly. Except in the cases of employers' liability insurance business and bond investment business, the Act does not give any right to payment out where a fund of £40,000 has been accumulated, and even in such cases the Act only requires payment out where there is a deposit in respect of some other business (p), and in the case of employers' liability business, any such business carried on outside the United Kingdom is not to be treated as part of the employers' liability business of the company (q). In one case (r), where the company's business covered accident business, and the Board of Trade had required a deposit under the Life Assurance Acts, 1870 and 1872, and one had also been made in respect of employers' liability insurance under the Act of 1907, the Court ordered £20,000 to be transferred to an account entituled "Ex parte the Company Employers' Liability Insurance business," and the costs of the petitioners and the Board of Trade to be taxed, and paid out of the other £20,000, the balance of which was to be paid to the petitioners. This case depended on the fact that accident policies are not policies on human life within the Act of 1909, whatever may have been the case under the earlier Acts. The old practice, which is retained, is for applications to be by petition as provided by the Rules of the Board of Trade of August 28, 1872, and this seems also to be the case with applications for a change of investment (s), and on applications as to payment of the interest accruing (t).

Under rr. 6 and 7 of the Rules of June 6, 1910 above set out, the application must, it would seem, always be made by the company, formerly where the deposit had been made by persons other than the company, they were the persons to apply for payment out (u), though it was desirable to join the company as a petitioner (x), and where the company was dissolved and another company was entitled to the fund, such other company was sole petitioner (y). Even now it may, perhaps, be best to join as co-petitioner with the company the persons who have made the deposit, or an assignee of the fund, if payment is to be made to them.

The petition should be sealed with the seal of the company, where payment is not to be made the person entitled to the fund and there has been no formal deed of assignment, and under the old rules where money had been deposited by persons other than the Company the petition was signed by such persons (who were made co-petitioners) their signatures being verified by affidavit (z). Where payment out is required by any rule the petition should set out such rule or the material part of such rule as the rules may be altered, and in such case the fact that it is set out will be convenient for future reference (a). These petitions must be presented in the Chancery Division (b), and the Judge before whom they are to come will be ascertained by ballot in the ordinary way. Where a change of investment is sought, there must be evidence of the desirability of change (c), and the petition must in all cases be verified by affidavit and the Paymaster's certificate as to the fund produced, and, in the case above-mentioned (cc), the petition must be served on the Board of Trade.

FORM OF PETITION BY ASSURANCE COMPANY FOR PAYMENT OUT (d).

Chancery Division.
MR. JUSTICE
In the Matter of "Ex parte the A.B. Co. Ltd. in respect of Employers' Liability Insurance Business"
and
In the Matter of the Assurance Companies Act 1909.

The humble petition of the A.B. Company Ltd. (hereinafter called the Company) sheweth as follows :—

1. The Company was incorporated under the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 on the day of August 1910 and has its registered office at in the City of London.

2. The objects for which the Company was formed are [here set out the principal objects] and certain other objects specified in its Memorandum of Association.

3. In pursuance of the requirements of the Assurance Companies Act 1909 and on the authority of a warrant issued by the Board of Trade and dated the day of 1910 a sum of £20,000 was paid into Court on the day of 1910 and in further pursuance of the requirements of the said Act and on the authority of a warrant issued by the Board of Trade and dated the day of 1910 a further sum of £20,000 was paid into Court on the day of 1910. Both the said payments were made by the subscribers of the Memorandum of Association of the Company in the name of the Company.

4. The said first-mentioned sum of £20,000 is now represented by the sum of £ . New Consols now standing to the credit of "Ex parte the Company in respect of Employers' Liability Insurance Business" being the sum of £ . New Consols referred to in the Payment Schedule to this petition and the said second mentioned sum of £20,000 is now represented by the sum of £ . New Consols now standing to the credit of "Ex parte the Company in respect of life assurance business."

5. The Company has the firstly above-mentioned deposit fund standing to the above-mentioned special ledger credit in respect of its employers' liability insurance business and the employers' liability fund of the Company set apart and secured for the satisfaction of the claims of policy-holders of that class amounts to £40,000 and the Company has a further deposit in respect of its life assurance business as is above-mentioned.

6. The Order of the Board of Trade dated the 6th day of June 1910 and made in pursuance of the power in that behalf conferred on the said Board by section 2 of the Assurance Companies Act 1909 provides by Rule 7 thereof that "In any case where it may be just and equitable so to do and particularly in any of the following cases namely :—

(d) There is no claim in this petition for payment of the interest on the sum which is to remain deposited in respect of life assurance business. There would, however, appear to be no reason why such a claim should not in a proper case be joined with a claim similar to the one in this petition.

(b) Where a Company has a deposit fund to a special ledger credit in respect of its employers' liability business and the employers' liability fund of the Company set apart and secured for the claims of policy-holders of that class amounts to £40,000 and the Company has or makes a further deposit in respect of any other class of assurance business as provided for by section 33 (e) of the Act . . . the Court may on the application of the Company order the deposit fund to be paid or transferred out of Court and returned to the Company or as it shall direct."

7. The Company desires that the deposit fund which is now standing to the above-mentioned special ledger account in respect of its employers' liability business shall subject to the payment of all proper costs of this application (e) be transferred or paid out of Court and returned to the Company and under the circumstances it is just and equitable that this should be done.

Your petitioner therefore humbly prays as follows :—

(1) That the costs of your petitioner and the Board of Trade of this application may be taxed by the Taxing Master.

(2) That the sum of £ New Consols now standing to the credit of " Ex parte the Company Employers' Liability Insurance Business " and mentioned in the Payment Schedule hereto may be dealt with in manner directed by the said schedule.

(3) Or that such other order may be made on the premises as to this Court shall seem meet.

And your petitioner will ever pray etc.

NOTE.—It is intended to serve this petition on the Board of Trade.

CHAPTER IX.

Winding-up.

Companies that can be wound up.

The Court can wind up companies which at the date of the winding-up petition (a) are registered under the Act or the Act of 1862, or the Joint Stock Companies Acts (b); (2) certain other companies in the Act called unregistered companies.

(1) With regard to the former class, there was formerly some doubt as to whether the Court could wind up companies which ought never to have been registered under the Act, but which in fact, had been registered and had obtained a certificate of incorporation. Thus it was held that a banking company, which, though not entitled to registration, was registered under the Joint Stock Banking Companies Act, 1857, could not be voluntarily wound up as a company registered under that Act (c), and that where the memorandum of association of a company had been signed by only six signatories, the company could not be wound up by the Court (d). It is true that these decisions seem scarcely consistent with either Oakes v. Turquand (e) or Peel's Case (f), and that it has been held that until the validity of the company's registration is challenged in proper proceedings, it must be treated as well registered (g), but they may

This expression means the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1856, the Joint Stock Companies Acts, 1856, 1857, the Joint Stock Banking Companies Act, 1857, and the Act to enable joint stock banking companies to be formed on the principle of limited liability, or any one or more of those Acts, as the case may require, but does not include the Act passed in the eighth year of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, c. 110. Such Companies need not re-register under the Act, see Torquay Bath Co. (1863), 32 Beav. 581; London India Rubber Co. (1866), 1 Ch. 329, and the definition of the expression "Company" in s. 285 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. Section 287 of the Act provides that a company in winding-up at the commencement of the Act will be wound-up under the Act or Acts in force when the winding-up commenced, and in the same manner and with the same incidents as if the Act had not passed.

possibly be good nowadays in the case of companies registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts, but, as regards companies registered under the Act of 1862, or under the present Act section 1 of the Companies Act, 1900 (which is retrospective), and section 17 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, seem to do away with the difficulty, and by making the certificate of the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies conclusive for all purposes, to render such companies capable of being wound up in all cases (h) ; but an English Court cannot wind up a Scotch or Irish company, and a Scotch Court cannot wind up an English or Irish company, and an Irish Court cannot wind up an English or Scotch company (i). It is thought that trades unions, which notwithstanding section 5 of the Trades Union Act, 1871, have managed to get registered as companies cannot be wound up by the Court (k).

Another exception to the general rule, if it can be called an exception, is that where the company has gone into voluntary winding-up, and has been dissolved by the expiration of three months from the date of the registration of the liquidator's final return (l), there can be no subsequent compulsory order if the petition has been presented after the dissolution (m), unless it would seem the dissolution is declared void under section 223 of the Act (n), or is set aside on the ground of fraud (o). This exception does not, however, hold at all clear how such registration can be set aside. See Princess of Reuss v. Boss (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 176 ; Glover v. Giles (1881), 18 C. D. 173 ; Lindley on Companies, 6th Ed. p. 151 n. (e).

(i) Scottish Joint Stock Trust, [1900] W. N. 114. These remarks only apply to registered companies.

(k) See s. 294 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, which provides that nothing in the Act is to affect the provisions of s. 5 of the Trade Union Act, 1871 : British Association of Glass Bottle Manufacturers v. Nettlefold (1911), 27 T. L. R. 527 ; Edinburgh and District Aerated Water v. Jenkinson (1904), 5 Fra. 1159. The latter case was the case of a company which was registered under the Act of 1862, and with regard to such companies as s. 294 is new, there would seem to be some difficulty in saying that the certificate is not conclusive ; but it must be borne in mind that the provisions of the Companies (Converted Societies) Act, 1910, are very sweeping.

(n) There was no provision similar to s. 223 at the time of the decisions in the last note.

(o) For a case where an attempt was made to get an order set aside on the ground of fraud, see Schooner Pond Coal Co., [1888] W. N. 70. Very possibly if the remedy under s. 223 of the Act is gone, by the expiration of two years from the date of the dissolution, there will be no remedy, even in the case of fraud.

good where the petition has been presented before the expiration of the three months (p), and it does not apply to defunct companies which have been struck off the register under section 242 of the Act (q). It is suggested in Buckley (9th edition, at p. 527), that the proper course in the case of a defunct company whose name has been struck off the register is first of all to get the company's name restored to the register, and then to petition, and it is pointed out that the order in Anglo-American Exploration and Development Co. (r) was made on a creditor's petition, and that at that time a creditor could not apply to have a company's name restored to the register—no doubt this would usually be the wiser course—but having regard to the fact that the liability of every director managing director and member is expressly preserved by the section (s), it would seem not to be absolutely necessary. A company formed with the object of carrying on its business entirely abroad, even assuming it ought never to have been registered here (t), and a company whose articles, or it is thought, whose memorandum contains illegal provisions (e.g. for bearer warrants being issued for partly paid shares) can be wound up under the Act (u), and also a railway company registered under Part VII. of the Act (x) and companies registered under the Act which have statutory powers for purposes of public utility (y). The fact that a company is carrying on illegal business, and was conceived and brought forth in fraud and for the purpose of carrying on such illegal business, does not deprive the Court of the jurisdiction to wind it up, but is a reason why it should exercise such jurisdiction (z).

(2) With regard to unregistered companies, Part VIII. of the Act deals with these, and provides as follows:—

"For the purposes of this Part of this Act the expression 'unregistered company' shall not include a railway company incorporated by Act of Parliament (except in so far as is provided by the Companies registered under any Act other than the Joint Stock Companies Acts, the Companies Act, 1862, and the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, are within the section (b), if at the date of the petition they consist of more than seven members (c). Under the Act of 1862 it was necessary for a company to consist of more than seven members at the time of the petition, and the representatives of deceased members and the trustees in bankruptcy of bankrupt members did not count as members for this purpose (d); at the same time the expression "members" was not confined to shareholders, it included, for instance, members of guarantee companies which had no share capital and statutory corporators (e). The fact that a company has been dissolved under the old Companies Acts will, where its affairs have not been completely wound up, be no bar to the jurisdiction (f).

(a) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 267. The provisions for winding up unregistered companies, and particularly limited partnerships, differ in some cases from those for winding up registered companies. These differences will be dealt with as they occur, see Hughes & Co., [1911] 1 Ch. 342 for an instance of a winding-up order against a limited partnership.

J. 117, it was suggested by EADY, J., that under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, it was not necessary for an unregistered company to have more than seven members in order to enable it to be wound up. It will be observed that s. 267 of that Act merely "includes" the companies therein-named under the expression "unregistered companies."

In this case eight persons were incorporated by special Act into a company, and were made the first directors, and were to continue until the first ordinary meeting, which was never held. The Act provided for a director's qualification of 40 shares. These shares were duly allotted to all the eight persons, but five of them subsequently transferred their shares to another one of such eight persons. It was held that the transferors remained members for the purposes of the section.

(f) Family Endowment Society (1870), 5 Ch. 118. The distinction between the expression "dissolution" in the Companies Act, 1862, and the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and the same expression in other Acts is brought out in Re Ruddington Land, [1909] 1 Ch. 701.

Turning, first of all, to the exception in the case of railway companies incorporated by special Act of Parliament. Apparently dock companies which have powers for constructing railways are not railway companies for the purposes of this section if such powers are merely ancillary to the main purposes of the company (g), although such companies are railway companies within the definition of a railway in the Railway Companies Act, 1867 (h). Tramway companies incorporated by special Act of Parliament are also not railway companies for the purposes of the section (i).

The section, moreover, has nothing to do with railway companies, which, though incorporated by special Act of Parliament, have registered under Part VII. of the Act. These are wound up under the earlier sections of the Act (k).

Section 4 of the Abandonment of Railways Act, 1869, is as follows :—

"Where a warrant has been granted under the principal Acts for the abandonment of the whole railway of any railway company a petition for winding-up the affairs of such company may be presented under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867 by the company or any person who under the last-mentioned Acts is authorized to present a petition (l) for winding-up a company or by any person upon whose application the Board of Trade may proceed in pursuance of section 32 of the Railway Companies (Scotland) Act, 1867 and the Railway Companies Act, 1867 as the case may be and for that purpose the railway company whose railway is so authorized to be abandoned shall be deemed to be an unregistered company which may be wound-up under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867, and the provisions of the principal Acts which remain in force relating to winding-up shall be construed as if the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867, and the winding-up provided by this section were therein referred to."

The principal Acts referred to in this section are the Abandonment of Railways Act, 1850, and the Railway Companies Act, 1867, and the Railway Companies (Scotland) Act, 1867. Under the Act of 1850 (as amended by 14 & 15 Vict. c. 64) (m), the Board of Trade can grant a warrant for the abandonment of any railway belonging to a company authorized by any Act of Parliament then (n) already passed. This power has been extended to railways belonging to railway companies authorized to make railways by Acts of Parliament passed before the Session of Parliament of 1867 (o).

It would seem that with regard to railway companies authorized at a later date, the Board of Trade cannot grant a warrant, and the Court can consequently, apart from any provision in any special Act of Parliament, not make a winding-up order in the case of such companies (p).

In the case of companies incorporated by special Act of Parliament, other than railway companies, the Court has jurisdiction to make a winding-up order, and it can also wind-up companies on whom statutory powers have been conferred. Thus, it has wound up tramway companies (q), canal companies (r), water companies (s), ferry companies (t), and telegraph companies incorporated by special Act of Parliament (u); and it has held that it has jurisdiction to do so in the case of a docks company (x). It has also wound up a company registered under the Companies Acts, but having statutory powers of supplying water (y). Again, in the case of an association, which was recognised as a corporation by an Act of Parliament, which gave it certain powers, an order was only refused on the ground that no good would result from making it (z).

It has also made orders in the cases of companies incorporated by the Crown by Royal Charter (a), and on companies privileged by the Crown under the powers conferred on it by 7 Will. IV. and 1 Vict. c. 73 (b).

The Court can also wind up registered building societies under the Building Societies Act, 1874, and the Building Societies Act, Friendly societies, whether registered (f) or unregistered (g), can be wound up as unregistered companies. With regard to societies under the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts, it was formerly held that these could not be wound-up as unregistered companies, as the Acts which regulated them provided a code by which they were to be wound-up, and, in particular, provided that they were to be wound-up by the County Court (h); but the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1893 (i) has now assimilated the procedure in the case of these societies, to the procedure in the case of limited companies (k). The Court can also wind-up a loan society (l) and an ordinary partnership which consists of more than seven members (m), and a partnership for working mines in the Stannaries (n).

The Court (o) may order the winding-up of an assurance company in accordance with the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and the provisions of that Act apply subject, however, to the following modifications.

Such a company may be ordered to be wound-up on the petition of ten or more policy-holders (p) owning policies of an aggregate value of not less than £10,000; but a petition presented by policy-holders may not be presented except by the leave of the Court, and the Court cannot grant leave until a primâ facie case has been established to the satisfaction of the Court and until security for costs for such amounts as the Court may think reasonable has been given (q). These provisions would appear not to affect the right conferred by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, on an ordinary creditor or a contributory of such a company to present a petition.

The meaning of assurance company has already been discussed (r). It is obvious that it may include companies not capable of being wound-up under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as unregistered companies—e.g. some trades unions and bodies consisting of less than seven members (s).

It was held (t) under the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870, that in the case of a company which was already in voluntary winding-up it was unnecessary to show a primâ facie case, the decision does not, however, seem to be very satisfactory. It is thought that now where policy-holders wish to petition, their first step will be to take out a summons asking for leave to do so, and that security should be fixed. Such summons should, it is thought, be intituled

(o) This expression means the High Court of Justice in England, except that in the case of a company registered or having its head office in Ireland it means the High Court of Justice in Ireland, and in the case of a company registered or having its head office in Scotland, it means the Court of Session in either division thereof: Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 29.

(p) I.e. the person who for the time being is the legal holder of the policy for securing the contract with the assurance company (ibid.), and see supra for the meaning of policy in the case of the different companies, see supra, p. 17, and note (t) on that page, and note (w) on p. 18. An investment bond-holder will, where he has not made all the payments under his bond, be a policy-holder within the meaning of this section: British Equitable Bond and Mortgage Corporation, [1910] 1 Ch. 574.

(q) Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 15. The provisions of the section as to policy-holders are restrictive and not enabling, and may in some cases deprive a contingent or prospective creditor of the rights given him by s. 137 (1) (c) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908: British Equitable Bond and Mortgage Corporation, [1910] 1 Ch. 574.

(s) See s. 35 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, as to unregistered trade unions, and cp. also Great Britain Mutual Society (1880), 16 C. D. 246; but it is difficult to see why such a company could not have been wound up as an unregistered company.

In the Matter of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909 (u); also In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (x); and In the Matter of an intended petition against the A.B. Company, Ltd., it need not be served on any one (y).

A trade union cannot be wound-up as an unregistered society (z).

The Court has jurisdiction to wind-up as an unregistered company a foreign company consisting of more than seven members if it has an office and assets here (a), and it would seem to be sufficient to give the Court jurisdiction that the company has had an office and transacted business here (b). Nor will the fact that an order for winding the company up (c), or for continuing its winding-up subject to supervision (d) has been made by a competent Court of the place of the company's incorporation make any difference to the jurisdiction of the Court here. In such case the order will usually be restricted and the sanction of the Court will be required if further proceedings are taken (dd), and the liquidation here will be ancillary to that of the Court of the country where the company is incorporated; but in spite of its desire to assist the foreign Court, the Court here will not give up the forensic rules which govern the conduct of its own liquidation (e). The Court will not wind-up an inchoate foreign company, which has never really come into existence, and it would probably not wind-up a partnership for promoting a foreign company (f).

The case of Madrid and Valencia Railway (1852), 3 De G. & Sm. 127; 2 Mac. & G. 169, was the case of an English company. Where the head office of a company being wound-up is situated out of England and the liquidation takes place partly in England and partly elsewhere, such reduction may be made in the fees ordered by the order as to fees of December 2, 1903, as is sanctioned by the Lord Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury on the application of the Board of Trade order as to fees of December 2, 1903. Apparently the order as to fees of July 31, 1908, does not affect this.

Pearson, J., held in one case (g) that he had no jurisdiction to wind-up a foreign company which had no assets and no place of business in England. This case seems to a certain extent to run contrary to the case of Commercial Bank of India (h), for there the company had, at the date of the order, no office and no business anywhere, and to Union Bank of Calcutta (i), where Knight Bruce, V.C., assumed without deciding that he had jurisdiction to make an order. The learned Vice-Chancellor apparently took the view that the company had never had an office here; but it is thought that Pearson, J.'s, decision is right for section 268 (1) of the Act seems to contemplate all unregistered companies having a place of business in the United Kingdom (k).

For this reason it has been held that a society under the Literary and Scientific Institutions Act, 1854, is not an unregistered company which can be wound-up under the Act (l) and under the old winding-up Acts it was held that a club could not be wound-up (m).

Section 209 of the Companies Act, 1862, required that all insurance companies completely registered under the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1844, and all companies required to register by an Act repealed by the Companies Act, 1862, should register under that Act (n), and one of the penalties for a company not registering was that it should be incapable of suing either at law or in equity, but such a company was not made incapable of being made a defendant to a suit either at law or in equity (o), and it was not made an illegal company (p). The result of these provisions was that such companies if not registered could not be wound-up on the petition of the company, even if a shareholder was joined as co-petitioner, but could be wound-up on the petition of a shareholder (q). But after the passing of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870, the Court had power under section 21 of that Act to wind-up life assurance companies (r), and section 15 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, would now seem to give the same power in the case of all Assurance Companies within the meaning of that Act.

The Court cannot wind-up as an unregistered company any unregistered company association or partnership which, owing to the provisions of section 1 of the Act (prohibiting large partnerships) or the corresponding provisions of the Companies Act, 1862, ought to have registered (s); but it can wind-up a foreign company founded fraudulently, and for the purpose of carrying on an illegal business (t).

A winding-up order made in a case where there was no jurisdiction to make it, will not, it would seem, be binding on a stranger, as, for instance, a purchaser from the liquidator (u), but it will be binding on the company itself and its contributories (x), and it is thought, on a creditor at the date of the order (y), and it can only be set aside on an appeal (x), and cannot be disputed in a subsidiary application in the winding-up (z).

CIRCUMSTANCES UNDER WHICH COMPANY MAY BE WOUND-UP BY COURT.

A company registered under the Act, or the Companies Act, 1862, or the Joint Stock Companies Acts (a) may be wound-up by the Court in the following cases:—

(i) If the company has by special resolution resolved that the company be wound-up by the Court;
(ii) If default is made in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting (aa);
(iii) If the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation, or suspends its business for a whole year;
(iv) If the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or, in the case of any other company, below seven;
(v) If the company is unable to pay its debts;

(aa) Such an order was made on Kent Outcrop Coal Co., [1912] W. N. 26, where it was stated (erroneously) that this was the first case under this provision. On these petitions the Court has made orders directing the statutory report to be filed or the statutory meeting to be held.

(vi) If the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound-up (b).

Cases (i) and (ii), supra, seem to call for no special remark.

With regard to (iii). The fact that a company has not commenced its business for a whole year, or has suspended its business for a like period, is not necessarily a reason why the Court should in its discretion wind it up. The Court must be satisfied either that it has no intention of ever carrying on its business—a point on which the views of the majority of the shareholders on the register (for the Court will not go behind the register) is important—or that it is impossible for the company ever to carry on its business in the future (c). Thus, in one case (d), a company was formed to build a warehouse over a station which the Metropolitan Railway was to build, and to work such warehouse in conjunction with the railway company, the railway company had not, within a year of the company's incorporation, acquired the land for its station, but was actively pursuing negotiations for so doing, and it was held that these facts constituted a sufficient answer to a petition presented against the wishes of the majority of the shareholders, and a satisfactory explanation of why the company had not started its business. Again, where a company formed to build, use, and let assembly rooms had started building such rooms, but had then stopped their building for about three years owing to the depressed state of trade in the neighbourhood, the Court declined to make an order against the wishes of the majority of the shareholders (e).

In one case under the old winding-up Acts, the Court came to the conclusion that a company formed to work a foreign railway had completely ceased to carry on its business, and that this, coupled with a reduction of capital, was sufficient ground for making a winding-up order (f).

The case of Tumacacori Mining Co. (1874), 17 Eq. 534, seems difficult to support except on the ground that the Vice-Chancellor was perfectly satisfied that if the company continued it never would commence business. business both here and abroad, the mere fact that it has not within the year started business here, although it has done so abroad, would not seem to be enough to enable the Court to wind it up under this heading (g), although, no doubt, such fact will be an element which will, if there are other circumstances pointing the same way, enable the Court to come to the conclusion that it is just and equitable to make a winding-up order (h). An order was made under this provision in the case of a company with the same name as a foreign company, which latter company had complied with the provisions of the Acts as to foreign companies (i). In this case the two companies were intimately connected, and their co-existence was thought likely to lead to confusion and to be injurious to creditors.

With regard to case (iv) there seem to be no reported cases where the Court has made a winding-up order on the ground of the number of the company's members having fallen below two or seven, as the case may be. Indeed, the fact of a company having a very small number of members would appear to be a reason why the Court should not, at all events on a shareholder's petition, make an order (k). Thus, the Court has declined to make an order on the ground that a company had only nine members (l), and in two other cases where there were only seven members (m). But Malins, V.C., made an order where there were only seven members (n), and the Court will certainly make an order in such cases if a case of fraud is made (o), or if there is a case for investigation, even though there is an existing voluntary winding-up (p). On the petition of a creditor the mere fact of the company having a small number of shareholders will apparently make no difference (q).

on the Company, by leaving the same at its registered office, a demand under his hand requiring the Company to pay the sum so due, and the Company has for three weeks thereafter neglected to pay the sum, or to secure or compound for it to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor.

(ii) If in England or Ireland, execution or other process issued on a judgment decree or order of any Court in favour of a creditor of the Company, is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part ; or

(iii) If, in Scotland, the induciae of a charge for payment on an extract decree, or an extract registered bond, or an extract registered protest have expired without payment being made ; or

(iv) If it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the Company is unable to pay its debts, and in determining whether a Company is unable to pay its debts, the Court shall take into account the contingent and prospective liabilities of the Company (r).

To found a case under sub-section (i) of this section, twenty-one days must elapse between the date when the demand is served on the company, and the date when the petition is presented (s). Where a company has no registered office, the demand may be served at its unregistered office (t). Such a demand cannot be waived, though, no doubt, it can be withdrawn either expressly or by implication where the person making the demand has not proceeded with the matter, but the fact of doing nothing for a period of about six months after the right to present a petition accrued, followed by a correspondence of two months before a petition was actually presented has in one case (u) been held not to be amount to a withdrawal.

The corresponding section (x) of the Act of 1862 enabled a creditor by assignment or otherwise to whom the company was indebted at law or in equity to serve a demand. Under this section an assignee of part of a debt was entitled to serve a demand (y), although such an assignment is probably only an equitable assignment (z), and the question arises as to whether owing to the omission of the words "at law or in equity" in the present section, such an assignee loses this right ? It is thought that this will be the effect of the omission of these words (a), for Byrne, J.'s, decision in Montgomery Moore Ship

Collision Doors (b), seems to have been mainly, if not entirely, founded on dicta in Combined Weighing and Advertising Machine Co. (c), and on the decision in Ex parte Cooper (d), and the dicta of Bowen, L.J. (c), in the former case, were based on these words, and the decision in the latter case turned on similar words in the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. Where only part of a debt is assigned, it would seem that the relation of debtor and creditor does not exist between the company and the assignee, the rights of the latter being against the property (e).

The first clause of the section was not intended to enable a creditor whose debt is bonâ fide disputed to force the company, under threat of a winding-up petition, to pay his whole claim, and the company cannot be said to have "neglected" to pay a debt where it can put forward a genuine reason for not so doing (f); where a petition has been presented in respect of a genuinely disputed debt, the proper course is to dismiss it (g), and not to allow it to stand over until the matter can be tried, unless the Court takes the view that it is doubtful whether the company will be able to pay the debt if established (h). Where, however, the dispute depends on the construction of a document before the Court (i), or the contention of the company, however honest, is obviously, and on the face of it, utterly untenable (k), there the Court will try the question itself, and make the order. The Court will make an order on a petition presented by a small creditor, but supported by other creditors to a large amount, notwithstanding the fact that a shareholder of the company comes forward with an offer to pay the petitioner's debt (l), and it would seem that a demand under this subsection will enable members of the company and creditors, other than those making the demand, to present petitions (m). Where judgment creditors have refrained from levying execution, because they have been told by the solicitor of the company that the company has no assets on which they can levy execution, there will be sufficient ground for a winding-up petition, without further proof of the inability of the company to pay its debts (n).

Where bills of the company have been dishonoured (o), or it has failed to pay an undisputed debt (p), it will be deemed to be unable to pay its debts, but where a company has called its creditors together and asked them to give it further credit, this would by itself not seem to be enough to justify a winding-up petition (q), nor will an order be made merely because it is shown that the company is carrying on business at a loss (r). In ascertaining whether a company is or is not unable to pay its debts, regard will be had to the capital of the company which can be called up (s), but not, it would seem, to reserve capital which can only be called up in a winding-up (t).

Formerly a company could not be said to be unable to pay its debts when it had found money to pay all the debts that had become due, in due course as they became due (u), and the mere fact of suits being brought against it was not enough to show it was insolvent (x); but now the section (y) provides that the contingent and prospective liabilities of a company must be taken into account in determining whether a company is unable to pay its debts.

The Court can also make an order for winding-up a company when it is of opinion that it is just and equitable to do so. This power is very wide in terms, but it was long ago held that it must be read with the rest of the section, and that an order would only be made in cases which were ejusdem generis with the other cases for winding-up mentioned in the section (z). On two occasions (a) Vaughan Williams, J., stated that this rule had been considerably departed from in late years, but it is not thought that the cases bear out this proposition, nor is it quite easy to see, having regard to the antiquity and high authority of the cases that established the rule, how any Court short of the House of Lords could now depart from it.

The most important class of cases which come under this heading are the cases where it has become impossible for the company to carry on its business, or to use the common expression where the substratum of the company has gone.

These cases trace back to the old partnership case of Baring v. Dix (b), in which a partnership for the purpose of working a particular patent was dissolved on the patent turning out to be worthless, these cases are within the ejusdem generis rule because they are analogous to the case mentioned in section 129 (iii) of the Act, of a company not carrying on or suspending its business (c). Thus, a company formed to construct and work an electric telegraph which had never carried on business and had no reasonable prospect of so doing was wound-up (d), and a company formed to work a particular mine, to which it turned out that it had no title, was, in spite of wide powers in its memorandum, ordered to be wound-up on this ground (e); and the same fate befell a company formed to acquire and work a German patent which it could not get, for making coffee from dates; although it had wide powers in its memorandum and was making coffee from dates (f).

An order was made in the case of a company formed to carry on a banking business in Northamptonshire, which was only carrying on in London a business of land speculation and investing in various securities (g), and also in the case of a banking company, which, though not actually insolvent, had not sufficient assets ever to be able really to carry on its business (h). The Court also made an order in the case of a mining company formed to acquire and work mines in "West Australia and elsewhere," which, after its original mine in West Australia had failed, proposed to acquire and work a mine in Victoria (i), and in the case of a mining company which, after its original mine had failed, had authorized its directors to look out for another property (k).

In one case a company formed for laying cables, and in particular, a cable from Portugal to the Azores, under a concession which it was alleged had failed, had an interest in another cable, but had not sufficient money to finish its own cable. Under these circumstances the Court ordered the petition to stand over until it was ascertained whether the concession had really become void, or whether it was merely voidable (l). A company for letting seats for the Diamond Jubilee was, after that function had taken place, ordered to be wound-up, although it proposed to carry on business, and had very wide powers in its memorandum (m).

For these reasons, too, a company formed to carry on a fraudulent business, which, after being restrained from so doing, had no substantial business left (n), and a company formed for the purpose of carrying on a fraudulent and illegal lottery business have been wound-up (o). Orders, too, have been made against companies where they themselves have ceased to carry on their business, and their debenture-holders are doing this for them (p), and in the case of mere bubble companies, which have, practically speaking, never had a business to carry on (q). An order was made where a company had sold all its assets except a few worthless patents and a small sum in cash, the Court taking the view that it was practically impossible for the company to carry on its business (r), and the same view seems to have been taken in Wey and Arun Junction Canal Co. (s), and the Scotch Court made an order where a company formed to purchase, charter, and hire vessels had lost its only vessel, was liable for damage it had done, and had only a small sum of money left, but in this case a majority of the shareholders, almost, but not quite, sufficient to pass a special resolution, supported the petition, and so no doubt the Court to a certain extent treated the case as analogous to the case where a special resolution for the compulsory winding-up of the company had been passed (t). But the Court is extremely slow to take the view that the substratum of a company has gone before it has had a fair chance to start its business (u), and, having regard to section 129 (iii), this is especially so where the company has not been formed for a year.

A strong example of this is to be found in the Scotch case of Scobie v. Atlas Works (x), there the company was formed to work a patent for making horseshoes, which, it was alleged, was worthless, and the Court declined to make an order because the company had only been in existence for about six months, and had scarcely started business. This case was very similar in its facts to the German Date Coffee Co. (y), where the company had also not been formed a year.

Again, the Court declined to make an order in the case of a company which during the two years following its incorporation, had not started business; in this case the preparations for starting business were in an advanced state, and a large majority of the shareholders opposed the petition (z).

Again, the Court will not make an order where part only of the company's business has become impossible.

Thus, in the leading case of the Suburban Hotel Co. (a), an order was refused in the case of a company formed to construct and carry on a hotel in or about London which had had to abandon a big hotel it was constructing in Hampstead Heath, and an order was not made in the case of a company formed to work a skating rink on a large scale, which, owing to insufficient means, subsequently started working a much smaller rink (b). In both these cases a large majority of the shareholders opposed the winding-up. Again, a company formed to make gas under a particular patent which had failed, was not wound-up; in this case the company was carrying on business, and the Court took the view that, having regard to the wide powers in its memorandum, the making of gas under the patent was only one of the objects of the company (c).

No order will be made against a company formed to carry on two specific businesses, which has abandoned only one of them (d), and the Court has declined to make an order where a concession of certain auriferous property had been granted to the company, but no one knew where this property was, although commissions were at the date of the petition being sent out to ascertain (e). In the case of a mining company whose mine was alleged to be worthless, the Court declined to make an order on the petition of a small shareholder, not being satisfied that the mine was in truth worthless (f).

Other cases also bearing, it is thought, an analogy to the case where a company has ceased to carry on its business are the cases where it is impossible for the company to carry on its business owing to internal disputes having brought the affairs of the company to a deadlock.

There are apparently four of these cases. The first and fourth are cases which have already been mentioned as cases where the ejusdem generis rule has been stated to be relaxed. With regard to the first (g) the facts are not set out in any report, but from an examination of the file they appear to have been as follows. Two managing directors were appointed by the articles, both of them had ceased to hold office in 1896, and in May of that year a new managing director was appointed; but in 1897 it was discovered that there had been no quorum present at the meeting at which he was appointed. Meetings were then summoned with a view of altering the article as to the quorum and appointing a managing director. Three meetings were held, but nothing was done at them as the members differed in their views, and a three-quarters majority could not be obtained. The Court apparently took the view that the company could not carry on its business, and made a winding-up order.

In the second (h) the Court of Appeal sustained a compulsory order on the ground of a deadlock, there being 14,000 votes against and 15,000 for it. In this case the Court was satisfied that the business could no longer be carried on.

In the third case (i) an order was refused because it was not absolutely impossible to carry on the company's business, and there was therefore held not to be a deadlock. In this case there were two large shareholders. These two shareholders were the only directors, they held 6000 shares each, and were at absolute variance as to the conduct of the company's business. There were only five other members of the company, these held one share each, and it was thought that two of these would vote one way and three another. Warrington, J., declined to make an order because there was a majority one way or another, and such majority could elect a third director, and the business of the company could in this way be carried on.

Symington v. Symington Quarries (k), the fourth case, was a Scotch case. There had been an arrangement by two brothers to sell their business to a company, each of such brothers was to have the same number of shares as the other, and a third brother was to have a few shares to hold the balance between them. The company entered into possession, but no formal agreement was ever entered into, and the only shares allotted were seven—one to each of the signatories of the memorandum. These signatories favoured one of the two first-mentioned brothers, and when trouble arose, appointed him to be sole director. The Court made a winding-up order on the ground that there was a deadlock, and also that the substratum of the company was gone, the sole director being appointed and kept in place by persons who had no interest. This case went on the relaxation of the ejusdem generis rule. It seems to go much further than Sailing Ship " Kentmere " (l), and to be quite inconsistent with the Furrier's Alliance Case (m), and Fromms Extract Co. (n), and it is submitted that it was wrongly decided. Surely the injured brother could either have recovered his property or got the shares which were the consideration for the sale of it, without a winding-up order ?

The mere fact that there has been fraud in the promotion of the company or otherwise (o), or that the directors are or may be liable at the suit of the company to disgorge moneys improperly received (p), or that the company is doing something which is ultra vires, e.g. issuing shares at discount (q) or entering into an illegal amalgamation (r), does not make it just and equitable to wind-up a company, at all events, on a contributory's petition. If the company is doing an ultra vires act, the remedy of a member is by injunction (r), and the fraud may be waived by the company (s) ; but where there has been fraud in the promotion of the company, the fact that the persons guilty of the fraud control a majority of the votes of the company may afford a ground for winding-up the company, for in such case there can be no waiver of the fraud (t). Of course, we are here not discussing the cases, which have already been mentioned where the whole basis of the company is fraudulent. In many cases of fraud there will have been no proper statutory report filed, and possibly an order may be made on this ground or on grounds which are ejusdem generis to it. Fraud must be clearly alleged in the winding-up petition (u).

An order may be sometimes made under the just and equitable clauses where though the company is not technically insolvent or unable to pay its debts it is commercially insolvent. In ascertaining whether this is the case the Court will take into account the existing and probable assets of the company, and its existing liabilities (x), and it is thought now also its contingent liabilities (y). It will include the uncalled capital (x) other, it would seem, than capital which can only be called-up in a winding-up (z) on the assets side of the account; but in such cases the Court has nothing to do with possible future mismanagement, or future profit or loss, prudence or imprudence (x).

The mere fact that a company is carrying on its business at a loss is no reason for making an order, at all events against the wishes of the majority of its members (a), and the Court has declined to make an order against an industrial and provident society, which has suspended withdrawals, where it did not appear to be reasonably certain that it could not meet its liabilities (b).

In one case an order was made in the case of a company formed but not completely registered under the old Acts to work a concession, which had subsequently been withdrawn. In this case the company supported the petition, it being thought that a winding-up order was the most convenient way of finally disposing of the assets of the company (c).

CIRCUMSTANCES UNDER WHICH UNREGISTERED COMPANIES MAY BE WOUND-UP.

The different sorts of unregistered companies which can be wound-up have already been discussed. Such companies can be wound-up in the following cases :—

(b) If the Company is unable to pay its debts;
(c) If the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the Company should be wound-up; (d)

An unregistered company will, for the purposes of the Act, be deemed to be unable to pay its debts—

(a) If a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the Company is indebted in a sum exceeding fifty pounds then due, has served on the Company, by leaving at its principal place of business, or by delivering to the secretary or some director, manager, or principal officer of the Company, or by otherwise serving in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, a demand under his hand requiring the Company to pay the sum so due, and the Company has for three weeks after the service of the demand neglected to pay the sum, or to secure or compound for it to the satisfaction of the creditor;
(b) If any action or other proceeding has been instituted against any member for any debt or demand due, or claimed to be due, from the Company, or from him in his character of member, and notice in writing of the institution of the action or proceeding having been served on the Company by leaving the same at its principal place of business, or by delivering it to the secretary, or some director, manager, or principal officer of the Company, or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, and the Company has not within ten days after service of the notice paid, secured, or compounded for the debt or demand, or procured the action or proceedings to be stayed, or indemnified the defendant to his reasonable satisfaction against the action or proceeding, and against all costs damages and expenses to be incurred by him by reason of the same;
(c) If in England or Ireland execution or other process issued on a judgment, decree, or order obtained in any Court in favour of a creditor against the Company, or any member thereof as such, or any person authorized to be sued as nominal defendant on behalf of the Company, is returned unsatisfied;
(d) If in Scotland the induciæ of a charge for payment on an extract decree, or an extract registered bond, or an extract registered protest, have expired without payment being made;
(e) If it is otherwise proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the Company is unable to pay its debts (e).

(e) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 268 (1) (iv.).

In the case of limited partnerships the provisions of the Act with respect to winding-up apply with such modifications (if any) as are provided by rules made by the Lord Chancellor with the concurrence of the President of the Board of Trade, and with the substitution of general partners for directors (f).

The present provisions are contained in the Limited Partnership (Winding-up) Rules, of 1909, which, with certain modifications, incorporate alike the Act and the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (g). So far as material for the present purpose, they provide that for the purposes of the application of section 268 of the Act the expression "principal place of business" as used in that section is to mean the principal place of business as registered, and the word "member" as used in that section is to mean a general partner only, and is not to include a limited partner (h), and that every demand for payment and every notice of the institution of any action or other proceeding under section 268 of the Act as applied by these rules, and every petition for the winding-up of a limited partnership unless presented in the name of the firm by all the general partners jointly, if there are more than one shall be served upon the limited partnership at the principal place of business of the limited partnership as registered by delivering the same to one of the general partners there or to some person having at the time of service the control or management of the partnership business there unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise direct.

Every petition for the winding-up of a limited partnership presented in the name of a firm by all the general partners jointly if there are more than one or presented by any general partner must be served on each of the limited partners personally unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise direct.

Every notice and other document requiring to be served upon the limited partnership for the service of which no special mode is prescribed, may be served by post or by leaving the same at the principal place of business of the limited partnership as registered in an envelope addressed to the limited partnership in the firm's name as registered (i).

Nothing in this part of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (k), affects the operation of any enactment which provides for (f) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 268 (1) (vii.).

(g) By rule 1, the definition rule, "limited partnership" is substituted for "company," "general partner" for "director," and for "secretary" and for "secretary or chief officer," "manager clerk or servant" for "officer," "partner" for "member or shareholder,' and "principal place of business as registered" for "registered office," in the construction of the rules.

any partnership association or company being wound-up or being wound-up as a company or as an unregistered company under any enactment repealed by the Act except that references in any such first-mentioned enactment to any such repealed enactment are to be read as references to the corresponding provisions, if any, of the Consolidation Act (l).

The Assurance Companies Act, 1909, besides incorporating the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (m), contains the following additional provisions :—

Where the assurance business or any part of the assurance business of an assurance company has been transferred to another company under an arrangement in pursuance of which the first-mentioned company (in this section called the subsidiary company) or the creditors thereof has or have claims against the company to which such transfer was made (in this section called the principal company), then, if the principal company is being wound up by or under the supervision of the Court, the Court shall (subject as hereinafter mentioned) order the subsidiary company to be wound-up in conjunction with the principal company, and may by the same or any subsequent order, appoint the same person to be liquidator for the two companies, and make provision for such other matters as may seem to the Court necessary, with a view to the companies being wound-up as if they were one company (n). A company will not be a subsidiary company unless there has been an actual transfer of its assurance business, and a company will not be a subsidiary company where another company holds the bulk of its shares, guarantees its policies, and enters into a treaty of mutual re-insurance with it (o).

The commencement of the winding-up of the principal company shall, save as otherwise ordered by the Court, be the commencement of the winding-up of the subsidiary company.

In adjusting the rights and liabilities of the members of the several companies between themselves, the Court shall have regard to the constitution of the companies, and to the arrangements entered into between the companies, in the same manner as the Court has regard to the rights and liabilities of different classes of contributories in the case of the winding-up of a single company, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

Where any company alleged to be subsidiary is not in process of being wound-up at the same time as the principal company to which it is subsidiary, the Court shall not direct the subsidiary company to be wound-up unless, after hearing all objections (if any) that may be urged by or on behalf of the company against its being wound-up, the Court is of opinion that the company is subsidiary to the principal company, and that the winding-up of the company in conjunction with the principal company is just and equitable.

An application may be made in relation to the winding-up of any subsidiary company in conjunction with a principal company by any creditor of, or person interested in, the principal or subsidiary company.

Where a company stands in the relation of a principal company to one company, and in the relation of a subsidiary company to some other company, or where there are several companies standing in the relation of subsidiary companies to one principal company, the Court may deal with any number of such companies together or in separate groups, as it thinks most expedient, upon the principles laid down in this section (p).

If default in complying with any of the provisions of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, continue for a period of three months after notice of default by the Board of Trade (which notice shall be published in one or more newspapers as the Board of Trade upon the application of one or more policy-holders or shareholders direct) the default will be a ground upon which the Court may order the winding-up of the company in accordance with the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (q).

COURTS HAVING JURISDICTION TO WIND-UP COMPANIES.

The Courts having jurisdiction to wind-up companies registered in England under the Act or the Companies Act, 1862, or the Joint Stock Companies Acts (qq), are the High Court, the Chancery Courts of the Counties Palatine of Lancaster and Durham, and the County Courts.

Where the amount of the share capital of a company paid-up or credited as paid-up exceeds ten thousand pounds, a petition to wind-up the company must be presented to the High Court, or, in the case of a company whose registered office (r) is situate within the jurisdiction of either of the Palatine Courts aforesaid, either to the High Court or to the Palatine Court having jurisdiction (s).

(qq) See supra, p. 773, note (b), for definition of Joint Stock Companies Acts.

(r) The expression "registered office" in this section means the place which has longest been the registered office of the company during the six months immediately preceding the presentation of the petition for winding-up: Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 131 (8); but it has been held that where a petition has been presented in a county court within whose district the company has not had its registered office for the requisite period, such Court can make an order under sub-s. 7: Southsea Garage (1911), 27 T. L. R. 295; see also Ex parte French (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 63; Ex parte May (1884), 14 Q. B. D. 37, ss. 95 and 97 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, are, however, differently worded.

(s) See Longendale Cotton Spinning Co. (1878), 8 C. D. 150. The Palatine Court of Durham is regulated by the Palatine Court of Durham Act, 1889, and the Chancellor of the County Palatine exercises the powers of the Judge, and the Palatine Court of Lancaster by the Court of Chancery of Lancaster Acts, 1850 and 1854, and the Chancery

Where the amount of the share capital of a company paid-up or credited as paid-up does not exceed ten thousand pounds, and the registered office (ss) of the company is situated within the jurisdiction of a County Court having jurisdiction under the Act, a petition to wind-up the company must be presented to that County Court.

Where a company is formed for working mines within the Stannaries, and is not shown to be actually working mines beyond the limits of the Stannaries, or to be engaged in any other undertaking beyond those limits, or to have entered into a contract for such working or undertaking, a petition to wind-up the company must be presented to the Court exercising the Stannaries jurisdiction, whatever may be the amount of the capital of the company, and wherever the registered office of the company is situate.

The Lord Chancellor may by order exclude a County Court from having jurisdiction under the Act, and for the purposes of such jurisdiction may attach its district, or any part thereof, to the High Court or any other County Court, and may revoke such order or any like order made under the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890.

In exercising his powers under the section the Lord Chancellor must provide that a County Court shall not have jurisdiction under the Act unless it has for the time being jurisdiction in bankruptcy, and orders made under these provisions do not affect any jurisdiction or powers vested in any Court by virtue of the Stannaries Jurisdiction (Abolition) Act, 1896.

The section does not invalidate proceedings by reason of their having been taken in the wrong Court (t).

It was held under the corresponding section of the Act of 1890 (u), that the section gave jurisdiction over all companies, and that, except so far as cut down by this section the old jurisdiction of the Chancery Division remained on foot, and that consequently petitions for the winding-up of companies without a share capital were rightly presented to the High Court (x), it is thought that the present Act does not alter this. The various County Courts which are excluded from Bankruptcy jurisdiction and also from jurisdiction in the winding-up of companies are specified in the County Courts (Bankruptcy and Winding-up) Jurisdiction Order, 1899 (y). This order expressly of Lancaster Act 1890, and the Vice-Chancellor of the Duchy exercises the powers of the Judge. Section 237 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, provides that rules and directions given by the Lord Chancellor under that section shall be adopted by the authority for the time being empowered to make rules for the Palatine Court of Lancaster. The Judge of that Court must sanction directions as to the remuneration of officers of that Court. As a matter of fact, no rules have been made by either Palatine Court, and the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, are applicable. Appeals from both Courts are to the Court of Appeal.

provides that nothing therein contained is to limit or affect the London Bankruptcy District or the jurisdiction of the High Court therein, and that nothing in the order contained is to give jurisdiction to any County Court within such jurisdiction (z). Even before this order it was held that the High Court alone had jurisdiction in the case of a company within the district of the City of London Court (a), or of an ordinary London County Court (b).

Subject to the orders of the Lord Chancellor, the place of sitting of each County Court having jurisdiction under the Act is, for the purposes of such jurisdiction, the town and place in which the Court holds its Sittings for the general business of the Court, under the County Court Acts (c).

Subject to the provisions of the Act, the times of the sitting of each Court, other than the High Court, in matters of the winding-up of companies are those which are appointed for the transaction of the general business of the Court, unless the Judge of any such Court otherwise orders (d).

It is the duty of the high bailiff of a County Court to serve such orders, summonses, petitions, and notices as the Court may require him to serve ; to execute warrants and other process ; to attend any sittings of the Court (but not sittings in Chambers) ; and to do and perform all such things as may be required of him by the Court.

But this rule is not to be construed to require any order, summons, petition, or notice to be served by a bailiff or officer of the Court which is not specially by the Acts or Rules required to be so served, unless the Court in any particular proceeding by order specially so directs (e).

A County Court Judge has no power to issue a writ addressed to the sheriff of the county (f), he cannot order any matter before him to be referred to arbitration or vary any order he has made (g), nor can he object to take any proceedings transferred to him by the High Court if the High Court had jurisdiction to make the order (h).

In this case an order was made in the High Court in Chambers, which it was said should have been made in Court, and the proceedings were transferred to the County Court, it was held that the County Court must deal with the matter, even if the order should have been made in Court.

The Court exercising the Stannaries jurisdiction (i) is the proper Court to wind-up a company which is formed for working mines in the Stannaries, and is not shown to be actually working any mines beyond those limits, or to be engaged in any undertaking beyond those limits, or to have entered into a contract for such working or undertaking. And this is so even in the case of a company which has never had a mine within the Stannaries district, and whose memorandum allows of its working mines outside that jurisdiction (k), and although it is thought that this jurisdiction is not exclusive (l), the High Court will usually remit petitions and other winding-up matters relating to such companies to that Court (m).

The Court having jurisdiction to wind-up companies registered in Ireland is the High Court of Ireland (n), and, where the High Court in Ireland makes an order for winding-up a company it may, if it things fit, direct that all subsequent proceedings in the winding-up be had in the Court of Bankruptcy having jurisdiction in the place in which the registered office of the company is situate; and thereupon those proceedings will be taken in that Court of Bankruptcy accordingly, and that Court will, for the purposes of the winding-up, have all the powers of the High Court in Ireland (o).

The Court having jurisdiction to wind-up companies registered in Scotland, is the Court of Session in either division thereof, or, in the event of a remit to a permanent Lord Ordinary, that Lord Ordinary, during session, and in time of vacation, the Lord Ordinary on the bills (p).

Where the Court in Scotland makes a winding-up order, it may, if it thinks fit, at any time direct all subsequent proceedings in the winding-up to be taken before one of the permanent Lords Ordinary, and remit the winding-up to him accordingly, and thereupon that Lord Ordinary will for the purposes of the winding-up, have all the powers and jurisdiction of the Court; but the Lord Ordinary may report to the division of the Court any matter which may arise in the course of the winding-up (q).

An unregistered company is, for the purpose of determining the Court having jurisdiction in the matter of the winding-up, deemed to be registered in that part of the United Kingdom where its principal place of business is situate; or if it has a principal place of business situate in more than one part of the United Kingdom, then in each part of the United Kingdom where it has a principal place of business; and the principal place of business situate in that part of the United Kingdom in which proceedings are being instituted will, for all the purposes of the winding-up, be deemed to be the registered office of the company (r).

The Court having jurisdiction to wind-up a railway company under the Abandonment of Railways Act, 1850, and the Abandonment of Railways Act, 1869, and the Acts amending them, is the High Court in England or Ireland, or the Court of Session in Scotland, according as the railway was authorized to be made in England, Ireland, or Scotland, and the special provisions of those Acts apply to the winding-up with the substitution of references to the Act for references to the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867 (s).

Section 131 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, does not apply to limited partnerships, but every petition for the winding-up of a limited partnership registered in England must be presented to the High Court which is subject to what is said below the Court having jurisdiction to wind-up limited partnerships in England, but a Judge of the High Court may by the winding-up order (ss) or by any further order direct that the winding up of a limited partnership whose principal place of business as registered is situate within the jurisdiction of either of the Palatine Courts or of a County Court having winding-up jurisdiction, shall proceed in the Chancery Court of the County Palatine or in the County Court within the jurisdiction of which such office is situate, and thereupon the winding-up will proceed accordingly, and such Palatine or County Court will, for the purpose of such winding-up, have all the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court in relation to such winding-up, and every officer of such Palatine Court or County Court who as the prescribed (t) officer in relation to the winding-up of companies in that Court is bound to perform any duties in relation to such winding-up, must perform the same duties in relation to the winding-up of a limited partnership, and has for that purpose all the powers of the prescribed (t) officer of the High Court (u).

In the case of assurance companies they will be wound-up by the High Court, unless they are registered or have their head office in Ireland or in Scotland, in which cases the High Court in Ireland or the Court of Session in Scotland, as the case may be, will be the Court to wind them up (x).

With regard to building societies, the question as to whether building societies certified under the Building Societies Act, 1836, after 1856, but never incorporated as required by the Building Societies Act, 1894, are not illegal associations, and therefore incapable of being wound-up, has already been discussed ; subject to this question, societies certified under the Act of 1836 could always be wound-up by the High Court in the same way as an ordinary company (y), but where a building society had registered under the Building Societies Act, 1874, between the date of an order dismissing a petition against it and an appeal from such order, the Court of Appeal had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal (z). The Building Societies Act, 1874, did not alter the law as regards such societies unless they became incorporated under that Act (a), but it provided that all Building Societies incorporated under it could be terminated or dissolved in certain ways (b), one of which was " By winding-up either voluntarily under the supervision of the Court, or by the Court if the Court shall so order on the petition of any member authorized by three-fourths of the members (c) present at a General meeting of the society specially summoned for the purpose to present the same on behalf of the society or on the petition of any judgment creditor for not less than £50, but not otherwise."

The expression "the Court" is defined by the Act (d) as meaning: in England, the County Court of the district in which the chief office or place of meeting for business was situate; in Scotland, the Sheriff Court of the county in which such chief office or place of business was situate; and in Ireland, the Civil Bill Court—now the County Court—within the jurisdiction of which such chief office or place of business was situate.

It was held that under these provisions the High Court had no jurisdiction to wind-up a building society incorporated under the Act of 1874, and could not transfer any winding-up pending in a County Court to the High Court (e), In a winding-up under these provisions the County Court was governed by the law which governed the High Court in cases before it (f), and alterations in that law (e.g. the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890) affected the winding-up of these societies (g).

The Building Societies Act, 1894, provides that notwithstanding anything in the Building Societies Acts, a Building Society under those Acts (h) shall be deemed to be a company within the meaning of the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, and that proceedings in the winding-up of any such society which at the date of the passing of the Act were pending in a County Court, might, on the application of the Registrar of Friendly Societies, with the consent of the Secretary of State, be transferred to the High Court, and that thereupon the provisions of the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890 should, so far as applicable, apply (i). This brings the law relating to building societies into line with the law relating to ordinary companies, so far as the courts which have jurisdiction to wind-up are concerned.

With regard to Industrial and Provident Societies, under the original Act of 1852, and the Winding-up Acts then in force, the High Court could wind-up these societies (k). But the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862, altered this, and gave the County Court exclusive jurisdiction over these societies whether they had registered under the Act, or had omitted to do so (l), unless they had registered under the Companies Act, 1862. This was not altered by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1876 (m), the County Court administering the law which from time to time governed the winding up of companies (n). The Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1893, provides (o) that a registered society (p) may be dissolved (inter alia)—

"By an order to wind up a Society or a resolution for the winding-up thereof made as is directed in regard to Companies by the Companies Acts 1862 to 1890 the provisions whereof shall apply to any such order or resolution except that the term Registrar shall for the purpose of such winding up have the meaning given to it by this Act (q)."

"Any proceedings in the winding-up of a registered Society which at the passing of this Act are pending in any County Court may on application by or on behalf of the Registrar (q) with the consent of the Treasury be transferred to the High Court and thereupon the Companies (Winding-up) Act 1890 shall so far as applicable apply thereto accordingly."

The Court for winding up these societies, even though not registered as companies, is therefore now the same Court as if they were registered under the Companies Act, 1862, or the existing Act (r).

The County Court Rules, 1903 (s) provide that—

"The provisions of the Companies Acts 1862 to 1890 and the rules made thereunder so far as they relate to winding-up shall apply to the winding-up of societies registered under the Building Societies Act 1874 and the Acts amending the same or under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 and the winding-up of any such Societies shall be conducted in all respects as if such Societies were companies registered under any of the said Companies Acts. Costs shall be taxed according to the scale of costs for the time being in use in the Supreme Court."

Every Court in England having jurisdiction under this Act to wind-up a company has, for the purposes of that jurisdiction, all the powers of the High Court, and every prescribed (t) officer of the Court must perform any duties which an officer of the High Court may discharge by order of the Judge thereof or otherwise in relation to the winding-up of a company (u). County Court Judges acting under the winding-up jurisdiction thus given to them are, for the purpose of such jurisdiction, in the same position as High Court Judges, they are not liable to certiorari (x) or prohibition (y), and the remedy of a person aggrieved by any order they may make is by appeal to a Divisional Court. It would seem, however, that a mandamus will lie against a County Court Judge who declines to hear a matter remitted to him (z).

The Act, however, does not give any County Court jurisdiction to decide questions which have arisen before and outside the winding up, between the company and a stranger (a).

Subject to general rules and to orders of transfer made under the authority of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, and the Acts amending it, the jurisdiction to wind-up companies of the High Court in England under the Act is, as the Lord Chancellor may from time to time by general order direct, to be exercised, either generally or in specified classes of cases, either by such Judge or Judges of the Chancery Division of the High Court as the Lord Chancellor may assign to exercise that jurisdiction or by the Judge who for the time being exercises the bankruptcy jurisdiction of the High Court (b)

By an order of the 11th January, 1908, the jurisdiction of the High Courts in Companies (Winding-up) is assigned to Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady and Mr. Justice Neville. It is exercised by Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady in the terms in which he is taking non-witness work, and by Mr. Justice Neville (the Judge who is bracketted with him) in the other terms.

in the Court in which the proceedings were commenced, although it may not be the Court in which they ought to have been commenced.

The powers of transfer given by the foregoing provisions of this section may, subject to and in accordance with general rules, be exercised by the Lord Chancellor or by any Judge of the High Court having jurisdiction under this Act, or, as regards any case within the jurisdiction of any other Court, by the Judge of that Court (c).

The powers of transfer and retainer under this section only apply to courts which have jurisdiction under the Act, and the High Court has no power to remit a winding-up to a County Court which has no winding-up jurisdiction (d).

The effect of the section seems to be to give the High Court jurisdiction in the case of all English companies, including companies formed for working mines in the Stannaries (e).

The High Court has jurisdiction under this section to make a winding-up order in the case of a company whose paid-up capital is £10,000 or under, and to remit all further proceedings to the County Court (f), or to make an order without remitting such proceedings (g).

Where there is a difficult question of law as to the jurisdiction of any Court to make a winding-up order, the Court will order that the winding up be transferred from a County Court to the High Court (h), and it would seem that it will also do so where there is a winding-up in a County Court, which is intimately connected with a winding-up in the High Court (i).

Orders for transfer and retainer can be made under this section as soon as a petition has been presented (k), and also in cases of applications under section 193 of the Act in a voluntary winding-up (l).

The Judge of the High Court may at any time for good cause shown order any proceedings in any Court other than the High Court to be transferred to the High Court, or any proceedings in the High Court to be transferred from the High Court to any other Court (m).

The Judge of any Court, other than the High Court (n) or a Palatine Court, may at any time, for good cause shown, order any proceedings which have been commenced or are pending in his Court to be transferred to any Court which has jurisdiction to order the winding-up of a company, not being the High Court or a Palatine Court (o).

In a winding-up by the Court, notice of an application for a transfer of proceedings must, before the hearing thereof, be served by the applicant on the Official Receiver (p) of the Court in which the proceedings are pending and on the Official Receiver of the Court to which the proceedings are sought to be transferred (q).

When an order for the transfer of proceedings has been made—

(1) The person on whose application the transfer has been made must lodge with the Registrar of the Court (r) to which the proceedings are transferred a sealed copy (s) of the order of transfer.

(2) In a winding-up by the Court the Official Receiver of the Court to which the proceedings are transferred will become the Official Receiver in the proceedings.

(3) The records of the proceedings must be transmitted to the Registrar of the Court to which the proceedings are transferred, and in a winding-up by the Court such Registrar, as soon as he has received the records, must give notice of the transfer to the Official Receiver of his Court, who must give notice of the transfer to the Board of Trade.

(4) The proceedings will receive a new distinctive number (t).

part of the district of any County Court from the district and jurisdiction of the High Court, any winding-up matters pending in the Court or district to which the order relates will become transferred to such Court as is mentioned for the purpose in the order; and, thereupon, the Rules as to transfer of proceedings will apply to the transfer of such pending proceedings in all respects as if the proceedings had been transferred by order of a Court having power to transfer proceedings (u).

Applications for transfer in all Courts are made in chambers (x), and are therefore made by summons (y). They come before the Judge in person. Where the liquidator of the company is the applicant, the summons will be an ex parte summons (z). Where a winding-up has been properly commenced in the High Court, the Judge will usually be very slow to transfer it to another Court, and the fact that a debenture-holder's action is already pending in another Court will not be a sufficient ground for such an application (a).

Court to the County Court of holden at and that the costs of this application may be provided for.

Dated the day of 19 .

This summons was taken out by of solicitors for the said X.Y.

To the said C.D.

NOTE.—If you do not attend in person or by your solicitor at the time and place above-mentioned such order will be made and proceedings taken as the Judge (or Registrar) may think right and expedient.

The summons must be served two clear days before the return thereof, unless in any case it is otherwise ordered (c) : it must be supported by an affidavit setting out the reasons for transfer.

The affidavit in support must (as is the case in all applications by summons in a winding-up) be filed, and notice of such filing must be served on the opposite party at the time of the service of the summons. The opposite party must file his evidence in answer within eight days of the service of the summons, and such notice and the applicant's evidence in reply must be filed within three days from such last-mentioned time (Practice Directions, June, 1892) (d).

Where an affidavit is presented for filing out of time such affidavit will only be received on the undertaking of the solicitor to abide by the order of the Court as to the solicitor's right to charge any such costs against his client (e).

No application for the transfer of the winding-up of a company or any proceeding therein from a County Court to the High Court will be entertained until the list of parties who have given notice of their intention to attend the hearing of the petition has been closed. The party applying for such transfer must give four days' notice by (c) The Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, contain no special provision as to the time to elapse between the service and the return of a summons, and therefore the Ordinary Practice of the Supreme Court applies, see ibid., r. 218, and O. 54, r. 4 (E.), R. S. C; see also Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 23, as to service, infra, p. 1018. Where the application is by originating summons, as would be the case where an application is made to transfer a winding-up from a county court to the High Court, the title will be "In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and in the Matter of a petition presented in the County Court of holden at in the Matter of the A.B. postal letter of such application to the petitioner and to all parties named in such list. The letter must state that unless notice is given to the applicant by any of such parties of intention to oppose, the application for such transfer will be taken as not objected to by such parties.

No costs will be allowed to any parties appearing to support or oppose a transfer unless for special reasons the Judge shall otherwise determine (Practice Direction, May, 1892) (f).

All documents filed in the winding-up office must have a stitching margin of at least one inch. If this rule is not complied with in the case of any document such document will not be accepted except by the leave of the Registrar (Practice Directions, February 15, 1893) (f).

Orders can be made under O. 35, r. 16, R. S. C. (h) for the removal of a winding-up from the Liverpool or Manchester District Registry, and such orders will be made where the petition was wrongly presented there, or where the winding-up can be dealt with more conveniently in London (i).

If any question arises in any winding-up proceeding in a County Court which all the parties to the proceeding, or which one of them and the Judge of the Court, desire to have determined in the first instance in the High Court, the Judge can state the facts in the form of a special case for the opinion of the High Court, and thereupon the special case and the proceedings, or such of them as may be required, will be transmitted to the High Court for the purposes of the determination (m).

PERSONS WHO MAY PRESENT A PETITION.

Section 137 of the Act deals with the persons who are entitled to present a winding-up petition. It provides as follows :—

(1) "An application to the Court for the winding-up of a Company "shall be by petition, presented subject to the provisions of this section "either by the Company, or by any creditor or creditors (including any "contingent or prospective creditor or creditors), contributory or contri- "butories (n), or by all or any of those parties, together or separately : "Provided that—

"(a) A contributory shall not be entitled to present a petition for "winding-up a Company unless—

"(i) Either the number of members is reduced, in the case "of a private Company, below two, or, in the case of any other "Company, below seven ; or

"(ii) The shares in respect of which he is a contributory, "or some of them, either were originally allotted to him or "have been held by him, and registered in his name, for at "least six months during the eighteen months before the "commencement of the winding-up, or have devolved on him "through the death of a former holder ; and

"(b) A petition for winding-up a Company on the ground of default "in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory "meetings shall not be presented by any person except a share- "holder, nor before the expiration of fourteen days after the "last day on which the meeting ought to have been held ; and

"(c) The Court shall not give a hearing to a petition for winding-up "a Company by a contingent or prospective creditor until "such security for costs has been given as the Court thinks "reasonable and until a primâ facie case for winding-up has "been established to the satisfaction of the Court (o).

(m) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 133 (3). This section applied to Building Societies even before the Building Societies Act, 1894 ; Portsea Island Building Society, [1893] 1 Ch. 205.

(n) As to Building Societies under the Act of 1874, see s. 32 of that Act, supra, pp. 809 and 810.

(o) The wording of this sub-section

"(2) Where a Company is being wound up voluntarily or subject to "supervision in England, a petition may be presented by the official "receiver attached to the Court, as well as by any other person authorized "in that behalf under the other provisions of this section, but the Court "shall not make a winding-up order on the petition unless it is satisfied "that the voluntary winding-up or winding-up subject to supervision "cannot be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors "or contributories (p).

"(3) Where under the provisions of this Part of this Act any person "as being the husband of a female contributory is himself a contributory, "and a share has during the whole or any part of the six months been held "by or registered in the name of the wife or by or in the name of a trustee "for the wife or for the husband the share shall for the purposes of this "section be deemed to have been held by and registered in the name of "the husband" (q).

A petition for winding-up a trustee savings bank may be presented by the National Debt Commissioners, or by a commissioner appointed under the Trustee Savings Banks Act, 1887, as well as by any person authorized under the other provisions of the Act to present a petition for winding-up a company (r).

With regard to limited partnerships the provisions of section 137, subsection (1), paragraphs (a) and (b), and sub-section (3) do not apply (s).

To turn first of all to creditors entitled to present a petition, it has already been shown that a disputed debt is rarely, if ever, a good ground for a winding-up petition.

Formerly persons who were contingent or prospective creditors could not petition. Thus a debenture-holder, where no principal follows closely the wording of the corresponding provisions of s. 21 of the Life Assurance Act, 1870, now repealed. The practice is to mark the petition with a special fiat in the following form: "This Court doth order that this petition be referred to chambers to inquire whether a primâ facie case within the meaning of s. 137 (c) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, is established, and to consider the security for costs to be given pursuant to the same section, and the result of such inquiry is to be certified to the Court." The matter is then heard ex parte before the Registrar in chambers on affidavit evidence: if he is satisfied he writes on the back of the petition, "I hereby certify that a primâ facie case that the company is unable to pay its debts and that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound-up, has been established to the satisfaction of the Judge, and that security for costs has been given to the amount of £ ;" see British Equitable Bond and Mortgage Corporation, No. 1 of 1910 (Manchester District Registry) Mr. District Registrar Watts, March 17th, 1910, [1910] 1 Ch. 574.

money or interest was due under his debenture (t), and the holder of a bill of exchange which had not matured, even though he had notice that the bill of exchange would not be met at maturity (u), could not present a petition, and a landlord was not entitled to petition in the middle of a quarter for rent which would become payable at the end of the quarter (x). It is true that in one case (y) an order was made on the petition of creditors who had agreed to postpone their rights of payment, but there at all events, there had at one time been a debt due, and, moreover, the order was made by the consent of all parties with a view of enabling a scheme under the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870, to be carried through. Now, however, even a person whose debt is not due, and will only become due at a future date, if he makes payments in the meantime is a good petitioner (z).

A winding-up order will not be made on the petition of a person who, after a petition has been actually presented, has taken an assignment of the debt and the right to petition (a), but it would seem that a creditor by assignment can petition, even though he has admittedly purchased the debt with a view to getting a winding-up order (b).

It was held under the old Act that a person who was a creditor only in equity, e.g. the assignee of part of a debt, could present a petition (c). It is possible that this is no longer the law with regard to equitable creditors, though it may be held that an assignment of a specified part of a debt is a good assignment within section 25 (6) of the Judicature Act, 1873 (d) ; if this is so, such an assignee is a creditor at law, and can, of course, petition.

assigned to a company, neither the mortgagees nor sureties for the original mortgagor are in the absence of a covenant by the company with them creditors who can petition for its winding-up (e).

Secured creditors are entitled to present a winding-up petition, and do not thereby prejudice their security in any way (f), but where a secured creditor has taken no steps to enforce his security, and such security covers all the assets of the company, it would seem that the Court will be slow to make an order unless such creditor can show he will or may get something out of a winding-up order which he could not get out of an action for enforcing his security (g). It was at one time held that persons who held securities over the property of statutory companies could not, where they had a statutory remedy by the appointment of a receiver, get an order for the winding-up of such companies (h). This view has, however, not prevailed, and such a creditor can get an order where he has appointed a receiver and failed thereby to get his debt paid (i), or where he has simply got judgment for his debt (k), or it is thought in other cases where a secured creditor of a company could get an order.

The holder of bearer debentures can get an order (l), but where debenture-holders (m) or debenture stock holders (n) have no direct covenant for payment from a company, but rely on a covenant with trustees of a covering deed, under which they are cestuis qui trustent, there the trustees alone are creditors of the company, and the debenture-holder or debenture stock holder cannot petition. It will be otherwise where the debenture or debenture stock certificate (o), gives a direct covenant with the company, or where interest is in arrear, and there are coupons for it which are negotiable instruments (p).

from a company, neither he (q), nor, it would seem, the person against whom such order has been made (r), is a creditor who can petition to wind up the company; they could probably jointly petition (s), and the garnishor can in a proper case obtain judgment under O. 42, r. 24, R. S. C., and then present a petition in respect of such judgment, but where there is property on which execution can be levied, execution, and not an order of this nature, is the proper remedy in respect of a garnishee order (t). Where a person has parted with his interest in a debt, he is not a proper sole petitioner, even though there has been no assignment legal or equitable (u). A creditor for an unliquidated or unascertained amount cannot present a winding-up petition. Thus, where a company had taken possession of land under the Lands Clauses Acts, and the amount it had to pay had been fixed, but the title had not been investigated, it was held that the owner of the land had not got a good petitioning creditor's debt (x), and a similar result followed where the claim was based on alleged fraudulent misrepresentations (y). In such cases the claimant must convert his claim into a judgment before he can petition (y). A judgment creditor is not bound on a petition to show that his judgment has been regularly obtained, but where it is impeached the Judge may stand the petition over until the question is settled in a separate action (z), or he may try the question on the hearing of the petition itself (a).

An illegal debt will not support a petition (b). A debt incurred in a voluntary winding up will be sufficient to support a petition for a compulsory order, and also it is thought, for an order to continue the voluntary winding up under supervision (c). In one case where a company on presentation of a petition against it paid part of the petitioning creditor's debt, and agreed to pay the rest on a certain day, and the petitioner, on the company making default, proceeded with his petition, an order was made on the terms that he should pay back the money he had received (d).

The Court is very unwilling to allow its winding-up jurisdiction to be used for the purpose of collecting small debts, and it has therefore made a rule that in the absence of special circumstances it will not make a winding-up order, where the petitioning creditor's debt is under £50 (e). But this rule does not hold where special grounds for a winding-up order are shown (f), or where it is obvious that the company is making use of the rule for the purpose of defeating its creditors (g) or where the petition is supported by other creditors whose debts with that of the petitioning creditor exceed £50 (h). The executor of a creditor can petition before he has proved the will (i). Where a judgment creditor had had his judgment reversed between the presentation and hearing of the petition, the petition was dismissed with costs (k). The Scotch Courts apparently take the view that the fact that the petitioning creditor's debt is under £50 is no reason for declining to make a winding-up order, even where the company has no assets (l).

With regard to contributories, the term "contributory" means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company (m) in the event of its being wound-up (n).

In the event of a company being wound up, every present and past member is subject to the provisions of section 123 of the Act (for limiting liability, etc.) liable to contribute to the assets of the company (o).

Under the old Act it was held (p) that a contributory included a fully paid shareholder, because he was liable to contribute to the assets of the company under section 38 of the Act of 1862 (q), although it was true that the later words of that section took away such liability. Some emphasis was laid in these decisions on the words "under this Act," in section 74 of the Act of 1862, but probably the absence of such words in the existing section does not make any difference.

With regard to share warrant holders "the bearer of a share "warrant may if the articles so provide be deemed to be a member "of the company within the meaning of this Act either to the full "extent or for any purposes defined in the articles" (r). It would seem, therefore, that a share warrant holder is, at all events, where the articles provide that he is to be a member for all purposes, a contributory (s), but he will in many cases where section 137 (1) (a) (ii) (t) applies, be precluded from petitioning, as the shares in such share warrant will not have been "held by him and registered" in his name for at least six out of the eighteen months preceding the winding-up (u).

Under section 137 (3) the shares have only to be "held by or registered" in the name of the wife or a trustee for the husband or wife.

As the expression "share" usually includes "stock" in the Act (x), it is thought that the section will not exclude stockholders.

A fully paid shareholder will, however, have to prove and allege in his petition that there will be substantial assets for distribution among the shareholders (y), though possibly, since the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, less will in some cases have to be shown in this way than formerly.

Advanced (z) and withdrawing members (a) of building societies, unless, in the latter case, they have been paid off (b), are contributories (c).

It would also seem that persons liable to be placed on the B list of contributories are entitled to petition always assuming they are not precluded by section 137 (1) (a) (ii) of the Act (d).

With regard to section 137 (a) (ii) of the Act, as already pointed out, it may preclude share warrant holders from petitioning in some cases, but a person in whose name shares have been registered will not be precluded from petitioning by the fact that he has not been beneficially interested in the shares during all or part of the requisite six months (e).

It has been held that where an order was made requiring a company to allot certain shares to a person, and to register them in his name, and the company made default for a period of six months, such person was not precluded by the section from petitioning (f); but where the Court is dealing with these provisions, it usually will not deal with the question of whether a person ought to have been registered or to have been an original allottee, but will have regard only to what has actually happened (g). A shareholder in a statutory company can petition (h).

A company cannot by its articles in any way derogate from a shareholder's right to petition (i), and it is doubtful whether it can enter into an agreement with a member or any other person precluding him from petitioning, on the whole, however, it is thought that such an agreement would be binding (k). At one time it was considered that the fact of a shareholder being in arrear with calls was an absolute bar to his presenting his petition (l), and that if this fact appeared on the petition it rendered it demurrable (m). This view was not the view originally taken by the Courts (n), and it has not prevailed, for a petitioner has been allowed to proceed with his petition on paying the amount of his arrears into Court (o), and on his undertaking that the order, if made, should not be drawn up till all arrears of calls were paid (p). In this last case the petition was ultimately dismissed, and a peremptory order was made on the petitioner to pay his calls and interest, and also a debt due from him within a week. Usually, however, no winding-up order will be made unless all calls have been paid or paid into Court (p).

A petitioner who, while his winding-up petition is pending, votes for a resolution for voluntary winding-up will find it difficult to get a compulsory order, but the fact of his having so voted will not affect him if he ask for a winding-up subject to supervision (q).

ABUSE OF THE PROCESS OF THE COURT.

A person who threatens to present a petition which, if presented, would amount to an abuse of the process of the Court, will be restrained by injunction from so doing. Thus, in the case of disputed debts, petitioners have been restrained from presenting petitions in respect of such debts (r). In these cases the Court has jurisdiction to interfere, because the mere presentation of a petition would or might do irreparable damage (s).

In these cases the application must be made in a separate action started for the purpose, but an order may be on an interlocutory application in such action (t). For similar reasons where a petition has been presented which amounts to an abuse of the process of the Court, an order may be made on an interlocutory motion in the winding-up restraining the petitioner from advertising the petition and staying all further proceedings therein (u). On an application of this sort the Court has power to dismiss the petition with costs (x).

Such orders have been made where the petition showed that the petitioner was not entitled to petition because he had not held his shares for a sufficient period (y), and in cases where the petitioning creditor's debt was disputed (x).

A person presenting a petition may also find himself cast in damages in an action for malicious prosecution. In such cases the injury which will be presumed to be caused to its fair fame and credit by the public advertisement of the petition, will be all the damage the company will have to show, and if the company has paid its promoters and is still a going concern, the fact that there was fraud in its promotion, or that articles detrimental to it have appeared in the papers, will not afford a reasonable and probable ground for the petition. Once the question of reasonable and probable cause is left to the jury, the question of malice is left to them (z). There will be no reasonable and probable cause for petitioning where a person presents a petition as a contributory, if it turns out that he is not a contributory unless he can show that he not only believed he was a contributory, but had bonâ fide satisfied himself of the truth of his belief (a).

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Where a petition has been presented or is about to be presented (b), persons who get proxies for a voluntary winding-up and an investigation, will be guilty of contempt of Court if the investigation is all a sham, and intended to hoodwink shareholders into passing a resolution for voluntary winding-up, and thus preventing a compulsory order being made (c).

It has been held that it is a contempt of Court to set out in a newspaper the contents of a petition which contains charges of fraud (d), or to speak of a bank against which a petition has been presented as a so-called bank and a fraudulent concern, and to say that if its directors are examined there will be interesting revelations (e). These cases depend on the principle that "nothing is "more incumbent upon courts of justice than to preserve their "proceedings from being misrepresented, nor is there anything of "more pernicious consequence than to prejudice the minds of the "publick against persons concerned as parties in causes before the "cause is finally heard" (f). They have been doubted in some of the later cases (g), but it is thought that they are good law (h) subject to this, that the Court is now very slow to punish for contempt where it is satisfied that the Act complained of is not in truth calculated to interfere with the course of justice (i), and in this class of case, where there is only a Judge and no jury, it will be more difficult to show that matters of this sort will interfere with the course of justice (k).

(d) Cheltenham and Swansea Railway Carriage and Wagon Co. (1869), 8 Eq. 580. For other cases where

A petitioner issuing circulars to fellow shareholders or, it would seem, creditors, with a view of getting them to support a petition, will not be guilty of a contempt, or, at all events, will not be punished for contempt, whether such circulars contain statements substantially the same as those in the petition or the affidavits supporting it (l), or actual extracts from the same (m), though, of course, such circulars may be libellous (n).

Where reflections on a party to litigation are not prompted by the litigation, and do not directly bear on it, the Court will be very slow to look upon such reflections as a contempt of Court (o). Where the publication of pleadings has been held to be a contempt of Court, cp. Bowden v. Russell (1877), 46 L. J. (CH.) 414; Kitcat v. Sharpe (1883), 52 L. J. (CH.) 134; and see also the remarks of the Court in Re Townshend (1906), 22 T. L. R. 341.

(i) Plating Co. v. Farquharson (1881), 17 C. D. 49; New Gold Coast Exploration Co., [1901] 1 Ch. 860. In both of these cases the application was dismissed with costs, it being intimated in the former that the application itself almost amounted to a contempt of Court: Reg. v. Payne, [1896] 1 Q. B. 577; London Flour Co. (1868), 17 L. T. 636.

the party publishing such reflections does not know that there is any litigation pending (p), or does not know and is under no duty to know that he is publishing them, there will be no contempt (q), and the Court will rarely, if ever, convict a person for a contempt unless he has actual knowledge of the fact that he is doing a thing which does or may amount to a contempt (r). Where it is sought to make a company liable for contempt, the application should ask that the company do attend and answer the contempt (s), but it cannot be committed for contempt (t).

Bribing a witness, or attempting to do so (u), or publishing reports of a private examination, afford examples of other forms of contempt (x).

Where a contempt of Court has been committed the Court can, instead of making an order for committal, grant an injunction (y), and it can in proceedings of this nature give solicitor and client costs (z). Applications for committal being of a criminal nature cannot be compromised without the leave of the Court (a).

SECURITY FOR COSTS.

A question a petitioner will have to consider is whether or no he will have to give security for costs of the petition. The liability of a limited company to do this under section 278 of the Act has already been considered, but in other cases the poverty of a petitioner is no ground for ordering security unless, indeed, the petitioner is a mere nominis umbra, and acting entirely in the interest of some one else (b).

The broad general rule is that a person ordinarily resident out of the jurisdiction and coming forward as an actor or plaintiff is always liable for security for costs unless the company is indebted to him or has moneys of his in hand (c). Under this rule a petitioner with an English judgment or an admitted debt will not be liable to give security (d), but it is otherwise where the debtor company has admittedly no assets and is in the course of voluntary winding up (e), or where the judgment is a foreign one (f). For this purpose a person resident in Scotland or Ireland, but petitioning here, is resident out of the jurisdiction (g), but it would seem that security will not be ordered against persons resident in Scotland and Ireland who come forward as actors or plaintiffs in proceedings in the course of a winding up, for in such case the provisions of section 180 of the Act (h) provide a sufficient means for recovering any costs they may be liable to pay (i). Where, however, a person resident out of the jurisdiction has a considerable amount of property of a more or less fixed and permanent nature within the jurisdiction, there will be no order for security (k).

C. to make a director liable for the contempt of a company he must be personally served: McKeown v. Joint Stock Institute, [1899] 1 Ch. 671. In fact, except where substituted service is allowed, these applications must always be served personally. See Annual Practice, 1912, pp. 725 et seq., and Yearly Practice, 1912, pp. 625 et seq., notes to O. 44, r. 1, as to the practice in these cases.

Order 65, r. 6, R. S. C. provides that in any cause or matter in which security for costs is required the security shall be of such amount and be given at such times and in such manner and form as the Court or a Judge shall direct. The mere fact that a company against whom a petition has been presented has put in affidavits, will be no waiver of a right to security (l). A special case will have to be made out where security for more than £100 is asked for (m). Other cases where security will be ordered are cases where the petitioner cannot be found at the address given and has no other known address (n), and cases where the petitioner is a contingent or prospective creditor (o).

See Ex parte Chinery (1884), 12 Q. B. D. 342; and s. 180 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, seems to have no application, as if the petition is dismissed the order will not be "for or in the course of winding-up a company."

CONTENTS OF THE PETITION.

The petition must show all the facts on which the petitioner relies, for an order will only be made secundum allegata et probata. Thus it will be necessary to set out definitely any debt or demand on which the petitioner relies (p), and, in the case of a fully paid shareholder, the petition must show that there will be some tangible assets for distribution among the shareholders (q); but it would seem to be unnecessary for a petition to show assets in other cases (r). Again, where the petitioner's case is that there has been fraud, he must clearly set out the fraud complained of (s), and where his case is that the substratum of the company is gone, he must show on the face of his petition that substantially speaking, the company is not carrying on any business it is entitled to carry on (t). It is apparently not absolutely necessary for a contributory to show in his petition that he is not precluded by section 137 (1) (a) (ii) from petitioning, as this is a matter which the company can ascertain from its own books (x), but the practice is to set out this fact in the petition, and it is necessary, where the company does not appear, for affidavits to satisfy the Court on this point (y).

Where a petition for a compulsory order had been presented, and before the hearing a voluntary winding-up took place, it was formerly not absolutely necessary for the petitioner, if at the hearing he asked that the voluntary winding-up should be continued under supervision to amend his petition by setting out the voluntary winding-up (z): but now it is the universal practice and also, it may be said, convenient, to ask for leave to so amend.

Where a petition does not on the face of it show a case for winding-up, it is what is called demurrable, and may be dismissed at the (r) This view is contrary to a practice note set out in, [1902] W. N. 77; 18 T. L. hearing without the company putting in any evidence (a), and it would seem that in such case all further proceedings in it may be stayed, or it may be dismissed on an interlocutory application in the winding-up (b).

ORDER STAYING ALL FURTHER PROCEEDINGS ON PETITION.

(Title.)

Upon motion etc. this Court doth order that the said G.J. be perpetually restrained from advertising the said petition and from all further proceedings thereunder. Such costs to be taxed. Advance Boiler Company, Ltd., 0089 of 1894, VAUGHAN-WILLIAMS, J., April 18th, 1894 (reported sub nom. Re a Company, [1894] 2 Ch. 349).

At the same time the Court, or even the Court of Appeal (c), can give leave to amend, and even after the order was made, but before it was drawn up, it has given leave to amend a slip in the name of the company, as it appeared in the title to the winding-up (d). A winding-up petition must be dated and will have a distinctive number assigned to it in the office of the Registrar (e), and will have a title in one of the following forms. Every petition will bear a £2 impressed stamp (f).

Your petitioner therefore, etc. [as in the preceding form].

* State consideration for the debt with particulars so as to establish that the debt claimed is due.

Where the petitioner is a contributory it is the practice, though, as stated above, not absolutely necessary, to show that he is an original allottee, or has held his shares and had them registered in his name for six out of the preceding eighteen months.

In substratum cases the clause in the memorandum which is alleged to limit the powers of the company should be set out, and if such clause refers to an agreement, the effect of such agreement may often be usefully set out.

Where the petitioner is the holder of fully paid shares, it is necessary to set out by reference to the last balance sheet or otherwise, the reasons the petitioner has to think he will get something out of the winding-up (l), and it may possibly be desirable to do this in some other cases also. Where there is a voluntary winding-up this fact should be stated, and the reasons why the petitioner wants a supervision or compulsory order (m). The facts that are meant to show fraud or a likelihood of misfeasance proceedings, or the desirability of an examination under section 174 or section 175 of the Act should also be fully set out.

Where the petition is against a limited partnership, the provisions of Rules 25 and 28 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, and of Rule 3 of the Rules of the Supreme Court (Ireland), 1905, do not apply, but every petition will be in the form below set

PRESENTATION AND ADVERTISEMENT OF PETITION.

A petition must be presented at the office or chambers of the Registrar, and he appoints the time and place at which the petition is to be heard. Notice of the time and place appointed for hearing the petition is written on the petition and sealed copies thereof, and the Registrar may at any time before the petition has been advertised, alter the time appointed, and fix another time (q).

The expression "Registrar" in these rules means in the High Court any of the Registrars in Bankruptcy of the High Court, and any person who is appointed to fill the office of Registrar under these rules, and where a winding-up of a company is in the District Registry of Liverpool or Manchester, means the District Registrar; and in a County Court, where there are joint registrars, means either of such Registrars, or a Deputy Registrar, and in any Court other than the High Court, means the officer of the Court whose duty it is to exercise in relation to a winding-up the functions which in the High Court are exercised by a Registrar or Master (r).

Where a petition is presented in or immediately before vacation, then as soon as the Registrar has fixed a time for the hearing of a petition, an ex parte application is made to the vacation Judge, if the vacation has begun, and if it has not, to the winding-up Judge, to fix a day in the vacation for the hearing if the petitioner desires that the petition shall come on in vacation.

Every petition must be advertised seven clear days before the hearing as follows:—

(1) In the case of a Company whose registered office, or if there shall be no such office, then whose principal or last known principal place of business is or was situate within ten miles of the principal entrance of the Royal Courts of Justice once in the London Gazette, and once at least in one London daily morning newspaper, or in such other newspaper as the Court (s) directs.

(2) In the case of any other Company, once in the London Gazette, and once at least in one local newspaper circulating in the district where the registered office, or principal or last known place of business, as the case may be, of such Company is or was situate, or in such other newspaper as the Court directs.

(3) The advertisement must state the day on which the petition was presented, and the name and address of the petitioner, and of his solicitor and London agent (if any), and must contain a note at the foot thereof, stating that any person who intends to appear on the hearing of the petition, either to oppose or support, must send notices of his intention to the petitioner, or to his solicitors or London agent, within the time and manner prescribed by Rule 33 (t), and an advertisement of a petition for the winding-up of a Company by the Court which does not contain such a note will be deemed irregular (u).

(q) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 26.

(r) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 2. Petitions presented in the district registries of Liverpool and Manchester respectively and requiring answer must be answered in the name of one of the district registrars of the same respective registries: ibid., r. 219 and r. 2. Rules of Supreme Court, 1887. A petition is "answered" when the time and place for hearing is written on it.

If the petitioner or his solicitor does not within the time prescribed by the rules or within such extended time as the Registrar allows, duly advertise the petition in manner prescribed by this rule, the appointment of the time and place at which the petition is to be heard will be cancelled, and the petition will be removed from the file in the Companies (Winding-up) office, unless the Judge or Registrar otherwise directs (u).

The object of the last part of this rule is to prevent a petition being presented, and then hung up and not advertised. This practice having formerly prevailed, the idea being by the mere threat of the petition being advertised to force the company to terms. It has been said that the advertisement of a petition is notice to all the world of its having been presented (x), but later this doctrine was limited to cases where the person alleged to have notice could have seen the advertisement (y), and now it would seem that such an advertisement is only notice to those who have, in fact, actually seen it (z).

The form of advertisement prescribed by the rules is as follows (a):—

NOTE.—Any person who intends to appear on the hearing of the said petition must serve on or send by post to the above-named, notice in writing of his intention so to do. The notice must state the name and address of the person, or, if a firm, the name and address of the firm, and must be signed by the person or firm, or his or their solicitor (if any), and must be served, or, if posted, must be sent by post in sufficient time to reach the above-named not later than six o'clock in the afternoon of the of 19 (c).

In one case (d) Sir George Jessel directed a petition to be re-advertised because the title referred only to the Companies Act, 1862, and not, as it should have done, to the Act of 1867. Whether this case would or would not be followed in a similar case, it seems quite clear that an error, however small, in the name of the company as appearing in the title to the advertisement, may render the advertisement of no effect (e), and the Court has never dispensed with advertisement, though possibly it has power to do so (f). The practice nowadays in these cases would seem to be to order readvertisement (g), and even where an order has been made on a petition in which a company was wrongly named, the wrong name appearing also in the advertisement, the Court ordered the petition to be amended, re-served, and re-advertised, and then brought on for hearing again (h).

(f) See Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 216, as to extending and abridging time, and r. 217 validating proceedings in spite of formal defects or of irregularities unless the Court is of opinion substantial injustice has been caused thereby.

(g) London and Provincial Pure Ice Manufacturing Co., [1904] W. N. 136. Readvertisement was required by BUCKLEY, J., in Ramsgate Marine Palace and Pier Co., 0013 of 1905, January 31, 1905, the word "limited" having been omitted from the advertisement.

(h) Samuel Birch Co., [1907] W. N. 31, not following Army and Navy Hotel Co. (1886), 31 C. D. 644; Newcastle Machinists Co. (1888), W. N. 246. In E. S. Snell and Sons, Ltd., Times newspaper, December 20, 1911, EADY, J., made the order, though the advertisement and petition spoke of "E. S. Snell and Son, Ltd." The petition was directed to be amended. There was evidence that the same mistake occurred in the name of the company over its place of business.

Where, however, a wrong name appeared in the first advertisement, but on the next day a fresh advertisement was inserted, such second advertisement, being a day out of time, the Court dispensed with further advertisement (i), though usually re-advertisement will be ordered where the advertisement has not been inserted seven clear days (k) before the hearing of the petition (l). An advertisement stating a petition would be heard on Saturday, December 20, December 20 being a Thursday, has been held to be bad (m), and so has an advertisement that a petition would be heard on a legal holiday (n), but the time for advertisements will run in vacation (o). If, by some oversight, the advertisement has not appeared seven clear days before the hearing of the petition, this can be remedied by an order under rule 216 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909. The application can be made by summons in chambers, but usually the Judge is asked to make such an order at the hearing of the petition.

Re-advertisement was not required where the advertisement wrongly stated the date when the petition was presented (p), nor was it required where the note at the foot of the advertisement required persons intending to appear to give notice some days before the time when the rules require them to give notice (q), the omission of such note will, however, invalidate the advertisement (r).

Where the advertisement and the petition only speak of a compulsory order, their re-advertisement will usually be necessary if a supervision order only is asked for at the hearing (s), but in such cases a supervision order has occasionally been made without re-advertisement if the majority of the creditors and contributories, or, in the case of a creditor's petition, a majority of the creditors are before the Court. Where the advertisements and the petition speak of a compulsory or supervision order alternatively, a supervision order will be made without re-advertisement (t). Where the advertisements and petition only speak of a supervision order, it will usually not be necessary to readvertise if a compulsory order is asked for at the hearing (u), the reason being that a compulsory order is considered to be more favourable to all parties.

Where a petition requires re-advertisement it will be stood over for a fortnight (x). Re-advertisements will have to be not only in the London Gazette, but in all the papers in which the original advertisement appeared (y).

An advertisement which appeared a few hours before the petition was presented was, under the old rules, held to be good (z).

The advertisement amounts to an invitation to creditors and contributories to come in and support or oppose the petition (a).

SERVICE OF PETITION.

Every petition must, unless presented by the company, be served at the registered office, if any, of the company, and if there is no registered office, then at the principal or last known principal place of business of the company, if any such can be found, upon any member, officer, or servant of the company there, or in case no such member, officer, or servant can be found there, then by being left at such registered office or principal place of business or by being served on such member or members of the company as the Court may direct; and where the company is being wound-up voluntarily, must also be served upon the liquidator (if any), appointed for the purpose of winding-up the affairs of the company (b).

This rule is merely directory, and where service of the petition has been accepted by a duly authorized solicitor, that will be sufficient (c). Where there is a difficulty as to service, a summons for directions as to the manner in which the service is to be effected should be taken out (d). Such summons should ask for service in a particular manner specified in the summons. The Court has acceded to an application for service by advertisement (e).

Where the registered office of a company has been shut up service has been effected by leaving a copy of the petition in the post-box, and serving the solicitor and the directors who could be found (f), and where the company has abandoned its registered office, but has not taken a fresh one, service at the old registered office may be in some cases sufficient (g).

(g) City of London and Colonial Finance Association (1866), 36 L. J.

Where the registered office had been demolished, service on the secretary and two directors at an unregistered office was held to be enough (h).

In cases where there was no registered office, service on the chairman and general manager (i), on five directors (k), on the subscribers to the memorandum (l), on the secretary and agents of the company (m), and on the only director and the solicitors at what was really the only known office of the company have been held to be sufficient (n).

Where the company was in voluntary liquidation, and service was therefore necessary on both the company and the liquidator, and there was a difficulty about serving the company, service was effected by serving the liquidator and the directors and the principal shareholders (o), or the liquidator and the secretary (p). Where the company is the petitioner and is in voluntary liquidation, it is not necessary to serve the liquidator (q). The cases of companies whose names have been struck off the register (r) and foreign companies (s), have been considered above.

ORDER FOR SUBSTITUTED SERVICE OF PETITION.

(Title.)

UPON the application by Summons dated the 21st April 1911 of L.W. the Petitioner named in the Petition in this Matter preferred unto this Court on the 21st April 1911 and upon hearing the Solicitor for the Applicant and upon reading the said Petition the Affidavit of L.W. filed the 25th April 1911 (verifying the said petition) and the Affidavit of H.D. filed the 24th day of April 1911. It is Ordered that service of the said Petition having the Order of the Court thereon that all parties should attend the Court on the said Petition on the 9th May 1911 by sending a sealed copy thereof together with a copy of this Order by ordinary prepaid post in an envelope addressed to the above-named Company at County of being the registered office of the above-named Company and by sending a sealed copy of the said Petition together with a copy of this Order through the registered post prepaid in an envelope addressed to A.J.P. at , be deemed good service of the said Petition upon the said Company. its registered office, that its managing director had moved from there to another office whence he had moved without leaving an address after execution had been issued against his furniture.

The Registrar of the Court and, in the District Registries of Liverpool and Manchester, the District Registrar, must keep a register of winding-up petitions, and must enter the necessary particulars as soon as each proceeding is concluded. They must also make and transmit to the Board of Trade such extracts from their books and furnish the Board of Trade with such information and returns as it requires from time to time (x).

EVIDENCE ON PETITION.

Every petition for the winding up of a company by the Court, or subject to the supervision of the Court, must be verified by an affidavit referring thereto. Such affidavit must be made by the petitioner, or by one of the petitioners, if more than one, or, in case the petition is presented by a corporation, by some director, secretary, or other principal officer thereof, and must be sworn after and filed within four days after the petition is presented, and such affidavit will be sufficient primâ facie evidence of the statements in the petition (y).

This affidavit, though it would seem to be usually, if not always, necessary, is not always sufficient (z). Thus, it will not be sufficient to support a charge of fraud (a). Such charges must be supported by something more than a statement as to the information and belief of the deponent.

In a proper case an affidavit, in the statutory form, by an attorney or agent of the petitioner will be sufficient (b), though in one case the Court said that the person, other than the petitioner, who proposed to make the affidavit, must speak to his own knowledge, and not merely to his information and belief (c). The Attorney-General does not usually swear affidavits of this sort, and where he is petitioner an affidavit may be sworn by some other fit and proper person, e.g., by the Treasury solicitor (d).

(x) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 208, and Appendix, Form 102. The register must give the following particulars. (1) No. of Petition, (2) Name of company, (3) Address of registered office, (2) Description of Company, (5) Date of Petition, (6) Petitioner, (7) Date of winding-up order, each statement being in a separate column.

In cases where a corporation is petitioner the affidavit may be sworn by the manager (e) or the secretary (f), or, where the company is in liquidation, the liquidator of such company (g).

It has been suggested that a rule enabling a petitioner to speak to his information and belief, and not to his own knowledge, is ultra vires; but it was held that it was too late to raise this point in 1882, and O. 38, r. 3, R. S. C. does not interfere with or abrogate the rule (h).

An affidavit sworn before the petition is bad, and will have to be resworn (i).

Sundays are not counted in the four days for filing the affidavit (k). If the only evidence given by the petitioner is the statutory affidavit, he need not give notice of having filed it, but he must give notice of any further affidavit he puts in (l).

Where the affidavit is out of time, the proper course is to apply to the Court by summons to extend the time for filing it (m), but in several of the older cases orders were made though the affidavits were out of time (n).

Where the petition is not presented by the company itself there must also be an affidavit showing service of the petition, unless there has been an undertaking by the company's solicitors to appear at the hearing by counsel (nn).

After a petition has been presented, the petitioner, or his solicitor, must, on a day to be appointed by the Registrar, attend before the Registrar and satisfy him that the petition has been duly advertised, that the prescribed affidavit verifying the statements therein, and the affidavit of service (if any) have been duly filed, and that the provisions of the rules as to petitions for winding-up Companies have been duly complied with by the petitioner. No order for the winding up of a company will be made on the petition of any petitioner who has not, prior to the hearing of the petition, attended before the Registrar at the time appointed, and satisfied him in manner required by this rule (o).

Even prior to this rule the judges declined to hear petitions unless a certificate of the Registrar showing they had been properly advertised was produced (p).

Affidavits in opposition to a petition that a company may be wound up under the order or subject to the supervision of the Court, must be filed within seven days of the date on which the affidavit verifying the petition is filed, and notice of the filing of every affidavit in opposition to such a petition must be given to the petitioner or the solicitor or London agent of the petitioner, on the day on which the affidavit is filed.

An affidavit in reply to an affidavit filed in opposition to a petition must be filed within three days of the date on which notice of such affidavit is received by the petitioner or the solicitor or London agent of the petitioner (q).

Affidavits in opposition to a compulsory order must, when made by persons connected with the company, speak to matters within the knowledge of the deponents which relate to the promotion, formation or failure of the company, and go to negative the necessity or desirability of an inquiry into these matters. Where there is a debenture-holders' action pending, persons opposing a petition should also, it would seem, show the date of issue of such debentures and the consideration for which they were issued (r).

The times mentioned in this rule can also be extended by the order of the Court on a summons, and a summons must also be taken out for cross-examination where it is desired ; such cross-examination is, in the absence of special circumstances, always taken before the Judge at the hearing, but the Court has power to direct it to be taken before the Registrar or an examiner.

The Court will only in the most exceptional cases make an order for discovery on a winding-up petition (s) ; but the party is entitled to inspect the register of mortgages and other public books of the company, and also books and documents referred to in his opponent's affidavit (t), and on cross-examination and for the purpose of testing

AFFIDAVIT OF SERVICE OF PETITION ON LIQUIDATOR (a).

(Title.)

In the matter of a petition, dated for winding-up the above Company [by] or [under the supervision of] the Court [as the case may be].

I, , of , make oath and say :—

That I did, on day, the day of 19 , serve [name and description] the liquidator of the above-named Company with a copy of the above-mentioned petition, duly sealed with the seal of the Court, by delivering the same personally to the said at [place], before the hour of in the noon.

The said petition is now produced and shown to me, marked A.

Sworn at, &c.

After presenting his petition the petitioner will have to consider the question of obtaining an order to stay or restrain actions against the company under section 140 of the Act, (a point that can be more conveniently discussed in the next chapter) (aa), and the question of obtaining the appointment of a provisional liquidator.

PROVISIONAL LIQUIDATOR PRIOR TO WINDING-UP ORDER BEING MADE.

Section 149 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, provides that—

(1) For the purpose of conducting the proceedings in winding-up a Company and performing such duties in reference thereto as the Court may impose, the Court may appoint a liquidator or liquidators.

(2) The Court may make such an appointment provisionally at any time after the presentation of a petition and (in the case of a Company registered in England) before the making of an order for winding-up, or (in the case of a Company registered in Scotland or Ireland) before the first appointment of liquidators.

(3) In the case of a Company registered in England :—

(a) Where a provisional liquidator is appointed before the making of a winding-up order, the official receiver or any other fit person may be appointed.

The Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, contain the following provisions on this point :—

(1) After the presentation of a petition, upon the application of a creditor, or of a contributory, or of the Company, and upon proof by affidavit of sufficient grounds for the appointment of the Official Receiver as Provisional Liquidator, the Court, if it thinks fit, and upon such terms as in the opinion of the Court shall be just and necessary may make the appointment.

(a) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, Appendix, Form 8.

(2) The Order appointing the Official Receiver to be Provisional Liquidator, shall bear the number of the petition, and shall state the nature and a short description of the property of which the Official Receiver is ordered to take possession, and the duties to be performed by the Official Receiver.

(3) Subject to any Order of the Court, if no order for the winding-up of the Company is made upon the Petition, or if an order for the winding-up of the Company on the Petition is rescinded, or if all proceedings on the Petition are stayed or if an order is made continuing the voluntary winding-up of the Company subject to the supervision of the Court, the Official Receiver as Provisional Liquidator shall be entitled to be paid out of the property of the Company, all the costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred by him as Provisional Liquidator, including the fees payable to the Board of Trade under the scale of fees in force for the time being, and may retain out of such property the amounts of such costs, charges, expenses, and fees (b).

Although the rules are silent on the point, it would seem clear that the Court has jurisdiction to appoint some person other than the official receiver as provisional liquidator until the hearing of the petition (c), though this is occasionally done (cc), it is obviously far more convenient to appoint the official receiver, as he will necessarily become liquidator as soon as an order is made, and the practice is to appoint the official receiver (d). Any other person appointed will not be capable of acting as liquidator until he has notified his appointment to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, and given security in the prescribed manner (e) to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade, and the Board of Trade can fix such security before a winding-up order in the case of a provisional liquidator (d).

The Court would formerly not usually make an order for a provisional liquidator unless the petition (f) or the application (g) was by the company, or was unopposed, or unless the company had in some way admitted that it had no defence to the petition (h), and the Court is now very slow to make an order for a provisional liquidator, where the result of the petition is uncertain; however, the Court will now make an order where it is shown that the assets of the company are in jeopardy, and in some of the earlier cases even, it made orders where there was evidence that there was a risk of the assets of the company being made away with between the presentation and hearing of the petition (k), and where there were pressing creditors and sales to be completed, and the managing director was a bankrupt (l). Probably the Court will not on the ex parte application of a contingent or prospective creditor, appoint a provisional liquidator, until security for costs has been given and a primâ facie case made out (m).

Where a liquidator is provisionally appointed by the Court the Court may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him (n). The practice would seem to be to appoint the official receiver provisional liquidator, and the order always limits the powers of the provisional liquidator. Thus, such powers are sometimes limited to making an application to the Court for the appointment of a special manager under section 161 of the Act (o), and the Court has limited his powers to taking possession of and protecting the assets of the company, forbidding him to part with or distribute the same except to the extent of discharging the current rent of the company's office and the current salaries of the officers, clerks, and other persons employed by the company, and such other current expenses which he might think necessary to pay, with power to serve such notices as he might be advised to determine if necessary the employment of the officers and servants of the company (p). In yet another case (q) a provisional liquidator was allowed only to carry out arrangements actually made, but was given power to borrow, the moneys borrowed to be a first charge on the undertaking, but it was intimated that he would not be allowed moneys not properly expended. In another case (r) a solicitor was appointed to receive some costs due to him.

of the petition (s). An application for a provisional liquidator should be made by summons, which should be served on the company (t), but orders have not infrequently been made in the past on ex parte motions (u). The application should, of course, be supported by an affidavit. After such an order it has been said that transfers of shares made without the liquidator's sanction, will be void (x). Where a provisional liquidator or special manager is appointed before the hearing and a winding-up order is made, such order will not contain any special directions as to his costs, or otherwise. If no order is made he will be entitled to retain his expenses out of assets which have come into his hands (y).

ORDER APPOINTING PROVISIONAL LIQUIDATOR.

(Title.)

UPON THE APPLICATION by Summons dated this day of the above-named Company the Petitioner named in the Petition presented unto this Court on the 26th September 1911 and upon hearing the Solicitors for the Applicant and upon reading the same petition and the Affidavit of A.N. filed this day.

IT IS ORDERED that Harold de Vaux Brougham the Official Receiver attached to this Court be appointed Provisional Liquidator of the above-named Company.

(t) See London and Manchester Industrial Association (1876), 1 C. D. 466. This case was under s. 21 of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870; it is thought that it would probably apply where a petition is presented by a contingent or prospective creditor. See Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 137 (1) (c), and supra, p. 818, note (o).

AND the Court doth hereby limit and restrict the powers of the said Official Receiver as such Provisional Liquidator to the following acts that is to say:—

To take possession of collect and protect the assets of the above-named Company but not to distribute or part with the same until further order with liberty to apply for the appointment of a special Manager. PERSONS ENTITLED TO APPEAR ON A PETITION.

Besides the company creditors and contributories and no one else may appear to support or oppose a petition (a). The note at the foot of the advertisement operates as an invitation to such persons to come and be heard (b). Secured creditors may appear in the same way as unsecured creditors (c).

The Court will not recognise an appearance by a committee of creditors or contributories, except as an appearance by the individuals constituting such committee (d). Persons appearing to support or oppose a petition cannot in any case be ordered to give security for costs (e). Every contributory or creditor of the company is entitled to be furnished by the solicitor of the petitioner with a copy of the petition within 24 hours after requiring the same on paying the rate of 4*d*. per folio of 72 words for such copy (f).

Every person who intends to appear on the hearing of a petition must serve on, or send by post, to the petitioner, or his solicitor or London agent, at the address stated in the advertisement of the petition, notice of his intention. The notice must be signed by such person, or his solicitor or London agent, and must be served, or, if sent by post, must be posted in such time as in ordinary course of post to reach the address not later than six o'clock in the afternoon of the day previous to the day appointed for the hearing of the petition. The notice may be in Form 11 (g), with such variations as circumstances may require. A person who has failed to comply with this rule will not, without the special leave of the Court, be allowed to appear on the hearing of the petition (h).

The notice must state distinctly whether the creditor or contributory giving it intends to oppose or to support the petition, otherwise he will not be allowed any costs (i). It would seem that it must also, where the prayer of the petition asks for either a compulsory or a supervision order, show which the person giving the notice proposes to support (l), and, even when signed by the solicitor of the person giving the notice, it must give such person's address (m).

Where the same solicitor appears for a petitioner, and a person supporting the petition, no notice need be given under this rule, but such solicitor must, in preparing the list required by rule 34, include in such list the name of such person, showing that such person intends to appear and support, and also must also set out in such list the other particulars required by rule 34 and Form 12 (n). A person who has presented a second petition, but has given no notice of his intention to support the first petition, has been allowed to share in the costs of the persons supporting the first petition (o).

The petitioner, or his solicitor or London agent, must prepare a list of the names and addresses of the persons who have given notice of their intention to appear on the hearing of the petition, and of their respective solicitors, which must be in Form 12 (p). A fair copy of the list (or, if no notice of intention to appear has been given, a statement in writing to that effect) must on the day appointed for hearing the petition, be handed by the petitioner, or his solicitor or London agent, to the Court prior to the hearing of the petition (q).

The words in brackets are new, but even under the old rule where no person had given notice of his intention to appear on the petition, the Court required the fact to be stated on the form, which had even in this case to be handed to the Court, and if this rule was not complied with the petitioner's solicitor was disallowed his costs of attending the hearing. The Registrar is required on a petition being filed, to hand the petitioner's solicitor a notice calling attention to this rule (r).

POWERS OF COURT ON HEARING OF PETITION.

On hearing a petition the Court may dismiss it with or without costs, or adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make any interim order, or any other order that it deems just, but the Court must not refuse to make a winding-up order on the ground only that the assets of the company have been mortgaged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets or that the company has no assets.

Where the petition is presented on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may order the costs to be paid by any persons who, in the opinion of the Court, are responsible for the default (u).

An order to wind up two companies cannot be made on one petition (x).

It would seem that where a company is shown to be insolvent, a creditor whose debt is undisputed and presently payable, is entitled as between himself and the company to a winding-up order (y), though even in this case the fact that the section says that the Court may make the order, and not that it must do so (z), may, where special circumstances are shown, give the Court a discretion, even in the case of unregistered companies (a) which can only be wound up compulsorily (a), and the Court can clearly in a proper case stand the petition over so as to give the company an opportunity of paying (b).

The cases of creditors with disputed debts and for sums under £50 have already been considered (bb).

It has been said (c) that the provision, that the Court is not to refuse to make an order on the ground only that the assets of the company have been mortgaged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets or that the company has no assets, which first appeared in the Act of 1907, is simply declaratory of the law as it stood before that Act, and does not alter the law. As it is thought that this view is correct, it will be necessary to examine some of the earlier cases. Perhaps Chapel House Colliery Co. (d) may be taken as the earliest of these cases. There it would seem clear that the majority of the Court were prepared to dismiss the petition on the ground that there were no assets and on this ground alone, but a majority of the class of creditors to which the petitioner belonged opposed the petition.

In a later case (e), Pearson, J., stood a petition over for an inquiry in Chambers as to whether there were any assets, and appointed a provisional liquidator, and the same Judge in another case (f) dismissed a petition on the ground that the company had no assets; but here again there were several other grounds for the decision, and in Company of Fraternity of Free Fishermen of Faversham (g) the Court of Appeal seems to have dismissed the petition on this ground, Cotton, L.J., saying that the onus of showing that no good could come of an order lay on the company.

Then came the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890. North, J., held that though section 8 of that Act (h) gave wide powers of investigation, it did not enable him to make an order on the petition of a fully paid shareholder who differed from the majority of the shareholders, and did not show he would get a substantial benefit from an order or make out a primâ facie case for investigation (i).

On the other hand, Vaughan Williams, J., held that if the circumstances appearing by affidavit were sufficient to show primâ facie that an investigation into the formation or promotion of the company or the issuing of debentures or shares was required, that alone was a sufficient advantage to an unsecured creditor to entitle him to an order, even though the assets appeared insufficient to pay the debenture-holders (k), and he seems to have taken the same view on a shareholder's petition (l); but in another case where an unsecured creditor was petitioner, and the assets were not sufficient to pay the debenture-holders, who objected to the order, he held that he had no right to make an order as the only winding-up in such cases was a debenture-holder's action. The learned Judge went on to say how desirable investigation usually was in such cases, but presumably he did not think it specially desirable in that particular case (m).

In International Commercial Co. (n) the Court of Appeal, acting on confidential information given to it by an official from the official receiver's department, came to the conclusion that there would be some assets, and made an order on the petition of a debenture-holder who was opposed by the majority of his class. In London Health Electrical Institute (o) the Court of Appeal declined to make an order on the petition of an unsecured creditor, where the debentures issued by the company could not be impeached and the company's assets were not sufficient to satisfy the claims of the debenture-holders.

In 1902, Buckley, J., gave directions that even creditors' petitions must in future contain an allegation that the company had assets available for distribution in a winding-up (p); but in Manchester and Liverpool Transport Co. (q), Byrne, J., following Krasnapolsky Restaurant and Winter Gardens (r), made an order, as he considered that there were circumstances which required investigation, and was not prepared to say there would be nothing for the unsecured creditors.

In Chic, Ltd. (s), Warrington, J., made an order on the petition of a creditor who could clearly get nothing out of it, because it was desirable to get rid of the company, and this could not be done in any other way, and he pointed out that under the rules (t) where a company against which a winding-up order is made has no available assets the official receiver is not required to incur any expense in relation to the winding-up without the sanction of the Board of Trade.

In Alfred Melson & Co. (u), Buckley, J., made a similar order for very similar reasons, and said that the Court was not bound at the instance of the company to refuse an order merely because it would not be fruitful. The matter came before the Court of Appeal in Crigglestone Coal Co. (x), the Court made an order there although the winding up might entail a forfeiture of the company's lease. The reason of their decision, which does not seem quite to follow the lines of that of Buckley, J., in the Court below, was that there was a reasonable possibility of the unsecured creditors deriving some advanatge from the winding-up, and that therefore the order ought to be made in order to enable them to be heard in the winding-up.

Perhaps the matter may be summed up by saying that the absence of assets will only prevent the order going where the assets are non-existent or can give the petitioner nothing, and there is no reasonable chance of further assets being raised by misfeasance proceedings or otherwise, or of debts which have priority to that of the petitioner being so cut down as to give the petitioner something. Even in such cases it would seem that the Court can make an order if for any reason it sees fit to do so. The decision of the Court of Appeal in the last cited case does not perhaps go quite as far as this last proposition.

In a case (y) decided since the Act of 1907 came into force, there was a voluntary liquidation in force, and the Judge declined to make an order as the assets were small, a majority of creditors opposed, and no case for investigation or anything of that sort was made out. As already stated, the Judge there said that the Act of 1907 did not alter the law on this point.

There is another case where an unpaid creditor is not entitled to an order ex debito justitiæ. A winding-up order is not made for the benefit of the petitioner alone, but for the benefit of the class of which

(y) Belfast Tailors' Company Partnership, [1909] 1 Ir. 49. The fact that this society, which was an industrial and provident society, was already in voluntary winding-up, makes the case of less importance than it would otherwise be. See also Spiers & Co. v. Central Building Co., [1911] S. C. 331. he is a member (z), and, in addition to the wide powers given by section 141 of the Act to the Court on the hearing of a petition, the Court may, under section 145, have regard to the wishes of creditors and contributories as proved to it by sufficient evidence, and may therefore, under section 219, on the hearing of the petition and for the purpose of ascertaining those wishes, summon meetings of the creditors or contributories to be called held and conducted in such manner as it directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result thereof to the Court (a). In such case a memorandum of the directions given by the Court is written on the fold of the petition and signed by the Registrar (aa),

Of course, it is not always necessary to summon meetings to ascertain the wishes of creditors or contributories. That may, and often is, ascertained in other ways, and particularly by the number of those appearing to support or oppose the petition. It would seem, however, that as the interests of debenture-holders and unsecured creditors often conflict, the Court will pay little attention to the wishes of debenture-holders on the petition of an unsecured creditor (b). In Brighton Hotel Co. (c), an order was made to stand over a petition presented by a shareholder and debenture-holder, and opposed by all the other shareholders, and ultimately all further proceedings on the petition were stayed on payment of the petitioner's debt and costs.

In Langley Mill Steel and Ironworks Co. (d), a creditor's petition which was largely opposed by other creditors was dismissed, but there was a voluntary winding up in existence in this case.

In Western of Canada Oil Lands and Works Co. (e) the debenture-holders had got receivers appointed, had appointed a committee to look after their interests, and had sent a commission to Canada to investigate matters. On one of their number, in spite of the opposition of a large majority presenting a winding-up petition, the matter was stood over for about three months in the hope that money to pay the debentures might be obtained in the meanwhile, but at the end of that time, although further time was asked for, the Court, in the absence of evidence of what had been done in the meantime, made an order.

In Joint Stock Coal Co. (1869), 8 Eq. 146, the Court held that where it could not make an order it could not direct a meeting ; but it may be doubted whether this is quite consistent with Suburban Hotel Co. (1867), 2 Ch. 737, though the Court will often be slow to order a meeting and allow the petition to stand over pending the result, as this may paralyze a company by hanging a petition over it : Scobie v. Atlas Works (1906) 8 Fra. 1052. In Investment Bank of London (1910), 130 L. T. Jo.: 149. NEVILLE, J., made an order (with the consent of the petitioner) for a meeting, although a meeting under section 188 of the Act was pending, such first mentioned meeting was to be advertised in the London Gazette and two daily papers. At creditors, meetings regard must be had to the value of each creditors' debt ; at contributories' meetings to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the articles : Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 219 (2) and (3).

In St. Thomas' Dock Co. (f) the petition was presented by a debenture-holder, to whom about £77 was due for arrears of interest. A vast majority of the debenture-holders and unsecured creditors opposed and asked that the petition should stand over. Jessel, M.R., after pointing out that the petitioner could get nothing out of the order as all the assets were covered by his debentures, ordered the petition to stand over for six months from the date of hearing, but put the company upon an undertaking first of all not to consent to a winding-up order on the petition of any other creditor or to a voluntary winding-up (g); secondly, to give notice to the petitioner of the presentation of any other petition for a winding-up; and thirdly, to consent that on the presentation of any such other petition, the present application might be renewed, notwithstanding the suspension, so that the Court might be able to deal with it as if no suspension had been made (h). The learned Judge, while recognising the rule that if a creditor cannot get paid it is ex debito justitiæ that a winding-up order shall be made, said that it only applied where the creditor could get something out of the order, and intimated that he might let the petition stand over again, if application were made at the expiration of the six months. Fry, J., in another case (i)

(g) The order was apparently drawn up "and not to wind up voluntarily" instead of in the form given in the text, which, however, was the form of undertaking required by the Master of the Rolls in this case, and was said by BUCKLEY, J., to be the correct form, as it is very doubtful whether a company can undertake not to wind up voluntarily: St. Neots Water Co. (1905), 93 L. T. 788; but the ordinary form now is "not to wind up voluntarily." See order in Descours Parry & Co., 0052 of 1909, infra, pp. 877 and 878. And see as to a company agreeing not to wind up voluntarily, Ellis v. Dadson (1891), 60 L. J. (CH.) 353. It is difficult to see how a company can consent to a voluntary winding-up.

(h) This is the well-known order commonly called a St. Thomas' Dock Order. The order contemplates the possibility of a second petition, and a second petitioner, even though he knows of the first petition and the order thereon, need not communicate with the first petitioner, and is entitled to present his petition and will get his costs on an order being made on the first petition. VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, J., said that in making such orders he would ascertain whether the petitioner would be willing to share one set of costs with a second petitioner if there was one: Scott and Jackson, [1893] W. N. 184.

which was practically identical in its facts, required the same undertakings and also undertakings by the company to give the petitioners notice in writing of any proceedings by any mortgagee or debenture-holder to enforce his security or to obtain payment of his debt, and on such undertakings being given, ordered the petition to stand over for six months from the day of hearing or until the taking of any step by the petitioners or any other creditor to enforce payment of their debt or to realize their security, in which cases liberty to apply was given.

The learned Judge said he made this order so as if possible to prevent the petitioner enforcing his security, the company being generally believed likely to do well in the future; and he also intimated that it was proper for a Judge to go into the reasons, which induced the majority to oppose. It would seem desirable in these cases for the company to undertake to give the petitioner notice of the sending out of a notice for a voluntary winding-up resolution, and to require the company to consent to his proceeding with the petition in the event of such notice being sent out, and it is believed that such orders have sometimes been made.

In the next case (k) on the subject Jessel, M.R., dismissed the petition on the ground that a vast majority of the secured creditors were opposed to it; but another ground for dismissing it which would in itself have been conclusive, existed in the fact that the petitioner, who was the holder of bonds secured by a trust deed, had no individual right of action against the company, and was consequently not a creditor. In this case, too, the petitioner would have got nothing out of a winding-up.

The same point rose again in Chapel House Colliery Co. (l). That, again, was a petition of a debenture-holder, and unanimous resolutions had been passed at well-attended meetings of shareholders and debenture-holders against the petition. It was also opposed by the unsecured creditors of the company. The assets of the company were all charged by the debentures, and so the petitioner would have got nothing out of an order. The petition was dismissed: Baggallay, L.J., coming to the conclusion that this course was proper having regard to the united effect of these circumstances. The other two Lords Justices based their decision mainly on the latter ground, though they also referred to the majorities against the petition.

In Krasnapolsky Restaurant and Winter Garden Co. (m), the last-mentioned case was distinguished on the ground that there the petition was opposed not by the secured, but also by the unsecured creditors, and an order was made on the petition of an unsecured creditor, which was opposed by such of the secured creditors as put in an appearance. The other unsecured creditors took no part in the proceedings. But, in a later case (n), where there was a majority of both creditors and contributories against a petition presented by a judgment creditor, and the assets were not sufficient to pay the debentures, Vaughan Williams, J., declined to make an order, saying he had no choice in the matter.

In International Commercial Co. (o) the Court of Appeal made an order on the petition of debenture-holder who had obtained a judgment for arrears of interest, though the application was opposed by a majority of the debenture-holders.

Finally, in Crigglestone Coal Co. (p), an order was made on the petition of unsecured creditors, although opposed by the debenture-holders.

It would seem, then, that a debenture-holder petitioner will rarely, if ever, get an order if opposed by the majority of his class, and the same remark applies, though it is thought the rule is less stringent in the case of an unsecured creditor who is opposed by the majority of the unsecured creditors. Secured and unsecured creditors are, however, not considered together in any sense, and the wishes of unsecured creditors will sometimes be given effect to, though opposed by the majority of the secured creditors.

A contributory who presents a petition is not, it is thought in any case, entitled to an order ex debito justitiæ (q), and the principle which has already been mentioned, that the Court will not usually interfere with the internal arrangements of a company, applies where a contributory is presenting a petition against the wishes of the majority of the contributories (r). It follows that in such cases the Court will rarely make an order on a contributory's petition which is seriously opposed by a majority of the other members (s).

The same principle applies in the case of building societies (t). Although Vaughan Williams, J., at one time apparently thought otherwise (u), this principle apparently still holds good since the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890 (x).

The exceptions to this rule would appear to be the cases where the substratum of the company is gone. There, it would seem, that a majority cannot force a minority to enter upon an entirely fresh scheme (y), and cases where the majority are using their powers to shelter themselves from investigation (z), or to foist on the minority a scheme which will benefit the majority at the expense of the minority, and which is substantially unjust to such minority (a), or where the true facts have been concealed from the members of the company (b).

The Court will also apparently consider the reasons which induced a majority to come to a particular conclusion (c).

On the other hand, it would seem from the cases that where there is a real majority of the shareholders who wish for a compulsory winding-up though not a sufficient majority to pass a special resolution, the Court will sometimes make an order under the "just and equitable" words of section 129 of the Act, although the other circumstances of the case may not per se be sufficient to warrant an order (d). The fact that Lord Cairns said, in Suburban Hotel Co. (e), that the Vice-Chancellor was right in calling a meeting, supports this view, for as he came to the conclusion that the substratum of the company was not gone, the meeting would on any other view have been useless.

REDUCTION OF CONTRACTS OF ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

The Court, in the case of an assurance Company which has been proved to be unable to pay its debts, may, if it thinks fit, reduce the amount of the contracts of the Company upon such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks just, in place of making a winding-up order (f).

This power is very rarely used, and, as will be seen, does not appear a very useful one having regard to section 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. As the power is given in place of making a winding-up order, it would seem that it should be exercised on a petition to wind-up (g). All applications to reduce contracts have been made, so far as appears from the books, in such way (h). If the petitioner desires that contracts shall be reduced, he can apply for it as an alternative on his petition (g). If some one else desires it, it would seem that he can ask for it at the hearing without making any substantive application (i), though perhaps it would be desirable to have a motion asking to stay all further proceedings on the winding-up petition, and either to approve a scheme which has been prepared by the applicant, or to appoint some person to make an inquiry and report as to the terms and conditions upon and subject to which the contracts of the company should be reduced, and to settle a scheme for reducing such contracts for the approval of the Court and that such person may be at liberty to exercise and do any power or thing given or authorized by O. 36, rr. 49 to 52 (both inclusive), R. S. C. (k). No order can be made under the section where the company is in liquidation, it provides, as an alternative to payment by the liquidator, payment by the Court (l), and creditors including persons whose claims have at the date of the petition ripened into a debt, cannot have their rights altered under it (m); but in both these cases it would seem that section 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, would apply, and under it everything that could be done under this section, and, as above indicated, more, can, it would seem, be done. Moreover, section 120 enables a scheme on these lines to be carried out by means of a sale to a new company, section 18 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, does not (n). Under section 18 there can be no release of premiums in arrear, or other debts due to the company (m).

The date for ascertaining the rights of the parties is the winding-up petition (o), and there must be equality in the reduction having regard to their rights at such date, though perhaps not absolute arithmetical equality (p), moreover, the holders of participating and non-participating policies, will have their policies reduced equally (o).

on such an application, and the Board frequently has a report on the scheme prepared (q); and while in urgent cases the Court may proceed without waiting for such report (r), the petition is usually stood over to enable the Board of Trade and the parties to consider the scheme (q). The Court will sometimes appoint a provisional liquidator while the scheme is pending (s), and on occasion it will exercise the power conferred on it by sections 145 and 219 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and direct that meetings shall be held to see whether the persons concerned prefer a reduction of contracts to a winding-up (t).

Where no scheme is submitted to the Court, or even, it is thought, where there is such a scheme, the Court can refer the whole matter to an independent actuary to prepare a proper scheme (u).

The Court will not, of course, sanction a scheme which involves a business being carried on in an illegal manner, e.g. the non-separation of funds where section 3 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, requires them to be separated (v).

ORIGINAL AND SUBSTITUTED PETITIONERS.

A petitioner is dominus litis and can withdraw his petition or consent to its being dismissed (x), but if it has once been advertised (y) this must be done at the hearing, and the petition must come into the paper in the ordinary way, as creditors and contributories who appear have been invited to do so by the advertisement (z), and will usually be entitled to their costs (a). As a petition is dismissed if the petitioner does not appear, unless some one is substituted as petitioner, it was formerly held that it was not necessary for a petitioner who proposed to withdraw his petition or to consent to its being dismissed, to appear at the hearing, and if before the hearing he had arranged with the company to withdraw the petition on payment of his costs, his costs of appearance would not be included in such costs (b), but this ruling would not, it is thought, having regard to the present rule as to substituting petitioners, hold good now. Where such an arrangement is made the costs should always include the costs of creditors and contributories appearing.

When a petitioner consents to withdraw his petition, or to allow it to be dismissed, or the hearing adjourned or fails to appear in support of his petition when it is called on in Court on the day originally fixed for the hearing thereof, or any day to which the hearing has been adjourned (c), or, if appearing, does not apply for an order in the terms of the prayer of his petition, the Court may, upon such terms as it may think just, substitute as petitioner any creditor or contributory who, in the opinion of the Court would have a right to present a petition, and who is desirous of prosecuting the petition (d).

It has been held (e) that where the original petitioner's debt was not at the date of the hearing a good petitioner's debt, a judgment under O. 14, R. S. C., having been reversed between the presentation and hearing of the petition and unconditional leave to defend given to the company, another petitioner could not be substituted, but the case turned partly on the fact that the petitioner asked for the petition to be adjourned, and not withdrawn or dismissed, not a very intelligible reason, having regard to the fact that even the old rule applied where the petitioner consented to his petition being adjourned, and, moreover, the case does not seem consistent with Welsh Manufacturing and Woolstapling Co. (f), where a petition which contained grave charges was stood over to enable any creditor or contributory who might wish to do so to apply to be substituted, although the petitioner's debt had been paid, or with the cases (g) where it has been laid down that where a petitioner consents to withdraw his petition the Court cannot look at such petition.

It is thought that now where a petitioner asks for a compulsory order by his petition, but at the hearing only for a supervision order, the Court can, on the application of a creditor or contributory, make a compulsory order (h); but if the petitioner at the hearing presses for an order in the terms of the prayer of his petition, and is unwilling to withdraw his petition, the Court, if it finds that his case is defective, cannot take into account the fact that some person who is supporting has a better case (i). Where a petitioner is substituted the petition will be amended so as to set out the facts of the substituted petitioner's case as though he were the original petitioner, and a fresh statutory affidavit will be filed verifying the amended petition (k). It is, however, often desirable for a person who proposes to apply under the rule to come prepared with an affidavit showing his debt (l).

COSTS.

The usual order as to costs on a winding-up petition on which an order is made is to provide for payment out of the assets of the company of the costs of (1) the petitioner; (2) the company (if it appeared); (3) one set of costs to the creditors, and one to the contributories who support the petition. If the petition fails the petitioner will have to pay (1) the costs of the company; and (2) one set of costs to the creditors and one set of costs to the contributories who oppose the petition (m). But only creditors and contributories who have given notice under the rules, will be allowed to participate in any costs that may be given (n), and if a creditor or contributory who supports or opposes the petition appears by the solicitor who appears for the petitioner (o), or by the company's solicitor (p), he will not in the absence of a special order be entitled to participate in any costs which may be given, for his name should have been added to the brief of the petitioner or the company, as the case may be. Where creditors and contributories who support or oppose a petition appear by the same solicitor, they will, as a rule, only get one set of costs between them, but the taxing officer has in this case a discretion to allow separate costs, even if the order is silent on the point (q). Even when the petition contains charges of fraud against directors, they will rarely, if ever, be allowed any further costs, for the defence rests with the company, and if any creditor or contributory chooses to put in an affidavit, the Court has the fullest power of refusing to allow such affidavit to be read, though, of course, the directors will usually put in an affidavit on behalf of the company and as part of its defence (r). The company will usually get a full set of costs (r).

Where an order is made giving a set of costs to creditors or contributories opposing or supporting a petition, the costs allowed will not include either payments for copies of evidence in support of the petition in opposition thereto or in reply, or the costs of perusal of such evidence or of providing copies of such evidence for counsel, or large fees to counsel, except, perhaps, where the petition is not full enough, or a creditor or contributory has to answer such evidence or there are other special circumstances. Counsel appearing for creditors or contributories are not expected to take a prominent part at the hearing of the petition (t).

Creditors have the same rights to costs on a contributory's petition as they have on a creditor's petition (u), but where it is clear that a creditor or contributory is simply appearing for the purpose of making costs his costs will not be allowed (x).

Where the company is in liquidation the liquidator should not appear separately, and will not be allowed a separate set of costs from the company (y). Where the petition is withdrawn or the petitioner consents to its being dismissed, the Court will not look at the petition, but will allow one set of costs to those creditors and contributories who oppose the petition and another to those who support it (z). It occasionally happens that a petition is presented for a compulsory order, and that at the hearing a supervision order is asked for and granted. It is usual in such cases to give one set of costs to creditors and one set of costs to contributories who support the supervision order, and to disregard the fact that they have given notice to support or oppose the compulsory order.

There have been cases where persons appearing on a petition which is withdrawn have not been allowed their costs, where they have consented to the withdrawal and not pressed for their costs (a), or where the petition stated on the face of it that it was presented owing to a doubt whether a voluntary winding-up resolution would be passed, and such resolution was passed before the hearing of the petition (b). And they have also been disallowed their costs where the petition came into the paper without being advertised—a case which could scarcely occur under the existing rules (c); but the general rule would seem to hold even where a person appearing knows that the petition will be withdrawn or dismissed at the hearing (d), though in such case it might no doubt sometimes be held that he had only appeared to make costs, and costs might consequently be denied him. In some cases where a petition has been withdrawn each person appearing has been allowed a separate set of costs (e), but this is very unusual, and will only be done where no satisfactory reason for the withdrawal is given (f). Where a petitioner was paid and the petition withdrawn and one set of costs was given between two creditors who had appeared, and one of such creditors had since the petition had part of his debt paid, the other was allowed the whole of such costs, on the ground that if an order had been made the creditor who was paid after the petition would not have been in a better position than the other creditor (g).

Where a co-petitioner declined to proceed and revoked the authority given to the solicitor the petition was dismissed with costs (gg): but it submitted that in such case the Court can strike out the name of the person who is unwilling to proceed (ggg).

Where the company had offered to pay a petitioning creditor's debt and all costs (h), including any costs payable to persons appearing on the petition (i), or a petitioning creditor had had a sufficient offer of indemnity against his debt and costs (k), it would seem that he was formerly not usually allowed any costs after the offer; but it may be pointed out that in such case the petitioner may find himself in a difficult position if some one else applies to be substituted as a petitioner, for if an order is made the petitioner will only have a right of proof for his debt and costs. The withdrawal of a petition no doubt constitutes a valuable consideration (l), but if an order is made on the petition, it would seem that any payment that may have been made by the company to the original petitioner will be void unless sanctioned by the Court (m), and it is thought that nowadays a petitioner will not be precluded from proceeding with his petition by the mere fact of an offer being made. Where the petitioner appeared by the company's usual solicitor, his costs were in one case disallowed (n). Where more than one petition has been presented, they will, in the absence of mala fides or collusion, take priority according to the dates when they were presented, and not, as was decided in some of the earlier cases, according to the dates when they were advertised (o). A person presenting a subsequent petition may be entitled to the costs of his petition up to the date when he had notice of the presentation of a prior petition (p), which will now in practically all cases be the date when he presented his own petition, and he may also be entitled to share in the costs of creditors or contributories supporting the first petition if it is successful (q), but he will not be entitled to any further costs unless possibly he can show that the earlier petition was collusive and not bonâ fide (r). The wide power of substituting a petitioner given by rule 36 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, would seem to render a second petition unnecessary even in this case, and it may be doubted whether even collusion will justify a second petition, having regard to this rule, which did not exist at the time of the decisions referred to above. It is thought that the mere fact of a petition being advertised will not necessarily be notice to a second petitioner of the fact that it has been presented (s). The fact that a petition has been advertised for a day on which it cannot be heard, e.g. a legal holiday, will not justify the presentation of a second petition (t).

There have been cases (u) where a second petitioner has been ordered to pay the costs of the company on his petition, but it is thought that this is unusual.

Where a petition has stood over generally, e.g. under a St. Thomas' Dock Order, the position of a subsequent petitioner would seem to be different, though even in this case, he may have to divide one set of costs with the earlier petitioner (x).

The question of the priority of the petitioner's costs is dealt with later. He will be entitled to payment of such costs, even where he has neglected to pay calls made on him in the winding-up (y).

Even where an order for winding up has been made against a company, the company's costs are allowed out of its assets (z). Where a petition has been dismissed with costs, the directors cannot, at all events without the sanction of the articles of the company or of a general meeting, apply the assets of the company in paying such costs (a).

Where the company does not oppose the petition and no creditor or contributory has given notice of the intention to oppose in manner provided by the rules, the Court will treat the petition as unopposed, and it will consequently hear it when it is first called (b), the practice being not to hear opposed petitions until all the petitions in the day's paper have been called. If no one appears for any party when a petition is called on for a second time, the petition will be dismissed without costs.

At one time it was not unusual in making a winding-up order to provide that only certain proceedings, which were specified in the order, might be taken until further directions were given by the Court; but the Court will not, except in the case of an ancillary winding-up, now make orders in this form (c), and it will not make an order which is not to be drawn up till a future date (d).

When an order for the winding-up of a company or for the appointment of the official receiver as provisional liquidator prior to the making of an order for the winding-up of the company, has been pronounced in Court, the Registrar must, on the same day, send to the official receiver a notice informing him that the order has been pronounced.

The notice may be in Forms 13 and 14 in the Appendix to the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, respectively, with such variations as circumstances may require (e).

(Title.)

To the Official Receiver of the Court.

(Address.)

Order pronounced this day by the Honourable Mr. Justice [or, as the case may be] on petition for winding-up the under-mentioned Company under the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908.

NOTIFICATION TO OFFICIAL RECEIVER OF ORDER PRONOUNCED FOR APPOINTMENT OF OFFICIAL RECEIVER AS PROVISIONAL LIQUIDATOR PRIOR TO WINDING-UP ORDER BEING MADE (g).

(Title.)

(Address.)

Order pronounced this day by the Honourable Mr. Justice [or, as the case may be] for the appointment of an Official Receiver as Provisional Liquidator prior to any Winding-up Order being made.

Name of Company.	Registered Office of Company.	Petitioner's Solicitor.	Date of Presentation of Petition.

It is the duty of the petitioner, or his solicitor or London agent, and of all other persons who have appeared on the hearing of the petition, at latest on the day following the day on which an order for the winding-up of a company is pronounced in Court, to leave at the Registrar's office all the documents required for the purpose of enabling the Registrar to complete the order forthwith (h). In ordinary cases no one attends at the drawing up of the order.

(f) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, Appendix, Form 13.

(g) Ibid., Form 14.

It is not necessary for the Registrar to make an appointment to settle the order, unless in any particular case the special circumstances make an appointment necessary (i).

An order to wind up a company must contain at the foot thereof a notice stating that it will be the duty of the person who is at the time secretary or chief officer of the company, and of such of the persons who are liable to make out or concur in making out the company's statement of affairs as the official receiver may require, to attend on the official receiver forthwith on the service of the order at the place mentioned therein (k).

The official receiver not infrequently instructs the petitioner's solicitor in cases where he requires his assistance, but he is in no way obliged to do so, and in ordinary cases and for ordinary purposes he acts in person.

EFFECT OF ORDER

An order for winding-up is, until set aside, binding on the company and on all contributories of the company, and this, even though the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order (t). And so it has more than once been held that the question whether a winding-up order was validly made, cannot be considered on an application to enforce a call (a). It is thought that such an order will also be binding on creditors of the company, for they are, on giving proper notices, entitled to be heard (b), and an order for winding-up a company operates in favour of all creditors, and of all the contributories of the company as if made on the joint petition of a creditor and of a contributory (c). But other persons are not bound by the order (d), and so a purchaser from the liquidator can take the objection that the order was made by a Court which had no jurisdiction to make it (e).

A Judge can before the order is drawn up, alter it, and can therefore, after making a winding-up order, make an order dismissing the petition at any time before the order is actually drawn up (f). But once an order has been drawn up the Court cannot rescind it, even though it was obtained by mistake (g), or where it shows on the face of it that it is bad (h). The remedy in such case is either by an application to stay all further proceedings in the winding-up, or by appeal. The only exceptions to this rule are where the order has been obtained by default, no one except the petitioner appearing at the hearing (i), or where there has been a slip in the order and it does not carry out the intention of the Court (k). In such cases it is thought that the order might be rescinded, though the case of an order by default is not at all clear.

Where a judgment has been obtained by consent it can be set aside on any grounds on which an agreement could be set aside (l), and where an order has been obtained by fraud (m), or fresh material facts have been obtained since an order, and such facts could not have been previously obtained (n), the Court can, no doubt, set aside the order. In all these cases it would seem necessary to start an action to set aside the order.

STAY OF WINDING-UP.

The Court may at any time after an order for winding-up, on the application of any creditor or contributory, and on proof to the satisfaction of the Court that all proceedings in relation to the winding-up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the proceedings, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit (o).

Even where all the creditors of a company have been paid or have agreed to an application under this section the court will not make an order under this section as a matter of course, but it will consider whether it is desirable in the interest of commercial morality that the winding-up should continue, and so the fact of an investigation being desirable will influence the Court and make it slow to grant an order (p). The jurisdiction of rescinding a receiving order or annulling an adjudication in bankruptcy is analogous (q), and the winding-up Court in making an order under the section will be guided by the principles which guide the Bankruptcy Court in such cases (p). The Court will not usually make an order under the section unless all creditors are paid or satisfied (r), and it has made orders reserving liberty to any dissentient creditor to apply within three months to remove the stay (s).

Sometimes, too, a person making an application under the section has been put on terms to buy the interest of opposing contributories (t). Formerly this section provided a way of carrying out schemes under the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870. Section 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, enables going companies to enter into arrangements, but where there is a likelihood of creditors taking proceedings while such an arrangement is pending it may be desirable for a company to go into winding-up, and then to stay all further proceedings under the winding-up except so far as may be necessary for the purposes of the scheme. There is no objection to a partial stay of the winding-up proceedings being granted, and such an order has been made in several cases (u).

The practice is to make applications under this section by motion. The official receiver must be served and must appear at the hearing. They can only be made by a creditor or a contributory (x), and a contributory who applies must be prepared to admit himself to be a contributory (y). Such applications must be made in the winding-up, and must be served on the liquidator of the company.

ORDER STAYING WINDING-UP PROCEEDINGS.

(Title.)

UPON Motion on the 14th and 21st November and this day made unto this Court by Counsel on behalf of E.T. and E.M. respectively contributories of the above-named Company and upon hearing Counsel for Harold de Vaux Brougham the Official Receiver and Provisional Liquidator of the above-named Company, and upon reading the order to wind-up the above-named Company dated the 24th October 1911 the three several affidavits of E.T. filed respectively the 13th 21st and 28th November 1911 and the exhibits in the said affidavits or some of them respectively referred to.

THIS COURT DOTH ORDER that upon payment by the above-named applicants E.T. and E.M. to the said Harold de Vaux Brougham as such Official Receiver and Provisional Liquidator as aforesaid of the sum of five guineas for his fees and expenses as such Official Receiver and Provisional Liquidator and also £9 9*s*. his agreed Costs of this application all further proceedings under the said Order of 24th October 1911 be stayed. APPEALS.

The time given by the rules (z) for appealing from a winding-up order is, except where special leave is given, fourteen days from the time when the order is perfected, and the appeal must be entered for hearing before the day named in the notice of appeal, or, if the offices are then closed, before the next day when the Court of Appeal sits (a). Special leave to extend the time for appealing will not be granted on an ex parte application (b), and it would seem that on an appeal against an order dismissing a winding-up petition, the Court will be slow to grant an extension of time for appealing, because such an order is not so final as most final orders, and the business of a company is paralyzed by the company having a winding-up petition pending (c). Special leave may, however, be granted in cases where circumstances other than the respondent's conduct make it right to grant relief (d), and it has been granted more than a year after the order was made, when the appellant appealed directly he heard of the order (e).

Appeals from a winding-up order should be entered in the interlocutory list (f). A fourteen days' notice of appeal is, however, necessary (g).

Though the Court of first instance may hear a person who is not either a creditor or a contributory as amicus curiæ, such a person may not appeal (h), and special leave will be required where a creditor, or, it is thought, a contributory who has not appeared in the Court below wishes to appeal (i).

Where a company appealed from a winding-up order it was formerly usual if the appeal failed, to give the respondents their costs out of the estate (k), but to make no order as to the appellants' costs, thus depriving the appellants, who would in effect usually be the directors, of their costs; but this was felt to be hard on the creditors of the company, as not infrequently the result was to saddle them with the respondents' costs, and the Court will now order persons appealing from a winding-up order to find security for costs (l), UPON MOTION this day made unto this Court by Counsel for the Official Receiver and Liquidator of the above-named Company and upon hearing the order dated the 3rd February 1909 and an affidavit of H.M. filed the 26th January 1909 and the exhibits therein referred to.

THIS COURT DOTH ORDER that in default of the said Company on or before the 25th March 1909 procuring some sufficient person on their behalf to give security to the satisfaction of the Judge in case the parties differ by bond to the said Official Receiver and Liquidator in the sum of £100 conditioned to answer costs in case any shall be awarded to be paid by the said Company on this appeal against the said order or instead of giving such security as aforesaid lodging within the same period the sum of £100 in Court as directed in the Lodgment Schedule hereto the said appeal do stand dismissed out of this Court without further order with costs to be taxed by the Taxing Master and paid by the said Company to the Applicant.

AND IT IS ORDERED that until such security shall have been given or such lodgment made and notice thereof given to the Official Receiver and Liquidator all proceedings on the said appeal be stayed.

On an appeal from a winding-up order or an order dismissing a winding-up petition, the appellant must make up his mind whether he wishes to disturb the order with regard to any costs which may have been given to creditors or contributories who appeared in the Court below. If he decides not to appeal from that part of the order he should write to such persons informing them of the appeal and of the fact that it does not extend to the part of the order giving them their costs, and he should not serve them with the notice of appeal which will, of course, only deal with so much of the order as is being appealed from. If the appellant takes this course and persons who have received such letters choose to appear on the appeal and oppose it, they will be entitled to do so, and if the appeal fails one set of costs will be given to the creditors appearing and opposing, and one to the shareholders doing likewise. If the appellant does not take this course such persons will all get their costs (n).

The Court of Appeal will not hear creditors or contributories in support of the appeal (o).

The official receiver has no right to appear on an appeal, but sometimes the Court of Appeal ask him for information in relation to the company's affairs. He is sometimes served with the notice of appeal, but never made a respondent. As appears from the order above set out, he sometimes applies for an order for security for costs of the appeal.

Notice of the said meeting to be sent by post at least 14 clear days before the day appointed for the meeting to each of the shareholders of the above-named company at their respective addresses appearing in the books of the said company and the form of notice and proxy for use at the said meeting are to be approved by the Registrar.

CHAPTER X.

Effect of Winding-up Order.

A winding-up of a company by the Court is deemed to commence at the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding-up (a), and an order for winding-up operates in favour of all the creditors and of all the contributories of the company as if made on the joint petition of a creditor and of a contributory (b).

In the case of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, every disposition of the property (including things in action) of the company, and every transfer of shares, or alteration in the status of its members, made after the commencement of the winding-up will, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void (c).

A transaction which rests in contract only is not a disposition of property, and so section 153 of the 1862 Act did not give the Court jurisdiction to validate transactions which rested only in contract at the date of the winding-up order. Thus, if at the date of such order a company was under contract to supply goods (d), or had given bills (e), and the company subsequently supplied such goods or met the bills, the Court could not make an order validating such Act, but the creditor was entitled to prove for damages for breach of contract. The present section, however, unlike the old one, does not apply only between the date of the petition and that of the order, and it would seem that the Court has now jurisdiction to authorize or validate dispositions made after a winding-up order, but in pursuance of a contract before such order. The section does not affect the liability of a person who is liable to pay money (f) or to transfer property (g) to a company, and such a person will be bound to make the payment or transfer notwithstanding the fact that a petition has been presented.

In deciding whether to validate an act the Court will be guided by the bankruptcy provisions as to protected transactions (h).

Ordinarily the Court will validate acts done by the company in the ordinary course of its business (i). Thus, the Court has sanctioned payments made for goods as they were supplied, while declining to sanction payments made for goods previously supplied, although the further goods were only supplied on the terms that the original goods should be paid for immediately (k).

Where goods had been placed on trucks for delivery, it was held that in the circumstances of the case the property in them had passed to the purchaser and the transaction, being a bonâ fide one, and in the ordinary course of the company's business, was sanctioned by the Court (l). And the same result followed where the company was about to sell its business, and gave a charge to creditors who were pressing, in order to enable the sale to go through. In this case the directors had joined in the charge as sureties, and, having been compelled to pay, got the benefit of the order of the Court (m).

Where a company has given a lien on property, and such lien attaches to part of such property after the petition is presented, the charge so given will be valid even without an order of the Court, and will not come within the section at all (n).

The Court has declined to sanction payments made to creditors who had advanced moneys with knowledge that the company was in difficulties, and on the terms that their advances should be repaid out of moneys coming from an issue of shares which was proposed at the date of the advance, but which, in fact, never took place (o). The section, so far as it deals with transfers, is dealt with later (p).

Payments made with the knowledge that there was a petition, and on the terms that if an order was made the person paying should have the payment treated as a loan or as a payment on account of calls, whichever he chose, were held to be avoided as a payment on account of calls and as involving a change in the status of the member paying (q). For the same reason the registration of an unregistered company pending a petition, was held invalid (r). Where a creditor had presented a petition and on payment of part of his debt agreed to withdraw the petition if the rest of it were paid, he was compelled to refund what had been paid, when on the company failing to make the further payment, he proceeded with his petition, and obtained a winding-up order (s).

The Court can while a winding-up petition is pending, and it would seem now, even after an order has been made, authorize dispositions of property under the section (t). Where directors have made payments which are void under the section, they will be personally liable to make good to the company any loss it may have suffered thereby, even though the payees are perfectly solvent and no attempt has been made to recover such payments from them (u). A winding-up order does not, it is thought, terminate ordinary trading contracts entered into before the order was made (x). The position in such cases would appear to be that the liquidator can only insist on payment or delivery of goods, as the case may be, on performing his part of the agreement and making good any breaches that occurred before liquidation. The other party, if he wishes to insist on the contract, can only insist on the strict terms of the contract including any terms as to giving credit, and it will be open to the liquidator to repudiate the contract and leave the other party to prove for damages (y).

At any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up and before a winding-up order has been made, the company or any creditor or contributory may—and the Court or division to which application is so made may, as the case may be, stay or restrain the proceedings accordingly on such terms as it thinks fit (z).

With these sections must be read sections 142 and 211 of the Act (a), which provide as follows :—

142. When a winding-up order has been made, no action or proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

211. Where any Company being a Company registered in England or Ireland is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, any attachment, sequestration, distress, or execution put in force against the estate or effects of the Company after the commencement of the winding up, shall be void to all intents.

It has been held that though section 211 is very explicit in terms, it must be read with the earlier sections, and that consequently the Court can give leave to proceed with an attachment sequestration, distress, or execution, in a proper case (b). In Scotland, however, the Courts have taken a different view (c).

With regard to companies registered in Scotland section 213 of the Act contains the following special provisions :—

In the winding-up, by or subject to the supervision of the Court, of a Company registered in Scotland, the following provisions shall have effect :—

(1) The winding-up shall, in the case of a winding-up by the Court as at its commencement, and in the case of a winding up subject to supervision as at the date of the presentation of the petition on which the supervision order is pronounced, be equivalent to an arrestment in execution and decree of forthcoming, and to an executed or completed poinding ; and no arrestment or poinding of the funds or effects of the Company, executed on or after the sixtieth day prior to the commencement of the winding-up by the Court, or to the presentation of the petition on which a supervision order is made, as the case may be, shall be effectual ; and those funds or effects, or the proceeds of those effects, if sold, shall be made forthcoming to the liquidator: Provided that any arrester or poinder before the date of the winding-up, or of the petition, as the case may be, who is thus deprived of the benefit of his diligence, shall have preference out of those funds or effects for the expense bonâ fide incurred by him in such diligence:

(2) The winding up shall, as at the respective dates aforesaid, be equivalent to a decree of adjudication of the heritable estates of the Company for payment of the whole debts of the Company, principal and interest, accumulated at the said dates respectively, subject to such preferable heritable rights and securities as existed at the said dates and are valid and unchallengeable, and the right to poind the ground herein-after provided:

(3) The provisions of sections one hundred and twelve to one hundred and seventeen, and of section one hundred and twenty, of the Bankruptcy (Scotland) Act, 1856, shall, so far as is consistent with this Act, apply to the realisation of heritable estates affected by such heritable rights and securities as aforesaid; and for the purposes of this Act the words "sequestration" and "trustee" occurring in those sections shall mean respectively "winding up" and "liquidator"; and the expression "the Lord Ordinary or the Court" shall mean "the Court" as defined by this Act with respect to Scotland:

(4) No poinding of the ground which has not been carried into execution by sale of the effects sixty days before the respective dates aforesaid shall, except to the extent herein-after provided, be available in any question with the liquidator: Provided that no creditor who holds a security over the heritable estate preferable to the right of the liquidator shall be prevented from executing a poinding of the ground after the respective dates aforesaid, but that poinding shall in competition with the liquidator be available only for the interest on the debt for the current half-yearly term, and for the arrears of interest for one year immediately before the commencement of that term.

The cardinal principle which governs all winding-up proceedings is that there is to be equality among the various creditors of the company.

The principles which guide the Court in granting or refusing leave to proceed with a distress were laid down in the Oak Pits Colliery Co. Case (d).

With regard to rent in arrear at the commencement of a winding-up, the Court will not give leave, even where the liquidator has retained possession after the commencement of the winding-up (e).

An exception to this rule is the case where the landlord is not a creditor of the company, as, e.g., where the company has subleased from the original lessee or his assignee. In this case the landlord has no right of proof against the company, as he is not one of its creditors, and section 211 has therefore no application to his case. It follows that if he levies a distress the Court cannot prevent him from so doing (f), though it would seem to be otherwise where such a landlord is a creditor for the rent, though not under the lease—for instance, where he has received bills for the rent (g). A landlord who is not a creditor must, it is thought, obtain leave to distrain. The fact that the liquidator in such a case has offered to allow the landlord to come in and prove will make no difference to the latter's right of distress, at all events where such offer has not been accepted (h). Where the landlord had power to re-enter and stop the working of certain mines leased to the company, and he put the liquidator to his election between giving up the mines or paying the whole rent due up to date (including rent for a period prior to winding up), and the liquidator had continued to work the mines for the benefit of the company, the landlord's claim for the whole of the rent was given priority (i). But in a case where the facts were similar in all respects, except that the landlord had not put the liquidator to his election, the landlord was not allowed to distrain (k).

It is not settled whether the Court can restrain a distress which has commenced before the winding-up petition; it probably has power to do so, but in such case will usually either allow the distress to proceed (l) or direct the liquidator to pay the landlord the rent for which he has distrained.

Where the rent has accrued due after the winding-up, and the liquidator has retained possession for the benefit of the company, there the landlord is entitled to be paid and will be given leave to distrain for the rent which has accrued since the winding up only (m); but where the liquidator retains possession not for the benefit of the company only, but also for the benefit of the landlord (n), or where, though the liquidator has, technically speaking, retained possession of the property, he has not made use of it in any way (o), the landlord will only be entitled to prove, and leave to distrain will not be given. A mortgagee who is given a power of distress by his charge, is in a worse position than a landlord, on an application for leave to distrain, for he can always enforce his charge, and so the Court will be slow to give him leave to distrain (p).

C. D. 250. The last cited case shows that s. 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875 (now replaced by section 207 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908), does not give to a landlord where there is a winding-up the right of distress for six months' arrears of rent, which the Bankruptcy Acts confer on a landlord where there is a bankruptcy.

The Court will in a proper case apportion the rent due but not payable before the winding-up, and while giving leave to distrain for rent accrued since winding-up, will decline to give leave to distrain for rent that became due before (q).

None of these remarks apply to distresses against the property of a company in liquidation, if such property is so charged that there can be no surplus for the liquidator after paying the persons entitled to the benefit of such charge (r). Turning to the question of executions as opposed to distresses, much the same principles apply as those above set out in relation to distresses. Thus, where the execution has been issued and the sheriff is in actual possession at the date of the winding-up, it is doubtful if the Court can prevent the execution being proceeded with, and it will, at all events, be exceedingly slow to do so (s). Section 207 of the Act (which so far as liquidations are concerned replaces section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875) does not import the Bankruptcy Rules into a winding-up in this case (t), and leave to proceed with an execution has also been given where the sheriff would have obtained possession before the petition had not his entry been resisted (u).

Leave has also been given where a creditor has held his hand and refrained from issuing execution because of representations made by the company (x), and where the execution has been delayed by the company's taking every step to delay proceedings in an action to which it had no possible defence (y), and where the company has by means of trickery persuaded the creditor not to issue execution (z).

A question has been raised as to whether a creditor who has delivered a writ of execution to the sheriff before the commencement of the winding-up, is protected by these rules, if the sheriff has not taken possession before that time. It would seem that in this case a creditor will not be allowed to proceed with his execution (a), it will, however, be otherwise where a creditor has issued his writ and handed it to a sheriff who is already in possession for another execution creditor (b).

The reason why protection is given to execution creditors where they have issued execution before the commencement of the winding-up and to a landlord who has then issued a distress, is that by such acts they have become secured creditors (c).

Where a receiver has been appointed of personal property, however, this gives no charge (d), and consequently such appointment will not give priority even if the receiver has given security at the date of the winding-up (e). Apparently it would be different where a receiver has been appointed over realty (f).

A garnishee order will give priority if it has been served on the garnishee before the winding-up (g), but not otherwise (h). The English Courts take the view that leave to proceed should be given in the case of a Scotch sequestration for rent (i) or an arrestment in dependence of a Scotch action obtained before winding-up and subsequently completed by decree (k), as in the former case a charge which already exists is declared, and in the latter the decree relates back (l). The Scotch courts, however, looked upon these processes as also the process of pounding the ground (m) for rent as being altogether outside section 163 of the 1862 Act which corresponded with section 211, and consequently as not avoided thereby, pounding for rates, however, apparently does not give a charge, and they therefore treated it as void, if effected after the commencement of the winding-up, and, as already stated, they took the view that the Court cannot sanction any transaction, which is within the section (n). Leave was given after a winding-up order to bring an action of furthcoming in Scotland, as this appeared to be the only means of obtaining the fruits of an arrestment made before the petition was presented (nn).

Where the sheriff is not in possession at the date of the petition, or the landlord or other creditor has not then succeeded in getting a charge, the Court will practically never give leave to proceed either with an execution or a distress or any other kind of process for recovering debts incurred at the date of the winding-up (o), and the Court will not give leave even where the sheriff is then in possession, if the execution was collusively levied (p). Where any process is avoided by the section, it is, unless sanctioned by the Court, void for all purposes, and an execution creditor whose execution is void under the section will therefore not be allowed to defend an action in the name of the company for setting aside debentures (q). Where a sheriff was in possession of a theatre at the commencement of the winding-up he was not allowed to retain moneys received at the door after the winding-up (r).

Execution has been allowed to proceed in a voluntary winding-up, where the execution was for costs ordered to be paid in an action commenced by the liquidators (s). The Court cannot under the Act restrain an action against directors of a company in liquidation (t) or against any person who is sued as a co-defendant of such a company (u), or an inquiry under section 42 of the Tramways Act, 1870, against the promoters of the company (x), though, no doubt, in a proper case it has power to do so under its general jurisdiction (y). The Court will, moreover, not restrain proceedings in a winding-up, where the liquidator has himself taken steps in such proceedings. Thus, where a liquidator appealed successfully against an order made before the winding-up, the other party was entitled to appeal to the House of Lords without obtaining leave (z), and a counter claim may be proceeded with without leave (a). Moreover, the Court has declined to stay an action which was actually in the day's paper. In this case the jury had been sworn, and it was intimated that the proper course for the liquidator to have taken was to have applied beforehand to stay the proceedings (b).

Where leave to proceed has been given, the Court of Appeal will usually not interfere with the Judge's discretion (c), though it will sometimes do so when leave has been refused (d).

Where an action is being brought by a mortgagee to enforce his security, the Court will always give leave to proceed, for he is altogether outside the winding-up, and the sections are not meant to apply in such cases (e). In Ireland the Court has set aside a judgment, as having been obtained after a winding-up order (f).

With regard to proceedings in foreign Courts, the sections do not in terms apply to foreign Courts, except Scotch or Irish Courts; but, nevertheless, there are cases where the Court here will restrain such proceedings (g).

First of all, with regard to proceedings in Scotch and Irish Courts. Such proceedings seem to stand on precisely the same footing as English proceedings and section 180 of the Act, which enables orders to be enforced throughout the United Kingdom, enables the Court here to make an order restraining even a domiciled Scotchman or Irishman from proceeding with an action, in the country of his domicile or any other part of the United Kingdom (h), or it is thought elsewhere (hh); but the Court will apparently not use this jurisdiction so as to deprive a person of any charge he has obtained in such Courts on property locally situate there, e.g. a charge on debts for calls due from shareholders domiciled there (i), though it will stay the action on the terms that such stay shall not affect any priority the plaintiff has got by the action (k).

With regard to foreign Courts in the ordinary sense of the word, the Court here will not deprive a person of any charge he has obtained in such Courts on property within their jurisdiction (i), and the Court here will be slow to restrain an action in the Court of a foreign state against immovable property which is situate in such state, even if it has jurisdiction to do so (l). Moreover, the Court here cannot interfere where an order in rem has been obtained in a foreign Court against property locally situate there, nor will the person who has obtained such order hold the property against which such order has been made or the proceeds of sale thereof in trust for the other creditors of the company. This was held in a case where a person who by German law had a lien on a ship, started proceedings on the day such ship arrived in a German port, which was also the day of the winding-up order, and subsequently obtained an order for the sale of the ship, and sold it and took the proceeds in satisfaction of his debt (m). The Court can, however, restrain a domiciled Englishman from taking proceedings in a foreign Court (n).

Thus, in one case (o), proceedings taken in an American Court by the petitioners with a view to gaining priority were stayed, and in another (p) the Court here stayed proceedings in a Portuguese Court.

In Oriental Inland Steam Co. (q), an English company which had seized goods in India, was ordered in an English liquidation to refund the proceeds of sale of such goods. In this case the company which had seized the goods had proved in the liquidation, though the decision does not seem to turn on this. In several cases (r) actions and executions abroad have been stayed without prejudice to the rights of the persons who have brought the actions or levied the executions.

The rights of the Crown are in no way affected by these sections (s), but the sections do apply to proceedings by overseers for poor-rates (t), and to quasi-criminal proceedings for penalties (u).

Formerly, if an action was proceeded with without leave, the absence of leave was a matter for an injunction, but could not be pleaded in bar to an action (x); but section 24 (5) of the Judicature Act, 1873, would seem to have changed this (y).

Applications to stay or restrain proceedings under section 140 must, if those proceedings are pending in the Court of Appeal, or the High Court in England or Ireland, be made to the Court where they are pending (z) applications under section 140, and should be made on an ex parte application (a). All applications under section 140, except those above mentioned (including cases where the proceedings are pending in an inferior court), and all applications under section 142 for leave to proceed must be made to the winding-up Court (b). Applications under section 142 should not be made ex parte (c). Applications in the Chancery Division under section 140 are by summons or motion—all other applications whether under sections 140 or 142 are made by summons (d). Such summons or motion in the case of an application under section 140 to restrain proceedings in an action in the High Court or the Court of Appeal is in the action (dd). In the case of other actions and in the case of applications under section 142 for leave to proceed, the application is in the winding-up. In both cases the application must be supported by an affidavit setting out the facts (e).

Turning to the cases where the Court has and where it has not given leave to proceed with actions.

Where a landlord brings an ejectment action and the company has no defence, leave to proceed will be given almost as a matter of course (f), and the same remark applies where the company is a necessary party to an action against it and others (g), though usually in this latter case the plaintiff will be put on terms not to proceed to execution against the company without the leave of the Court (h). The cases where the assets of the company are completely covered with debentures have already been considered, there again leave will usually be given (i).

In other cases the question would seem to be largely one of what is the most convenient course to take, though usually execution will not be allowed to be levied without the leave of the Court.

It has been held that the question whether a person has a lien on a ship can most conveniently be tried on a winding-up summons (k), except where there are rights of other mortgagees to be considered when leave to proceed with an Admiralty action has been given (l).

Again, leave has been given where there were complicated questions of fact, and as to mutual dealings to be tried (m), and also where an injunction was sought to stop the sale of the assets of a company in voluntary winding-up to one being compulsorily wound-up (n).

An action to establish a lien for unpaid purchase money has been allowed to proceed (o). Leave will usually not be given to proceed where previous claims of the same sort have been put forward, and dismissed with costs, and such costs have not been paid (p), and leave has been given for a plaintiff to proceed with his action on the terms that, if successful, he should only have a right of proof for his costs (q); but where the liquidator has continued the action it would seem that the other party will be entitled to his full costs, and not merely to the right to prove for the same (r): and where a liquidator proposed to appeal from an adverse decision, an order was made in the winding-up that he should pay the costs, on an undertaking that they should be returned if the appeal succeeded (rr). A liquidator should apply for a stay of proceedings upon the terms that the plaintiff is to be entitled to prove for his claim (s). An agent employed in a winding-up to get in the assets of the company in Scotland was restrained from bringing an action for his salary and getting a charge on the assets there (t), and the Court of Appeal has restrained proceedings for costs awarded by it (u).

In a compulsory winding-up the onus is always on the person who wishes to show that the action should be continued notwithstanding the winding-up (x).

The provisions of the Act with respect to staying and restraining actions and proceedings against a company at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding-up, and before the making of a winding-up order, extend, in the case of a company registered under Part VII. of the Act and of an unregistered company, where the application to stay or restrain is by a creditor, to actions and proceedings against any contributory of the company (y).

Where the order has been made for winding-up a company registered under Part VII. of the Act or an unregistered company, no action or proceeding may be commenced or proceeded with against the company or any contributory of the company in respect of any debt of the company, except by leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose (z).

Form of Order endorsed on above Summons.

In the High Court of Justice,
Companies (Winding-up).
Mr. Registrar Hood.

Tuesday, the 15th day of December, 1908.

Appeared the Solicitors for the Official Receiver and Liquidator.

Read Order to Wind-up dated 14th January, 1908.

Order Leave to commence proceedings as asked by the within Summons.

H. J. Hood,
Registrar.

Transfer of Proceedings.

Section 36 of the Judicature Act, 1873, provides that any cause or matter may at any time and at any stage thereof, and either with or without application from any of the parties thereto be transferred by such authority and in such manner as rules of Court may direct from one division or Judge of the High Court to any other division or Judge thereof, or may by the like authority be retained in the division in which the same was commenced, although such may not be the proper division to which the same cause or matter ought in the first instance to have been assigned.

Order 49, rr. 5 and 5*a* of the Rules of the Supreme Court are as follows:—

5. When an order has been made by any Judge of the Chancery Division for the winding-up of any Company (a), or for the administration of the assets of any testator or intestate, the judge in whose Court such winding-up or administration shall be pending shall have power, without any further consent, to order the transfer to such Judge of any cause or matter pending in any other Court or division brought or continued by or against such Company, or by or against the executors or administrators of the testator or intestate whose assets are being so administered, as the case may be.

5*a*. Upon a winding-up order being made against a Company all chamber proceedings in any action against such Company at the instance or on behalf of debenture holders pending before the Judge to whom for the time being Company business is assigned shall be dealt with by the registrar in Companies winding-up.

These rules are supplemented by rule 42 (1) of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (b).

Where an order has been made in the High Court for the winding-up of a company the Judge (c) has power without further consent, to order the transfer to him of any action, cause or matter pending in any other Court or Division brought or continued by or against the company, and any action or proceeding by a mortgagee or debenture-holder of the company against the company, for the purpose of realising his security, or by any other person, for the purpose of enforcing a claim against the company's assets or property, which is pending in the High Court or before any Judge thereof, is without further order transferred to the Judge of the High Court (d).

Where any action brought by or against a company against which a winding-up order has been made is transferred to the Judge of the High Court, the Registrar (e) may, under the general or special

(a) This has been held to include a supervision order. See post, p. 1268.

(b) See supra, pp. 812 et seq., for the practice in these cases—which is dealt with in considering the transfer of proceedings in a winding-up, and see also r. 46 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (also there set out) for the procedure where winding-up proceedings are transferred. Madras Irrigation and Canal Co. (1881), 16 C. D. 702, was decided under the old rules—and is now no longer law. For form of order transferring proceedings in a supervision case, see post, pp. 1321 and 1322.

(c) The expression "Judge" means in the High Court the Judge who for the time being exercises the jurisdiction of the High Court to wind up companies: Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 2.

(d) This applies to a debenture holder's action commenced in the Manchester or Liverpool District Registry: English McKenna Process, Ltd., Bowering v. The Company, 1911, E. 1238, EADY J. (in Chambers).

(e) The expression "Registrar" means in the High Court any of the Registrars in Bankruptcy of the High Court and any person who is directions of the Judge, hear, determine and deal with any application, matter, or proceeding which, if the action had not been transferred, would have been determined in Chambers. These provisions apply to the proceedings in any action in which by the Rules of the Supreme Court, or otherwise, the Chamber proceedings are directed to be dealt with by the Registrar (f).

The Judge of the High Court may at any time, for good cause shown, order the proceedings in any Court other than the High Court to be transferred to the High Court, or any proceedings in the High Court to be transferred from the High Court to any other Court (g).

OFFICIAL RECEIVER AS PROVISIONAL LIQUIDATOR AFTER A WINDING-UP ORDER.

On a winding-up order being made in England the official receiver by virtue of his office, becomes the provisional liquidator, and he continues to act as such until he or another person becomes liquidator, and is capable of acting as such (h).

The term "official receiver" is defined by section 146 of the Act.

(1) For the purposes of this Act so far as it relates to the winding-up of Companies by the Court in England, the term "official receiver" shall mean the official receiver, if any, attached to the Court for bankruptcy purposes, or if there is more than one such official receiver, then such one of them as the Board of Trade may appoint, or, if there is no such official receiver, then an officer appointed for the purpose by the Board of Trade.

(2) Any such officer shall for the purpose of his duties under this Act be styled the official receiver.

Judicial notice will be taken of the appointment of the official receivers appointed by the Board of Trade.

When the Board of Trade appoints any officer to act as deputy for or in the place of an official receiver, notice thereof must be given by letter to the Court to which such official receiver is or was attached. The letter must specify the duration of such acting appointment.

Any person so appointed will during his tenure of office, have all the status, rights and powers, and be subject to all the liabilities of an official receiver (i).

Where an official receiver is removed from his office by the Board of Trade, notice of the order removing him must be communicated by letter to the Court to which the official receiver was attached (k).

appointed to fill the office of registrar under the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, and where a winding-up of a company is in the district registry of Liverpool or Manchester means the district registrar: ibid., r. 2.

(f) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 42.

(g) Ibid., r. 43.

(h) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 149 (3) (b).

(i) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 198.

(k) Ibid., r. 199.

The Board of Trade may, by general or special directions, determine what acts or duties of the official receiver in relation to the winding-up of companies are to be performed by him in person, and in what cases he may discharge his functions through the agency of his clerks or other persons in his regular employ, or under his official control (l).

An assistant official receiver, appointed by the Board of Trade, will be an officer of the Court, like the official receiver to whom he is assistant, and, subject to the directions of the Board of Trade, he may represent the official receiver in all proceedings in Court, or in any administrative or other matter. Judicial notice will be taken of the appointment of an assistant official receiver, and he may be removed in the same manner as is provided in the case of an official receiver (m).

In the absence of the official receiver any officer of the Board of Trade duly authorised for the purpose by the Board of Trade, and any clerk of the official receiver duly authorised by him in writing, may, by leave of the Court, act on behalf of the official receiver, and take part for him in any public or other examination and in any unopposed application to the Court (n).

The Court cannot appoint any person except the official receiver to be liquidator, either provisionally (o) or otherwise (p), when it is making the winding-up order (pp).

The official receiver can while acting as provisional liquidator, after a winding-up order has been made, settle the list of contributories (q), and it would seem from this case (r) that he can while so acting exercise all the powers which an ordinary liquidator could exercise (rr). In another case (s), however, it was considered doubtful whether he could carry on the business of the company, but the Court on making the winding-up order, inserted a direction enabling the official receiver if he thought fit to carry on the business, which was one dealing in stock of a wasting nature.

Where a company against which a winding-up order has been made has no available assets, the official receiver cannot be required to incur any expense in relation to the winding-up without the express directions of the Board of Trade (t). In practice the official receiver in these cases usually simply performs his statutory duties, that is to say, he requires a statement of affairs, makes his report, and summons the first meetings, and does nothing further, unless creditors or contributories put up money for further proceedings.

On application to the Court to appoint a receiver on behalf of debenture-holders or other creditors, the official receiver may be appointed if the company is being wound up by the Court (u).

SPECIAL MANAGER.

Where the official receiver becomes the liquidator of a company, whether provisionally or otherwise, he may, if satisfied that the nature of the estate or business of the company, or the interests of the creditors or contributories generally, require the appointment of a special manager of the estate or business of the company other than himself, apply to the Court to, and the Court may on such application appoint a special manager thereof during such time as the Court may direct, with such powers, including any of the powers of a receiver or manager, as may be entrusted to him by the Court.

The special manager must give such security (x) and account in such manner as the Board of Trade direct.

The special manager will receive such remuneration as may be fixed by the Court (y).

Where there is a business to be carried on pending the appointment of a liquidator, the official receiver applies for the appointment of a special manager. The application is by summons. The special manager may be either an outsider or some one engaged in the business of the company, according to the circumstances of the case.

An application by the official receiver for the appointment of a special manager must be supported by a report of the official receiver, which must be placed on the file of proceedings, and in which must be stated the amount of remuneration which, in the opinion of the (t) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 203. The order as to fees of December 2nd, 1903, provides that if for any reason the Official Receiver satisfies the Board of Trade that the fees mentioned in such order are excessive then such reduction may be made as is sanctioned by the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury on the application of the Board of Trade. There is some difficulty in deciding in what cases the official receiver should consult the Board of Trade and in what cases the court—usually, however, the fact that the Board of Trade has told him not to do a particular thing will, unless the statute directs him to do that thing, e.g. the making of a report under s. 148 protect him New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency (1895), 71 L. official receiver, ought to be allowed to the special manager. No affidavit by the official receiver in support of the application will be required.

The remuneration of the special manager will, unless the Court otherwise in any special case directs, be stated in the order appointing him, but the Court may at any subsequent time for good cause shown make an order for payment to the special manager of further remuneration.

A copy of the order appointing a special manager must be transmitted to the Board of Trade by the official receiver (z).

Every special manager must account to the official receiver, and the special manager's accounts must be verified by affidavit, and, when approved by the official receiver, the totals of the receipts and payments must be added by the official receiver to his accounts (a). The practice is only to appoint a special manager for a very limited time, and if necessary application is made to extend his period of office.

REPORT OF OFFICIAL SUPPORTING APPLICATION FOR SPECIAL MANAGER.

(Title.)

The Official Receiver for the County Court District of   in the County of   reports to the Court as follows:—

By an Order of the Court made in the above matter on the 24th day of May 1911 he was appointed Provisional Liquidator of the Company and his powers were by the said order limited and restricted to the following acts namely to take possession of and protect the assets of the said Company and to apply for the appointment of a special manager.

He considers that the appointment of a special manager is necessary by reason of the special nature of the Company's business which is that of cotton spinning.

The Company have large transactions in hand and employ a large number of workpeople and the business cannot be carried on except by some one having special knowledge and able to devote personal care and attention to the same. He recommends Mr. S.R. of No.   Street   aforesaid Chartered Accountant should be so appointed and understands that Mr. R. has consented to accept the appointment at a remuneration of £   per week which in his opinion ought to be allowed. Mr. R. is in close touch with the Company's affairs and has full knowledge of them being the auditor of the Company.

STATEMENT OF AFFAIRS.

Where the Court in England has made a winding-up order there must be made out and submitted to the official receiver a statement as to the affairs of the company in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit, and showing the particulars of its assets, debts, and liabilities, the names, residences, and occupations of its creditors, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the official receiver may require.

The statement must be submitted and verified by one or more of the persons who are at the time of the winding-up order the directors, and by the person who is at that time the secretary or other chief officer of the company, or by such of the persons being or having been directors or officers of the company or having taken part in the formation of the company at any time within one year before the winding-up order, as the official receiver, subject to the direction of the Court, may require to submit and verify the same.

The statement must be submitted within fourteen days from the date of the order, or within such extended time as the official receiver or the Court may for special reasons appoint.

Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section will be allowed, and will be paid by the official receiver, out of the assets of the company, such costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and making of the statement and affidavit as the official receiver may consider reasonable, subject to an appeal to the Court.

(b) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, Appendix, Form 20. If an official manager receives remuneration for his services as such, no payment will be allowed in his accounts in respect of the performance by any other person of the ordinary duties which are required by statute or rules to be performed by himself : ibid., r. 186.

If any person, without reasonable excuse, makes default in complying with these requirements, he will be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for every day during which the default continues.

Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company will be entitled by himself or by his agent at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee (c), to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom. But any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory will be guilty of a contempt of Court, and will be punished accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver (d). In practice a liquidator is allowed to inspect the statement of affairs without paying any fee.

This section would seem to apply to de facto directors, and not only to directors who have been regularly appointed, and it has been held to apply to a director whose office was vacated by bankruptcy more than a year before the winding-up, but who had acted within such year, in this case the director had actually become bankrupt within the year, but his bankruptcy related back to an act of bankruptcy committed before that period (e).

Every person who under section 147 of the Act has been required by the official receiver to submit and verify a statement as to the affairs of the company, must be furnished by the official receiver with forms and instructions for the preparation of the statement. The statement must be made out in duplicate, one copy of which must be verified by affidavit. The official receiver must cause to be filed with the Registrar the verified statement of affairs.

The official receiver may from time to time hold personal interviews with every such person for the purpose of investigating the company's affairs, and it will be the duty of every such person to attend on the official receiver at such time and place as the official receiver may appoint and give the official receiver all information that he may require (f).

When any person requires any extension of time for submitting the statement of affairs, he must apply to the official receiver, who may, if he thinks fit, give a written certificate extending the time, which certificate must be filed with the proceedings in the winding-up, and will render an application to the Court unnecessary (g).

(c) See Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 19. The fee for inspection is 1*s*. for each hour or part of an hour occupied, and for copies 4*d*. per folio. Directors and officers of the company or of the Board of Trade do not pay the inspection fee.

After the statement of affairs of a company has been submitted to the official receiver it will be the duty of each person who has made or concurred in making it, if and when required, to attend on the official receiver and answer all such questions as may be put to him, and give all such further information as may be required of him by the official receiver in relation to the statement of affairs (h).

Any default in complying with the requirements of section 147 of the Act, may be reported by the official receiver to the Court (i).

A person who is required to make or concur in making any statement of affairs of a company must before incurring any costs or expenses in and about the preparation and making of the statement, apply to the official receiver for his sanction, and submit a statement of the estimated costs and expenses which it is intended to incur; and, except by order of the Court, no person will be allowed out of the assets of the company any costs or expenses which have not before being incurred been sanctioned by the official receiver (k).

Where a person is liable under the section to submit and verify a statement of affairs and he has failed to do so when required, the Court can direct him on or before a named day to submit and verify a statement of affairs under the section (l), such an order should be made by the Judge in person, and the person on whom the order is made should have an opportunity of showing why he has omitted to comply with the requirements of the section (m). Such an order may be enforced by writ of attachment or committal (mm).

REPORTS BY OFFICIAL RECEIVER.

Where the Court in England has made a winding-up order, the official receiver must as soon as practicable after receipt of the statement of the company's affairs, submit a preliminary report to the Court—

(a) As to the amount of capital issued, subscribed, and paid up, and the estimated amount of assets and liabilities ; and

(b) If the company has failed, as to the causes of the failure ; and

(c) Whether in his opinion further inquiry is desirable as to any matter relating to the promotion, formation, or failure of the company, or the conduct of the business thereof.

The official receiver may also, if he thinks fit, make a further report, or further reports, stating the manner in which the company was formed and whether in his opinion any fraud has been committed by any person in its promotion or formation, or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since the formation thereof, and any other matters which, in his opinion, it is desirable to bring to the notice of the Court (o).

The report made under this section must state in narrative form

o) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1898, s. 148.

the facts and matters which the official receiver desires to bring to the notice of the Court and his opinion as required by the section (p).

It is on this further report that an order for a public examination under section 175 of the Act is made (pp). Such an order can only be made in England. For the Court to make an order for public examination the report must show that, in the opinion of the official receiver, fraud has been committed either by a person in the promotion or formation of the company, or by a director or other officer in relation to the company since the formation thereof (q). Merely suggesting fraud will not be enough (r) to found a case for public examination. It must further show that the person whom it is proposed to publicly examine is the person who is suspected of the fraud (s), and that he has either been connected with the promotion or formation of the company or was a director or other officer thereof (t), and though it need not be quite so precisely worded as a pleading or an indictment, it must show a substantial basis for all these things (u). The fraud which must be alleged in such report must be fraud in some way connected with the company or its contributories, and not merely fraud committed by the company in dealings with the outside world or persons who are not contributories (x). The preliminary report may give a basis for a private examination under section 174 of the Act, and as the result of such examination or from further facts which have come to his knowledge, the official receiver may make a further report as to a person after the winding-up has proceeded for some time, and when he has already made one or more further reports as to other persons (y). No action for libel will lie against the official receiver for anything in any such report as he is absolutely privileged with regard to everything set out therein (z).

In the case of a limited partnership the preliminary report of the official receiver must be a report—

(a) As to the contributions of the partners and the estimated amount of assets and liabilities of the limited partnership; and

(p) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 59.

(pp) See infra, pp. 1047 et seq, as to public examinations.

(b) If the limited partnership has failed as to the causes of the failure ; and

(c) Whether in his opinion further inquiry is desirable as to any matter relating to the promotion, formation, or failure of the limited partnership or the conduct of the business thereof.

The further report or reports, if any, of the official receiver must state the manner in which the limited partnership was formed, and whether in his opinion any fraud has been committed by any person in its promotion or formation, or by any partner general or limited in relation to the limited partnership since the formation thereof, and any other matters which in his opinion it is desirable to bring to the notice of the Court (a).

FIRST MEETINGS OF CREDITORS AND CONTRIBUTORIES.

When a winding-up order has been made by the Court in England the official receiver must summon separate meetings of the creditors and contributories of the company for the purpose of—

(a) Determining whether or not an application is to be made to the Court for appointing a liquidator in the place of the official receiver ; and

(b) Determining whether or not an application is to be made to the Court for the appointment of a committee of inspection to act with the liquidator, and who are to be the members of the committee if appointed (b).

The rules for summoning such meetings are as follows :—

" The meetings of creditors and contributories under section 152 of the " Act hereinafter referred to as the first meetings of creditors and con- " tributories shall be held within twenty-one days, or if a special manager " has been appointed then within one month, after the date of the winding- " up order, or within such further time as the court may approve. The " dates of such meetings shall be fixed and they shall be summoned by the " Official Receiver (c).

" The Official Receiver shall forthwith give notice of the days fixed by " him for the first meetings of creditors and contributories to the Board of " Trade who shall gazette the same (d).

" The first meetings of creditors and contributories shall be summoned " as hereinafter provided (e).

" The notices of first meetings of creditors and contributories may be " in Forms 21 and 22 appended hereto (f) and the notices to creditors " shall state a time within which the creditors must lodge their proofs in " order to entitle them to vote at the first meeting (g).

(a) Limited Partnerships (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 12 : the rule then proceeds to deal with the public examination of general and limited partners.

(g) Ibid., r. 118.

"The Official Receiver shall also give to each of the Directors and "other Officers of the Company (h) who in his opinion ought to attend the "first meetings of creditors and contributories seven days notice of the "time and place appointed for each meeting. The notice may either be "delivered personally or sent by prepaid post letter as may be convenient. "It shall be the duty of every Director or Officer who receives notice of "such meeting to attend if so required by the Official Receiver (i).

"The Official Receiver shall also, as soon as practicable, send to each "creditor mentioned in the Company's statement of affairs, and to each "person appearing from the Company's books or otherwise to be a con-"tributory of the Company, a summary of the Company's statement of "affairs (k), including the causes of its failure, and any observations "thereon which the Official Receiver may think fit to make. The pro-"ceedings at a meeting shall not be invalidated by reason of any summary "or notice required by these rules not having been sent or received before "the meeting" (l).

Then come a series of rules which apply to all meetings of creditors and contributories, but as to first meetings subject and without prejudice to any express provisions of the Act (m).

"The Official Receiver or Liquidator shall summon all meetings of "creditors and contributories by giving not less than seven days notice of "the time and place thereof in the London Gazette and in a local paper (mm); "and shall not less than seven days before the day appointed for the "meeting send by post (n) to every person appearing by the Company's "books to be a creditor of the Company notice of the meeting of creditors, "and to every person appearing from the Company's books or otherwise "to be a contributory of the Company notice of the meeting of con-"tributories.

"The notice to each creditor shall be sent to the address given in his "proof, or if he has not proved to the address given in the statement of "affairs of the Company, or to such other address as may be known to the "person summoning the meeting. The notice to each contributory shall "be sent to the address mentioned in the Company's books as the address

(h) Under r. 15 of the Limited Partnerships (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, the Official Receiver must give to each of the limited partners the notice to attend the first meetings of creditors, and contributories to be given to general partners under r. 119 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, and it is the duty of every such limited partner to attend accordingly. For the purpose of the Limited Partnerships (Winding-up) Rules, "general partner" is substituted for "director" and for "secretary" and for "secretary and chief officer" in applying the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, Limited Partnerships (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 1.

"A certificate by the Official Receiver or other officer of the Court, or "by the clerk of any such person, or an affidavit by the Liquidator, or his "solicitor, or the clerk of either of such persons, that the notice of any "meeting has been duly posted, shall be sufficient evidence of such notice "having been duly sent to the person to whom the same was addressed (p).

"The meetings shall be held at such place as is in the opinion of the "Official Receiver or Liquidator most convenient for the majority of the "creditors or contributories or both. Different times or places or both "may if thought expedient be named for the meetings of creditors and "for the meetings of contributories (q).

"The costs of summoning a meeting of creditors or contributories at "the instance of any person other than the Official Receiver or Liquidator, "shall be paid by the person at whose instance it is summoned, who shall "before the meeting is summoned deposit with the Official Receiver or "Liquidator (as the case may be) such sum as may be required by the "Official Receiver or Liquidator as security for the payment of such "costs. The costs of summoning such meeting of creditors or contribu-"tories including all disbursements for printing, stationery, postage, and "the hire of room, shall be calculated at the following rates for each "creditor or contributory to whom notice is required to be sent, namely, "two shillings per creditor or contributory for the first 20 creditors or con-"tributories, one shilling per creditor or contributory for the next 30 "creditors or contributories, sixpence per creditor or contributory for any "number of creditors or contributories after the first 50. "At a meeting of creditors a resolution shall be deemed to be passed "when a majority in number and value of the creditors present, personally "or by proxy, and voting on the resolution, have voted in favour of the "resolution, and at a meeting of the contributories a resolution shall be "deemed to be passed when a majority in number and value of the con-"tributories present, personally or by proxy, and voting on the resolution, "have voted in favour of the resolution, the value of the contributories "being determined according to the number of votes conferred on each "contributory by the regulations of the Company (t).

"The Official Receiver, or, as the case may be, the Liquidator, shall "file with the Registrar a copy, certified by him, of every resolution of a "meeting of creditors or contributories (u).

Provided, that "where a creditor has valued his security, he may, at any time before "being required to give it up, correct the valuation by a new proof, and "deduct the new value from his debt, but in that case the said addition "of twenty per cent. shall not be made if the security is required to be "given up (e).

LIQUIDATOR AND COMMITTEE OF INSPECTION.

As soon as possible after the first meetings of creditors and contributories have been held the official receiver or the chairman of the meeting, as the case may be, must report the result of each meeting to the Court (i).

The Court may make any appointment and order required to give effect to any such determination, and if there is a difference between the determinations of the meetings of the creditors and contributories in respect of any of the matters mentioned in the earlier provisions of the section (k), the Court decides the difference and makes such order thereon as the Court thinks fit (l). In practice a summons, asking that the report of the result of the meetings of creditors and contributories may be considered and such appointment made thereon as may be deemed expedient, is taken out in any case, but if the official receiver is to be continued no order is made, except if there is to be a committee of inspection, as to such committee.

Upon the result of the meetings of creditors and contributories being reported to the Court, the Court may, if the meeting of creditors and the meeting of contributories have each passed the same resolutions, or if the resolutions passed at the two meetings are identical in effect, upon the application of the official receiver, forthwith make the appointments necessary for giving effect to such resolutions. In any other case the Court must, on the application of the official (h) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, Appendix Form 25.

(i) Ibid., r. 55 (1). The official receiver rarely rejects proofs for voting purposes: but where he has done so, he will refer to the fact in the report and the Court can then deal with the matter.

(k) I.e. determining whether or no an application is to be made for the appointment of a liquidator in place of the Official Receiver and for the appointment of a committee of inspection and who are to be the members of it.

receiver, fix a time and place for considering the resolutions and determinations (if any) of the meetings, deciding differences (if any), and making such order as shall be necessary.

When a time and place have been fixed for the consideration of the resolutions and determinations of the meetings, such time and place must be advertised by the official receiver in such manner as the Court directs, but so that the first or only advertisement must be published not less than seven days before the time so fixed.

Upon the consideration of the resolutions and determinations of the meetings the Court will hear the official receiver and any creditor or contributory (m). Creditors or contributories appearing on such a summons are sometimes given their costs.

The Court will usually at such meetings also hear persons who claim to be creditors, but whose claims have been disallowed by the official receiver, at all events on the question of whether they are creditors: and persons whose proofs have been rejected at the first meeting will receive notice of the appointment before the Court. As a general rule the Court will endeavour to give effect to the wishes of all parties if it is satisfied that those wishes have been formed honestly and intelligently; but it has a discretion, and if the interest of either creditors or contributories is overriding, or if it is not satisfied that the support given to a nominee has been fairly obtained, it will endeavour to further the actual business interest of everybody. Creditors will be mainly considered by the Court where there is likely to be a substantial deficiency, contributories where there is likely to be a substantial surplus. And it must be borne in mind that even where the official receiver is not appointed, the Board of Trade will, through its official receiver, see that there is a proper investigation of the conduct of the company's affairs (n). It is thought that in a case like Johannisburg Land and Gold Trust Co. (o), where there is nothing remaining to be done in the liquidation and the official receiver's fees are payable in any case, the Court can decline to make an appointment, even though both meetings have passed resolutions in favour of it. It will be observed, however, that at the time when this case was decided the rule required both meetings to be unanimous, and they were not so, although they passed identical resolutions. No doubt the case turned on this. Where the meetings of creditors and contributories came to different conclusions, the latter being in favour of the official receiver being continued as liquidator, the Court, having regard to the fact that there would be a surplus for division among the contributories, and that consequently they were the persons most interested in the liquidation, continued the official receiver as liquidator (p). In another case (q), where the contributories were unanimously in favour of the official receiver being continued as liquidator, and a majority in value, including certain directors who were also creditors, but a minority in number of the creditors came to the same conclusion, the Court, having regard to the fact that the debts due to the directors were not questioned, continued the official receiver as liquidator. In another case (r), Kekewich, J., disregarded the wishes of a large majority of creditors who were in favour of continuing a person who had been liquidator in a previous voluntary liquidation, and appointed instead an accountant who had acted as chairman of the meeting of creditors. In case a liquidator is not appointed by the Court, the official receiver will in England be the liquidator (s).

(m) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 55 (2), (3) and (4).

(n) See the remarks of Mr. Registrar HOOD on The Law Car and General Insurance Corporation, Times Newspaper, February 14, 1911; the learned registrar goes on to deal with the duties of the Official Receiver and of the liquidator. As to the latter he says that it is his duty to ascertain whether there is a reasonable chance of obtaining recoupment from delinquent directors and others: but that having regard to the powers and duties of the official receiver, it is no part of a liquidator's duty to embark on expensive inquiries to gratify persons who have probably no interest in the assets.

If more than one liquidator is appointed by the Court, the Court must declare whether any act by the Act required or authorised to be done by the liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of the persons appointed (t).

Where a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator he will receive such salary or remuneration by way of percentage or otherwise as the Court directs, and if more such persons than one are appointed liquidators their remuneration will be distributed among them in such proportions as the Court directs (u).

The remuneration of a liquidator, unless the Court orders otherwise, will be fixed by the committee of inspection, and will be in the nature of a commission or percentage, of which one part will be payable on the amount realized after deducting the sums, if any, paid to secured creditors (other than debenture-holders) out of the proceeds of their securities, and the other part on the amount distributed in dividend (x). In Orange River Irrigation, Ltd. (xx). the Court "allowed" the liquidators remuneration at a certain sum, there being no committee of inspection and the Board of Trade having declined to fix such remunertion. Sometimes an order is made fixing such remuneration.

If the Board of Trade is of opinion that the remuneration of a

The expression "the amount realised" means the amount realised by the liquidator, and the expression "the amount distributed in dividend" probably means the amount distributed in dividend out of assets realised by the liquidator. Creditors cannot pass resolutions altering the mode of remuneration: Re Christie, [1900] 1 Q. B. 5.

(xx) Unreported 00169 of 1905, Mr. Registrar HOOD, June 16, 1911.

liquidator as fixed by the committee of inspection is unnecessarily large, the Board of Trade may apply to the Court, and thereupon the Court must fix the amount of the remuneration of the liquidator.

If there is no committee of inspection the remuneration of the liquidator will, unless the Court otherwise orders, be fixed by the scale of fees and percentages for the time being payable on realisations and distributions by the official receiver as liquidator (y). If there is no committee of inspection and the Board of Trade declines to fix the liquidator's remuneration, the Court will do so (z).

Where a liquidator in a winding-up by the Court receives remuneration for his services as such, no payment will be allowed on his accounts in respect of the performance by any other person of the ordinary duties which are required by statute or rules to be performed by himself.

Where a liquidator is a solicitor he may contract that the remuneration for his services as liquidator shall include all professional services (a).

Except as provided by the Acts or Rules, a liquidator may not under any circumstances whatever, make any arrangements for, or accept from any solicitor, auctioneer, or any other person connected with the company of which he is liquidator, or who is employed in or in connection with the winding-up of the company, any gift, remuneration, or pecuniary or other consideration or benefit whatever beyond the remuneration to which under the Acts and Rules he is entitled as liquidator, nor may he make any arrangement for giving up, or give up any part of such remuneration to any such solicitor, auctioneer, or other person (b).

Neither the liquidator nor any member of the committee of inspection of a company may, while acting as liquidator or member of such committee, except by leave of the Court, either directly or indirectly, by himself or any partner (c), clerk, agent, or servant, become purchaser of any part of the company's assets. Any such purchase made contrary to the provisions of this Rule may be set aside by the Court on the application of the Board of Trade or any creditor or contributory, and the Court may make such order as to costs as the Court thinks fit (d).

Where the liquidator carries on the business of the company, he may not, without the express sanction of the Court, purchase goods for the carrying on of such business from any person whose connection with the liquidator is of such a nature as would result in the liquidator obtaining any portion of the profit (if any) arising out of the transaction (e).

In any case in which the sanction of the Court is obtained under the last preceding rule, the cost of obtaining such sanction must be borne by the person in whose interest such sanction is obtained, and will not be payable out of the company's assets (f).

A committee of inspection appointed (g) in pursuance of the Act consists of creditors (h) and contributories of the company or persons holding general powers of attorney from creditors or contributories in such proportions as may be agreed on by the meetings of creditors and contributories, or as, in case of difference, may be determined by the Court.

The committee meets at such times as they from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary.

The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but may not act unless a majority of the committee are present.

Any member of the committee may resign by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the liquidator.

If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories, as the case may be, his office thereupon becomes vacant.

Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at a meeting of creditors (if he represents creditors), or of contributories (if he represents contributories) of which seven days notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting.

On a vacancy occurring in the committee the liquidator must forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of contributories, as the case may require, to fill the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint another creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy.

The continuing members of the committee, if not less than two, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in the committee.

or given by the committee may be done or given by the Board of Trade on the application of the liquidator (i). Usually, however, the Board of Trade declines to act in this capacity, leaving the parties to go to the Court for any sanction required (k).

The functions of the committee of inspection which under such circumstances devolve on the Board of Trade may, subject to the directions of the Board be exercised by the official receiver (l). Any defect or irregularity in the appointment or election of a member of a committee of inspection will not vitiate any act which is done by him in good faith (m).

No member of a committee of inspection will, except under and with the sanction of the Court, directly or indirectly, by himself or any employer, partner, clerk, agent, or servant, be entitled to derive any profit from any transaction arising out of the winding-up, or to receive out of the assets any payment for services rendered by him in connection with the administration of the assets, or for any goods supplied by him to the liquidator for or on account of the company. If it appears to the Board of Trade that any profit or payment has been made contrary to the provisions of this rule, they may disallow such payment or recover such profit, as the case may be, on the audit of the liquidator's accounts (n).

Where the sanction of the Court to a payment to a member of a committee of inspection for services rendered by him in connection with the administration of the company's assets is obtained, the order of the Court must specify the nature of the services, and such sanction may only be given where the service performed is of a special nature. Except by the express sanction of the Court no remuneration may under any circumstances by paid to a member of a committee for services rendered by him in the discharge of the duties attaching to his office as a member of such committee (o). B. 68, it will be noted that the rule is wider than the bankruptcy rule there under consideration. The cost of obtaining the sanction of the court under this rule must, in all cases, be borne by the person in whose interest the sanction is sought and is not payable out of the company's assets: Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 159, and see ibid., r. 156, supra, p. 940, as to purchases of the company's assets, by a member of a committee.

infrequently the Court makes orders for payment to a member of a committee of inspection for journeys and other expenses of a like nature, and the Board of Trade can in a proper case allow them (p).

A liquidator is to be described as follows (that is to say) :—

(a) In a winding-up in England, where a person other than the official receiver is liquidator, by the style of the liquidator, and, where the official receiver is liquidator, by the style of the official receiver and liquidator, and of the particular company in respect of which he is appointed, and not by his individual name (q).

(b) In a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland, by the style of the official liquidator,

The acts of a liquidator are valid notwithstanding any defects that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification, and no act done by him in good faith will be vitiated by a defect or irregularity in his appointment or election (r).

The Court can in a proper case re-summon the first meetings of creditors and contributories even after it has made an appointment in pursuance of resolutions passed by them (s). Thus, where the largest creditor was a foreigner who had not been present or represented at the first meetings, the Court, on an application by summons, in the first instance resummoned a meeting of the creditors to see if they would remove one of their representatives on the committee of inspection and appoint a representative of the foreign creditor instead (t). The meeting was not willing to remove any one from the committee of inspection, but was willing to add a representative of the foreign creditor. The Court then resummoned the first meetings so as to give effect to this view (u).

SECURITY BY LIQUIDATOR OR SPECIAL MANAGER FOR A WINDING-UP BY THE COURT.

When a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator he is not capable of acting as liquidator until he has notified his appointment to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, and given security in the prescribed manner to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade (c).

In a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland the Court may determine whether any and what security is to be given by a liquidator on his appointment (d).

In the case of a special manager or a liquidator other than the official receiver, the following provisions as to security take effect, namely :—

(1) The security must be given to such officers or persons, and in such manner as the Board of Trade may from time to time direct.

(2) It will not be necessary that security shall be given in each separate winding-up; but security may be given either specially in a particular winding-up, or generally, to be available for any winding-up in which the person giving security may be appointed, either as Liquidator or Special Manager.

(3) The Board of Trade must fix the amount and nature of such security, and may from time to time, as they think fit, either increase or diminish the amount of special or general security which any person has given.

(4) The certificate of the Board of Trade that a Liquidator or Special Manager has given security to their satisfaction must be filed with the Registrar (e).

(c) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 149 (3) (c): see also Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 55 (5), supra, p. 944. Under a bond conditioned to be void on the surety making good any loss or damage occasioned by the default of the liquidator in his duties as liquidator, the surety will not be liable if the only failure of the liquidator is failure to pay penal interest under s. 154 (2) of the Act: Board of Trade v. Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, [1910] 2 K. B. 649. Before this decision the form of bond sanctioned by the Board was so conditioned, it has now been altered to meet the point. It is thought that the remuneration which a liquidator would, but for his default, have received and which he had forfeited by his default cannot be set off against any sums claimed from the surety: cp. Board of Trade v. Guarantee Society, [1910] 1 K. B. 408, n.; Board of Trade v. Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, [1910] 1 K. B. 401; the point was not decided on appeal, [1910] 2 K. B. 649.

(e) See Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 2. For definition of Registrar, supra, p. 837.

(5) The cost of furnishing the required security by a Liquidator or Special Manager, including any premiums which he may pay to a Guarantee Society, must be borne by him personally, and may not be charged against the assets of the Company, as an expense incurred in the winding-up (f).

If a liquidator or special manager fails to give the required security within the time stated for that purpose in the order appointing him, or any extension thereof, the official receiver must report such failure to the Court, who may thereupon rescind the order appointing the liquidator or special manager.

If a liquidator or special manager fails to keep up his security, the official receiver must report such failure to the Court, who may thereupon remove the liquidator or special manager, and make such order as to costs as the Court thinks fit.

Where an order is made under this rule rescinding an order for the appointment of or removing a liquidator, the Court may direct that another liquidator is to be appointed, and thereupon the same meetings shall be summoned and the same proceedings may be taken as in the case of a first appointment of a liquidator (g). The practice on a liquidator or special manager giving security is as follows. The Board of Trade in the first instance ascertain what is the largest sum that the liquidator or special manager is likely to have in his hands at any one time. They then write and inform the liquidator or special manager that he must give security for that amount. The liquidator or special manager is not in the first instance seen on the matter, but when he receives the letter from the Board of Trade it is open to him to point out that the amount so fixed is excessive. Security is always by bond in a form which has been approved by the Board with one or other of certain societies, which have been similarly approved; when the security has been completed the Board send their certificate to the Registrar Companies (Winding-up), and he files it as above stated.

CERTIFICATE THAT LIQUIDATOR OR SPECIAL MANAGER HAS GIVEN SECURITY (h).

DUTIES OF OFFICIAL RECEIVER ON APPOINTMENT OF LIQUIDATOR.

Where a liquidator is appointed by the Court, and has notified his appointment to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, and given security to the Board of Trade, the official receiver must forthwith put the liquidator into possession of all the property of the company of which the official receiver may have custody, if such liquidator has, before the assets are handed over to him by the official receiver, discharged any balance due to the official receiver, on account of fees, costs, and charges properly incurred by him, and on account of any advances properly made by him in respect of the company, together with interest on such advances at the rate of four pounds per centum per annum; and the liquidator must pay all fees, costs, and charges of the official receiver which may not have been discharged by the liquidator before being put into possession of the property of the company, and whether incurred before or after he has been put into such possession.

The official receiver will be deemed to have a lien upon the company's assets until such balance shall have been paid and the other liabilities shall have been discharged.

It will be the duty of the official receiver, if so requested by the liquidator, to communicate to the liquidator all such information respecting the estate and affairs of the company as may be necessary or conducive to the due discharge of the duties of the liquidator (k).

The official receiver cannot under this rule be required to hand over notes or memoranda which he has made in the course of interviews with the officers of the company, except possibly in cases where it can be shown that such documents are necessary or conducive to the discharge of his duties of liquidator; for such documents are not the property of the company (l).

Where a liquidator is appointed by the Court, in a winding-up by the Court, the official receiver must account to the liquidator.

If the liquidator is dissatisfied with the account or any part thereof, he may report the matter to the Board of Trade, who must take such action (if any) thereon as it may deem expedient.

The provisions of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules as to liquidators and their accounts do not apply to the official receiver when he is liquidator, but he must account in such manner as the Board of Trade may from time to time direct (m).

Resignation and Removal of Liquidator.

A liquidator appointed by the Court may resign or on cause shown be removed by the Court (n); in all other cases, except, of course, his death, he will hold office until he obtains his release under section 157 of the Act (o).

A vacancy in the office of a liquidator appointed by the Court must be filled by the Court, and in a winding-up by the Court in England the official receiver is by virtue of his office liquidator during the vacancy (p).

A liquidator who desires to resign his office must summon separate meetings of the creditors and contributories of the company to decide whether or not the resignation shall be accepted. If the creditors and contributories by ordinary resolutions both agree to accept the resignation of the liquidator, he must file with the Registrar a memorandum of his resignation, and must send notice thereof to the official receiver, and the resignation will thereupon take effect. In any other case the liquidator must report to the Court the result of the meetings and must send a report to the official receiver, and thereupon the Court may, upon the application of the liquidator or the official receiver, determine whether or not the resignation of the liquidator shall be accepted, and may give such directions and make such orders as in the opinion of the Court are necessary (q).

If a receiving order in bankruptcy is made against a liquidator, he thereby vacates his office, and for the purposes of the application of the Act and Rules is deemed to have been removed (r); but if the receiving order is rescinded before a new liquidator is appointed the result is as if no order had been made, and the liquidator will continue in his office (s).

In voluntary liquidation as well as in compulsory liquidation a liquidator can be removed on cause shown (t), and it is thought that the authorities under the Act of 1862, which required "due" cause to be shown are still applicable (u). The sections do not give an absolute discretion to the Judge who hears the application (x), but once some cause is shown, and he has consequently jurisdiction, the Court of Appeal will be very slow to interfere with his discretion (y). The Court can remove one of several joint liquidators, and may appoint another in his place (x), and can, it is thought, appoint an additional liquidator both in a compulsory (z) and a voluntary winding-up (a).

The reasons for removing a liquidator are usually his personal unfitness, using unfitness in the wide sense of the word, and so as to include cases of bad character, his connection with other parties and the matters in which he is mixed up (b), but in a proper case the Court will remove a liquidator and appoint a new one in his place without there being anything against the liquidator removed, and merely because it is thought that the new liquidator will be in a better position for satisfactorily carrying on the winding-up (c), or because all the people really interested in the winding-up (e.g. the creditors, where there will be nothing for the contributories) desire it (d). A liquidator has been removed where he had practically completed the winding-up, but there were certain claims against the directors and himself as a former secretary of the company about which he took a strong view, and which he declined to proceed with (e), and also where he was intimately connected with the directors whose conduct it was his duty to investigate, and with other companies whose affairs were interwoven with the company in winding-up, and that although the main business of the liquidation was to carry out a somewhat unsatisfactory reconstruction (f). Liquidators have also been removed on the ground of absence abroad coupled with delegating their authority (g), of insanity (h), of prosecuting claims against the wish of the majority of the creditors (i), and of quarrels with their co-liquidators (k).

On the other hand, the Court of Appeal would not interfere with the discretion of a Judge of first instance where he declined to remove a liquidator who was shown to be personally immoral, and who as a discharged servant had a strong bias against a firm against whom serious charges had been made (l). On the analogous question of removing a trustee in bankruptcy the Court would not interfere with the discretion of the Registrar who had removed a trustee who he had held to be a mere tool of the bankrupt, and who had described himself as an accountant when he was really a clerk in the office of a newspaper of which the bankrupt's son who had asked him to be trustee was editor (m).

These are all cases of personal unfitness, but where one of the largest creditors who was also intimately connected with the company agreed to pay all creditors except one other who was also intimately connected with the company, and there would in any case be nothing for the contributories, the Court appointed the nominee of the person making the offer in place of an admittedly proper person, and this although the debt of such creditor was to a certain extent disputed; the other creditors would not have been paid in full if the debt of the creditor making the offer had ranked for dividend to its full extent (n).

The Court has declined to remove a liquidator against the wishes of the majority of the contributories in a voluntary winding-up, though it considered that it would have been more convenient to appoint the liquidator of another company whose affairs were mixed up with that of the company in voluntary liquidation (o); and this in spite of the fact that the liquidator of such other company would under the practice prevailing at the time undoubtedly have been appointed had the liquidation been compulsory (p).

The application is by summons (q), and only creditors or contributories can apply to remove a liquidator in a voluntary winding-up (r); the same persons may apply in a compulsory liquidation (s). The liquidator of a company which has purchased the assets of another company will usually not be a creditor of such other company (r). A contributory who had declined to pay calls because he distrusted the liquidator and who did not admit himself a contributory was not allowed to proceed with an application to remove the liquidator (t). On applications to remove a liquidator the Court would not under the old practice hear creditors or contributories in support of or in opposition to the application (u), and it is not usual to do so now.

The Court has in dismissing a petition for compulsory winding-up removed a voluntary liquidator and appointed another person in his place (x).

A liquidator must be served with an application to remove him (y), and may appeal from an order removing him (z).

If a liquidator in a winding-up by the Court dies, or resigns, or is removed, another liquidator may be appointed in his place in the same manner as in the case of a first appointment, and the official receiver must, on the request of not less than one-tenth in value of the creditors and contributories summon meetings for the purpose of determining whether or not the vacancy shall be filled; but none of the provisions of this rule apply where the liquidator is released under section 157 of the Act, in which case the official receiver remains liquidator (a).

It is thought that before an order appointing a liquidator is drawn up the Court can in a proper case stay the drawing-up and re-hear the matter (b). Where the liquidator fails to give security the official receiver may report him to the Court who may rescind the order appointing him (c). It is not thought that the Court would do this if the reason for his failure was an application to remove him (d).

Where an application to remove a liquidator is pending, it is not a contempt of Court for the person making such application to issue to the shareholders a circular repeating in substance the allegations contained in the affidavit in support of the summons (e). The circular may, of course, be a libel.

FURTHER MEETINGS OF CREDITORS AND CONTRIBUTORIES.

Subject to the provisions of the Act, the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England must, in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting, or by the committee of inspection, and any directions given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting will in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection.

The liquidator may summon general meetings of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it will be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution, either at the meeting appointing the liquidator or otherwise, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-tenth in value of the creditors or contributories as the case may be.

The liquidator may apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the winding-up.

Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator must use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the liquidator, that person may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order in the premises as it thinks just (g).

Where by the Act the court is authorized, in relation to winding-up, to have regard to the wishes of creditors or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, the Court may, if it thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining those wishes, direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be called, held, and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result thereof to the Court.

In the case of creditors, regard will be had to the value of each creditor's debt.

In the case of contributories, regard will be had to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the articles (h).

In addition to the first meetings of creditors and contributories, and in addition also to meetings of creditors and contributories directed to be held by the Court under section 219 of the Act (which are in the rules called Court meetings of creditors and contributories) the liquidator may himself from time to time subject to the provisions of the Act and the control of the Court summon hold and conduct meetings of the creditors or contributories (in the rules referred to as liquidators' meetings of creditors and contributories) for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes in all matters relating to the winding-up (i).

Except where and so far as the nature of the subject matter or the context may otherwise require, the rules above set out (k) apply not only to first meetings of creditors and contributories but also to Court meetings and liquidators' meetings of creditors and contributories, but in the case of Court meetings subject and without prejudice to any express directions of the Court (l) ; in the case of both Court meetings (other than those held prior to the first meetings of creditors and contributories) and liquidators' meetings of creditors, a person will not be entitled to vote as a creditor unless he has lodged with the official receiver or liquidator a proof of the debt which he claims to be due to him from the company and such proof has been admitted wholly or in part before the date on which the meeting is held (m).

At Court meetings prior to the first meetings of creditors and contributories, not only rule 133, but also rules 134 (n), 135 (o), 136 (p), and 137 (q), of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, do not apply (r). Creditors and contributories may vote by proxy ;

POWERS OF THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The Board of Trade takes cognizance of the conduct of liquidators of companies which are being wound up by the Court in England, and if a liquidator does not faithfully perform his duties and duly observe all the requirements imposed on him by statute, rules, or otherwise with respect to the performance of his duties, or if any complaint is made to the Board by any creditor or contributory in regard thereto, the Board must inquire into the matter, and take such action thereon as they may think expedient (x).

The Board may at any time require any liquidator of a company which is being wound-up by the Court in England to answer any inquiry in relation to any winding-up in which he is engaged, and may, if the Board think fit, apply to the Court to examine him or any other person on oath concerning the winding-up.

The Board may also direct a local investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the liquidator (y).

Applications by the Board of Trade to the Court to examine on oath the liquidator or any other person pursuant to section 159 of the Act will be made ex parte, and will be supported by a report to the Court filed with the Registrar, stating the circumstances in which the application is made.

The report may be signed by any person duly authorized to sign documents on behalf of the Board of Trade; and will, for the purposes of such application, be primâ facie evidence of the statements therein contained (z).

All notices subsequent to the making by the Court of a winding-up order in pursuance of the Acts or the Rules requiring publication in the London Gazette must be gazetted by the Board of Trade.

Where any winding-up order is amended, and also in any case in which any matter which has been gazetted has been amended or altered, or in which a matter has been wrongly or inaccurately gazetted, the Board of Trade must re-gazette such order or matter with the necessary amendments and alterations in the prescribed form, at the expense of the company's assets, or otherwise as the Board of Trade may direct (a).

The Board of Trade may from time to time issue general orders or regulations for the purpose of regulating any matters under the Act or Rules which are of an administrative and not of a judicial nature (b).

Appeals in the High Court against a decision of the Board of Trade, or Appeals to the Court from an act or decision of the official receiver acting otherwise than as liquidator of a company, must be brought within twenty-one days from the time when the decision or act appealed against is done, pronounced or made (c).

The Board of Trade may, with the approval of the Treasury, appoint such additional officers as may be required by the Board for the execution as respects England of Part IV. (d) of the Act, and may remove any person so appointed.

The Board of Trade, with the concurrence of the Treasury, directs whether any and what remuneration is to be allowed to any officer of, or person attached to, the Board performing any duties under Part IV. of the Act in relation to the winding-up of companies in England, and may vary, increase, or diminish that remuneration as they think fit.

Under the corresponding section of the Act of 1890 (f) the Board of Trade, with the concurrence of the Treasury, assigned the matters arising in the execution of that Act by the Board of Trade to a new department of the said Board, to be called the Companies Department, and appointed a comptroller (g) of that department. The duties of the comptroller included the general direction under the control of the Board of Trade of the department as regards the matters so assigned to it, and he also acted under the same control for the Board of Trade in regard to the duties and powers conferred on the Board by the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, and by the Newspaper Libel and Registration Act, 1881, and also in relation to matters connected with charters and chartered companies. The official receivers throughout the country were to report to and correspond with the comptroller of the Companies Department in regard to all matters relating to the winding-up of companies (h). Section 289 (4) of the existing Act continues this order, and renders it effective notwithstanding the repeal of the earlier Acts.

The Board of Trade must cause a general annual report of matters within the Act to be prepared and laid before both Houses of Parliament (i).

The officers of the Courts acting in the winding up of companies in England must make to the Board of Trade such returns of the business of their respective Courts and offices, at such times and in such manner and form as may be prescribed, and from those returns the Board is required to cause books to be prepared which are, under the regulations of the Board, open for public information and searches (k).

A certificate signed by the President of the Board of Trade that any order made, certificate issued, or act done, is the order, certificate, or act of the Board, will be conclusive evidence of the fact so certified (l).

Any approval sanction or licence or revocation of licence which under the Act may be given or made by the Board of Trade may be under the hand of a secretary or assistant secretary of the Board or of any person authorised in that behalf by the President of the Board (m).

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF ASSETS.

The Court must (1) cause the assets of the company to be collected and applied in discharge of its liabilities (n) and (2) adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto (o).

By general rules made under section 173 of the Act it is provided that—

The duties imposed on the Court by section 163 (1) of the Act, in a winding-up by the Court with regard to the collection of the assets of the company and the application of the assets in discharge of the company's liabilities are to be discharged by the liquidator as an officer of the Court subject to the control of the Court.

For the purpose of the discharge by the liquidator of the duties imposed by section 163 (1) of the Act, and the last preceding provision, the liquidator in a winding-up by the Court will for the purpose of acquiring or retaining possession of the property of the company, be in the same position as if he were a receiver of the property appointed by the High Court, and the Court may, on his application, enforce such acquisition or retention accordingly (p).

Where in the winding-up of a company by the Court in England a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator, he must give the official receiver such information and such access to and facilities for inspecting the books and documents of the company, and generally such aid as may be requisite for enabling that officer to perform his duties under the Act (q).

PAYMENTS INTO AND OUT OF BANK.

Every liquidator of a company which is being wound-up by the Court in England must, in such manner and at such times as the Board of Trade, with the concurrence of the Treasury, direct, pay the money received by him to the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England, and the Board must furnish him with a certificate of receipt of the money so paid (r); but, if the committee of inspection satisfy the Board of Trade that for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company or of obtaining advances, or for any other reason, it is for the advantage of the creditors or contributories that the liquidator should have an account with any other bank, the Board must, on the application of the committee of inspection, authorise the liquidator to make his payments into and out of such other bank as the committee may select, and thereupon those payments must be made in the prescribed manner (t).

The regulations of the Board of Trade provide that current Bills of Exchange shall also be remitted to the Companies Liquidation Account.

If any such liquidator at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding £50 or such other amount as the Board of Trade in any particular case authorize him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Board, he must pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per cent. per annum (s), and will be liable to disallowance of all or such part of his remuneration as the Board may think just, and to be removed from his office by the Board, and will be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default.

A liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England may not pay any sums received by him as liquidator into his private banking account (t). The Board of Trade require a special case (e.g. convenience in carrying on a business) to be made before allowing an account with any bank other than the Bank of England.

An account, called the Companies Liquidation Account, must be kept by the Board of Trade with the Bank of England, and all moneys received by the Board in respect of proceedings under the Act in connection with the winding up of companies in England must be paid to that account.

All payments out of money standing to the credit of the Board account is authorized, all moneys received by a liquidator of a company in compulsory liquidation must be paid without deduction to the companies liquidation account. Remittances are to be made once a week or forthwith if a sum of £200 or more has been received. Remittances may be made direct to the Bank of England, Law Courts Branch, London, by cheques, crossed "Bank of England Credit of Companies Liquidation Account." Remittances must be accompanied by a receivable order, and the counterpart or advice letter should be transmitted by the same post to the Accountant-General to the Board of Trade. (For these forms, infra, pp. 967 and 968.) Halfpence should not be included in remittances. of Trade in the Companies Liquidation Account must be made by the Bank of England in the prescribed manner (u).

All necessary disbursements made by a liquidator on account of a company to the date of his application for release will be repaid to him out of any moneys standing to the credit of the company in the Companies Liquidation Account on application to the Comptroller of Companies. Any expenses properly incurred by the liquidator after applying for but before obtaining his discharge will be repaid to him by the official receiver out of any funds available for the purpose. Cheques to the order of the payee for sums which become payable on account of the company may be obtained by the liquidator on application on Form C, No. 6, for delivery by him to the parties entitled. The Board of Trade will under no circumstances hold themselves responsible for payments made on the requisition of the liquidator (x).

Whenever the cash balance standing to the credit of the Companies Liquidation Account is in excess of the amount which in the opinion of the Board of Trade is required for the time being to answer demands in respect of companies' estates, the Board must notify the excess to the Treasury, and must pay over the whole or any part of that excess as the Treasury may require, to the Treasury, to such account as the Treasury may direct, and the Treasury may invest the sums paid over, or any part thereof, in Government securities, to be placed to the credit of the said account.

When any part of the money so invested is, in the opinion of the Board of Trade, required to answer any demands in respect of companies' estates, the Board must notify to the Treasury the amount so required, and the Treasury will thereupon repay to the Board such sum as may be required to the credit of the Companies Liquidation Account, and for that purpose may direct the sale of such part of the said securities as may be necessary.

The dividends on investments under this section will be paid to such account as the Treasury may direct, and regard must be had to the amount thus derived in fixing the fees payable in respect of proceedings in the winding-up of companies in England (y).

and, when the cash balance standing to the credit of the account of any company is in excess of the amount which, in the opinion of the committee of inspection, is required for the time being to answer demands in respect of that company's estate, the Board will, on the request of the committee, invest the amount not so required in Government securities, to be placed to the credit of the said account for the benefit of the company.

When any part of the money so invested is, in the opinion of the committee of inspection, required to answer any demands in respect of the estate of the company, the Board of Trade must, on the request of the committee, raise such sum as may be required by the sale of such part of the said securities as may be necessary.

The dividends on investments under this section will be paid to the credit of the company.

When the balance at the credit of any company's account in the hands of the Board of Trade exceeds two thousand pounds, and the liquidator gives notice to the Board that the excess is not required for the purposes of the liquidation, the company will be entitled to interest on the excess at the rate of two per cent. per annum (a).

The Treasury may issue to the Board of Trade in aid of the votes of Parliament, out of the receipts arising in respect of the winding-up of companies in England from fees, fee stamps, and dividends on investments by the Treasury under the Act, any sums which may be necessary to meet the charges estimated by the Board in respect of salaries and expenses under the Act in relation to the winding-up of companies in England (b).

The Treasury must annually cause to be prepared and laid before both Houses of Parliament an account for the year ending with the thirty-first day of March, showing the receipts and expenditure during that year in respect of proceedings under the Act in relation to the winding up of companies in England, and the provisions of section twenty-eight of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1875, apply to the account as if the account had been required by that section.

The accounts of the Board of Trade under the Act in relation to the winding-up of companies in England must be audited in such manner as the Treasury direct, and, for the purpose of the account to be laid before Parliament, the Board of Trade must make such returns and give such information as the Treasury direct (c).

All payments out of the Companies Liquidation Account must be made in such manner as the Board of Trade may from time to time direct (d).

Where the liquidator in a winding-up by the Court is authorized to have a special bank account, he must forthwith pay all moneys received by him into that account to the credit of the liquidator of the company. All payments out must be made by cheque payable to order, and every cheque must have marked or written on the face of it the name of the company, and must be signed by the liquidator and must be countersigned by at least one member of the committee of inspection, and by such other person, if any, as the committee of inspection may appoint.

Where application is made to the Board of Trade to authorize the liquidator in a winding-up by the Court to make his payments into and out of a special bank account, the Board of Trade may grant such authorization for such time and on such terms as they may think fit, and may at any time order the account to be closed if they are of opinion that the account is no longer required for the purposes mentioned in the application (e). Where a special bank account is sanctioned by the Board of Trade under the provisions of section 154 (1) of the Act all moneys received must be paid into the appointed bank. The pass book with the special bank should be forwarded at each audit (f). It would appear to be doubtful whether a special bank account can be authorized where there is no committee of inspection, as it would be impossible to comply with the rules as to signing cheques.

INFORMATION AS TO PENDING LIQUIDATIONS IN ENGLAND.

Where a company is being wound up in England, if the winding-up is not concluded within one year after its commencement, the liquidator must, at such intervals as may be prescribed, until the winding-up is concluded, send to the Registrar of Companies a statement in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and position of the liquidation.

Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company will be entitled, by himself or by his agent, at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee (m), to inspect the statement and to receive a copy thereof or extract therefrom ; but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory will be guilty of a contempt of Court, and will be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver.

If a liquidator fails to comply with the requirements of this section he will be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for each day during which the default continues.

If it appears from any such statement or otherwise that a liquidator has in his hands or under his control any money representing unclaimed or undistributed assets of the company which have remained unclaimed or undistributed for six months after the date of their receipt, the liquidator must forthwith pay the same to the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England, and will be entitled to the prescribed certificate of receipt for the money so paid, and that certificate will be an effectual discharge to him in respect thereof.

(m) The fee for inspection is 1*s*. for every hour or part of an hour occupied. The fee for a copy or extract is 4*d*. per folio of 72 words or figures : Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 19. Directors and officers of the company or the Board of Trade need not pay the inspection fee.

For the purpose of ascertaining and getting in any money payable into the Bank of England in pursuance of this section, the like powers may be exercised, and by the like authority, as are exerciseable under section 162 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, for the purpose of ascertaining and getting in the sums, funds, and dividends referred to in that section.

Any person claiming to be entitled to any money paid into the Bank of England in pursuance of this section may apply to the Board of Trade for payment of the same, and the Board may, on a certificate by the liquidator that the person claiming is entitled, make an order for the payment to that person of the sum due. The order as to fees of December 2, 1903, provides that every such application, as also every application for the re-issue of a lapsed cheque or money order in respect of money standing to the credit of the Companies Liquidation Account, must have a 1*s.* stamp where the amount applied for does not exceed £1, and in other cases, a 2*s.* 6*d.* stamp. This would appear not to be affected by the order of July 31, 1908, as such fees are not fees to be taken in respect of proceedings in the High Court of Justice.

Any person dissatisfied with the decision of the Board of Trade in respect of any claim made in pursuance of the section may appeal to the High Court (n).

Where any legal event, e.g. a duly sanctioned scheme of arrangement, has made the moneys of a company applicable otherwise than for purposes of distribution, the Court will not order them to be paid into a bank (o). A garnishee order cannot be made against sums which have been set aside to meet a dividend which has been declared, even where the person who is entitled to such dividend has received notice that the sum has been set aside for him, for under these provisions there is no debt and no debtor, the funds being under the control of the Board of Trade, who act in a judicial capacity, and the remedy is by way of appeal under the section (p). Where, however, a garnishee order has been made, the Court will allow execution to issue on it (q).

(n) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 224. Appeals under this section must be made by motion in open Court: Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, rr. 5, 6, and 8.

Under section 162 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (r), the Board of Trade may at any time order any such trustee or any other person (s) to submit to them an account verified by affidavit of the sums received and paid under any such petition, resolution, deed, or other proceeding, and may direct and enforce an audit of such account. The Board of Trade may, with the concurrence of the Treasury, from time to time appoint a person to collect and get in all such unclaimed or undistributed funds or dividends, and, for the purposes of this section, any Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy (t) has, and, at the instance of the person so appointed or of the Board of Trade, may exercise all the powers conferred by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, with respect to the discovery and realization of the property of a debtor, and the provisions of Part I. of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, with respect thereto apply, with any necessary modifications, to proceedings under the section (u). Except where expressly so declared these powers do not deprive any person of any larger or other right or remedy he may be entitled to against such trustee or other person.

A trustee in bankruptcy is not relieved from his duty to give such verified account by the fact that he has got his release (x), nor is it necessary to show that he has ever had unclaimed or undistributed funds or dividends in hand since the section came into force (y), or that he has moneys of the bankrupt in his hands when he is required to render such account (z).

The rules made for the purposes of this section, which applies in a voluntary winding-up (a), as well as in other winding-ups, are as follows :—

The winding-up of a Company shall, for the purpose of section 224 of the Act, be deemed to be concluded :—

(a) In the case of a Company wound-up by order of the Court, at the date on which the order dissolving the Company has been reported by the Liquidator to the Registrar of Companies, or at the date of the order of the Board of Trade releasing the Liquidator pursuant to section 157 of the Act.

(b) In the case of a Company wound up voluntarily, or under the (r) Sub-ss. 2 (b) and (c).

(s) I.e. any trustee under any bankruptcy composition or scheme pursuant to the Act or any trustee or other person empowered to receive, collect, or distribute any funds under any Act of Parliament mentioned in the Fourth Schedule to the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, or any petition, resolution, deed, or other proceeding under or in pursuance of any such Act.

supervision of the Court, at the date of the dissolution of the Company, unless at such date any funds or assets of the Company remain unclaimed or undistributed in the hands or under the control of the Liquidator, or any person who has acted as Liquidator, in which case the winding-up shall not be deemed to be concluded until such funds or assets have either been distributed or paid into the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England (b).

The statements with respect to the proceedings in and position of a liquidation of a Company, the winding-up of which is not concluded within a year after its commencement, shall be sent to the Registrar of Companies twice in every year as follows :—

(1) The first statement, commencing at the date when a Liquidator was first appointed and brought down to the end of twelve months from the commencement of the winding-up, shall be sent within 30 days from the expiration of such twelve months, or within such extended period as the Board of Trade may sanction, and the subsequent statements shall be sent at intervals of half a year, each statement being brought down to the end of the half-year for which it is sent.

(2) Subject to the next succeeding Rule, Form No. 92, with such variations as circumstances may require, shall be used, and the directions specified in the Form shall (unless the Board of Trade otherwise direct) be observed in reference to every statement.

(3) Every statement shall be sent in duplicate, and shall be verified by an affidavit in the Form No. 93, with such variations as circumstances may require (c).

Where a Liquidator has not during any period for which a statement has to be sent received or paid any money on account of the Company, he shall at the period when he is required to transmit his statement, send to the Registrar of Companies the prescribed statement in the Form No. 92, in duplicate, containing the particulars therein required with respect to the proceedings in and position of the Liquidation, and with such statement shall also send an affidavit of no receipts or payments in the Form No. 93 (d).

All money in the hands or under the control of a Liquidator of a Company representing unclaimed dividends (e), which for six months from the date when the dividend became payable have remained in the hands or under the control of the Liquidator, shall forthwith, on the expiration of the six months, be paid into the Companies Liquidation Account.

(e) The expression "unclaimed dividend" presupposes an existing debtor, and means a dividend which has been declared upon admitted and existing proofs, which the persons who are entitled thereto have neglected to claim. It does not include a debt to a non-existent person such as a dissolved corporation: Re Higginson and Dean, [1899] 1 Q. B. 325.

of a Company, representing unclaimed or undistributed assets, which under sub-section 4 of section 224 of the Act, the Liquidator is to pay into the Companies Liquidation Account, shall be ascertained as on the date to which the statement of receipts and payments sent in to the Registrar of Companies is brought down, and the amount to be paid to the Companies Liquidation Account shall be the minimum balance of such money which the Liquidator has had in his hands or under his control during the six months immediately preceding the date to which the statement is brought down, less such part (if any) thereof as the Board of Trade may authorize him to retain for the immediate purposes of the liquidation. Such amount shall be paid into the Companies Liquidation Account within fourteen days from the date to which the statement of account is brought down.

Notwithstanding anything in this Rule, any moneys representing unclaimed or undistributed assets or dividends in the hands of the Liquidator at the date of the dissolution of the Company shall forthwith be paid by him into the Companies Liquidation Account.

A Liquidator whose duty it is to pay into the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England, money representing unclaimed or undistributed assets of the Company shall apply in such manner as the Board of Trade shall direct to the Board of Trade for a paying-in order, which paying-in order shall be an authority to the Bank of England to receive the payment.

Money at the credit of the account of the Official Liquidator of a Company with the Bank of England shall be deemed to be money under the control of such Official Liquidator, and when such money has remained unclaimed or undistributed for six months after the date of receipt it shall be transferred to the Companies Liquidation Account, and the Official Liquidator and Master of the Chancery Division of the High Court attached to the Judge in whose chambers the winding-up is proceeding (f) shall draw and sign such cheques or orders as may be necessary for the transfer of the money. An application to the Board of Trade for payment out of moneys so transferred shall be signed by the Official Liquidator and countersigned by the said Master.

Money invested or deposited at interest by a Liquidator shall be deemed to be money under his control, and when such money forms part of the minimum balance payable into the Companies Liquidation Account pursuant to clause (2) of this Rule, the Liquidator shall realize the investment or withdraw the deposit, and shall pay the proceeds into the Companies Liquidation Account, provided that where the money is invested in Government securities, such securities may, with the permission of the Board of Trade, be transferred to the control of the Board of Trade instead of being forthwith realized and the proceeds thereof paid into the Companies Liquidation Account. In the latter case, if and when the money represented by the securities is required wholly or in part for the purposes of the Liquidation, the Board of Trade may realize the securities wholly or in part and pay the proceeds of realization into the Companies Liquidation Account and deal with the same in the same way as other moneys paid into the said Account may be dealt with (g).

Every person who has acted as Liquidator of any Company, whether the Liquidation has been concluded or not, shall furnish to the Board of Trade particulars of any money in his hands or under his control representing unclaimed or undistributed assets of the Company and such other particulars as the Board of Trade may require for the purpose of ascertaining or getting in any money payable into the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England. The Board of Trade may require such particulars to be verified by affidavit (h).

The Board of Trade may at any time order any such person to submit to them an account verified by affidavit of the sums received and paid by him as Liquidator of the Company and may direct and enforce an audit of the account (i).

For the purposes of section 224 of the Act, and the Rules, the Court shall have, and, at the instance of the Board of Trade, may exercise all the powers conferred by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, with respect to the discovery and realization of the property of a debtor, and the provisions of Part I. of that Act with respect thereto shall, with any necessary modification, apply to proceedings under section 224 of the Act (k).

Section 27 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, contains the most important if not the only provisions of Part I. of that Act, which are incorporated by this rule and the section.

That section runs as follows :—

The Court may on the application of the Official Receiver or Trustee at any time after a receiving order has been made against a debtor summon before it the debtor or his wife or any person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects belonging to the debtor or supposed to be indebted to the debtor or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information respecting the debtor his dealings or property and the Court may require any such person to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the debtor his dealings or property.

If any person so summoned after having been tendered a reasonable sum refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed or refuses to produce any such document having no lawful impediment made known to the Court at the time of the sitting and allowed by it the Court may by warrant cause him to be apprehended and brought up for examination.

The Court may examine on oath either by word of mouth or by written interrogatories any person so brought before it concerning the debtor his dealings or property.

If any person on examination before the Court admits that he is indebted to the debtor the Court may on the application of the Official Receiver or trustee order him to pay to the receiver or trustee at such time and in such manner as to the Court seems expedient the amount admitted or any part thereof either in full discharge of the whole amount in question or not as the Court thinks fit with or without costs of the examination.

If any person on examination before the Court admits that he has in his possession any property belonging to the debtor the Court may on the application of the Official Receiver or trustee order him to deliver to the Official Receiver or trustee such property or any part thereof at such time and in such manner and on such terms as to the Court may seem just.

The Court may if it think fit order that any person who if in England would be liable to be brought before it under this section shall be examined in Scotland or Ireland or in any other place out of England."

An application by the Board of Trade for the purpose of ascertaining and getting in money payable into the Bank of England pursuant to section 224 of the Act, shall be made by motion, and where the winding-up is by or under the supervision of the Court shall be made to and dealt with by the Judge, and in voluntary winding-up shall be made to and dealt with by the Judge of the High Court (l).

An application by a person claiming to be entitled to any money paid into the Bank of England in pursuance of section 224 of the Act, shall be made in such form and manner as the Board of Trade may from time to time direct, and shall, unless the Board of Trade otherwise directs, be accompanied by the certificate of the Liquidator that the person claiming is entitled and such further evidence as the Board of Trade may direct (m).

A Liquidator who requires to make payments out of money paid into the Bank of England in pursuance of section 224 of the Act, either by way of distribution or in respect of the cost and expenses of the proceedings, shall apply in such form and manner as the Board of Trade may direct, and the Board of Trade may thereupon either make an order for payment to the Liquidator of the sum required by him for the purposes aforesaid, or may direct cheques to be issued to the Liquidator for transmission to the persons to whom the payments are to be made (n).

BOOKS TO BE KEPT BY LIQUIDATOR.

Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England must keep, in manner prescribed, proper books in which he must cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory may, subject to the control of the Court, personally, or by his agent, inspect any such books (z).

The official receiver, until a liquidator is appointed by the Court, and thereafter the liquidator, must keep a book to be called the "Record Book," in which he must record all minutes, all proceedings had and resolutions passed at any meeting of creditors or contributories, or of the committee of inspection, and all such matters as may be necessary to give a correct view of his administration of the company's affairs, but he is not bound to insert in the "Record Book" any document of a confidential nature (such as the opinion of counsel or any matter affecting the interest of the creditors or contributories), nor need he exhibit such document to any person other than a member of the committee of inspection, or the official receiver, or the Board of Trade (a).

The official receiver, until a liquidator is appointed by the Court, and thereafter the liquidator, must keep a book to be called the "Cash Book" (which must be in such form as the Board of Trade may from time to time direct) in which he must (subject to the provisions of the rules as to trading accounts (b)) enter from day to day the receipts and payments made by him.

The liquidator must submit the Record Book and Cash Book together with any other requisite books and vouchers, to the committee of inspection (if any) when required, and not less than once every three months (c). The regulations of the Board of Trade provide that moneys withdrawn from the Bank should not be treated as receipts from realization, but should appear only in the "Drawn from Bank" column of the Cash Book, the application of the money being entered in the "Payments" column, and that the payments into the Bank should appear only in the "Paid into Bank" column of the Cash Book.

Every liquidator of a company which is being wound-up by the Court in England must at such times as may be prescribed (d), but not less than twice in each year during his tenure of office, send to the Board of Trade, or as they direct, an account of his receipts and payments as liquidator.

The account must be in a prescribed form (e), must be made in duplicate, and must be verified by a statutory declaration in the prescribed form (e).

The Board must cause the account to be audited, and, for the purpose of the audit, the liquidator must furnish the Board with such vouchers and information as the Board may require, and the Board may at any time require the production of and inspect any books or accounts kept by the liquidator.

When the account has been audited, one copy thereof must be filed and kept by the Board, and the other copy must be filed with the Court, and each copy must be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of any person interested.

The Board must cause the account when audited, or a summary thereof, to be printed, and must send a printed copy of the account or summary by post to every creditor and contributory (f).

The committee of inspection must not less than once every three months audit the liquidator's cash book and certify therein under their hands the day on which such book was audited (g).

The liquidator must, at the expiration of six months from the date of the winding-up order, and at the expiration of every succeeding six months thereafter until his release, transmit to the Board of Trade a copy of the Cash Book for such period in duplicate, together with the necessary vouchers and copies of the certificates of audit by the committee of inspection (h). He must also forward with the first accounts a summary of the company's statement of affairs, showing thereon in red ink the amounts realized, and explaining the cause of the non-realization of such assets as may be unrealized. The liquidator must also at the end of every six months forward to the Board of Trade, with his accounts, a report upon the position of the liquidation of the company in such form as the Board of Trade may direct.

When the assets of the company have been fully realized and distributed, the liquidator must forthwith send in his accounts to the Board of Trade, although the six months may not have expired.

The accounts sent in by the liquidator must be verified by him by affidavit (i).

Where the liquidator carries on the business of the company, he must keep a distinct account of the trading, and must incorporate in the Cash Book the total weekly amount of the receipts and payments on such trading account.

The trading account must from time to time, and not less than once in every month, be verified by affidavit, and the liquidator must thereupon submit such account to the committee of inspection (if any), or such member thereof as may be appointed by the committee for that purpose, who must examine and certify the same (k).

When the liquidator's account has been audited, the Board of Trade must certify the fact upon the account, and thereupon the duplicate copy, bearing a like certificate, must be filed with the Registrar (l).

The liquidator must transmit to the Board of Trade with his accounts a summary of such accounts in such form as the Board of Trade may from time to time direct, and, on the approval of such summary by the Board of Trade, must forthwith obtain, prepare, and transmit to the Board of Trade so many printed copies thereof, duly stamped for transmission by post, and addressed to the creditors and contributories, as may be required for transmitting such summary to each creditor and contributory.

The cost of printing and posting such copies will be a charge upon the assets of the company (m).

Where a liquidator has not since the date of his appointment or since the last audit of his accounts, as the case may be, received or paid any sum of money on account of the assets of the company, he must at the time when he is required to transmit his accounts to the Board of Trade, forward to the Board of Trade an affidavit of no receipts or payments (n).

Upon a liquidator resigning, or being released or removed from his office, he must deliver over to the official receiver, or, as the case may be, to the new liquidator, all books kept by him, and all other books, documents, papers, and accounts in his possession relating to the office of liquidator. The release of a liquidator will not take effect unless and until he has delivered over to the official receiver, or, as the case may be, to the new liquidator, all the books, papers, documents, and accounts which he is by this rule required to deliver on his release.

The Board of Trade may, at any time during the progress of the liquidation, on the application of the liquidator or the official receiver direct that such of the books, papers, and documents of the company or of the liquidator as are no longer required for the purpose of the liquidation, may be sold, destroyed, or otherwise disposed of (o).

Where property forming part of a company's assets is sold by the liquidator through an auctioneer or other agent, the gross proceeds of the sale must be paid over by such auctioneer or agent, and the charges and expenses connected with the sale must afterwards be paid to such auctioneer or agent, on the production of the necessary certificate of the taxing officer. Every liquidator by whom such auctioneer or agent is employed, will, unless the Court otherwise orders, be accountable for the proceeds of every such sale (p).

RELEASE OF LIQUIDATOR.

When the liquidator of a company which is being wound-up by the Court in England has realized all the property of the company, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realized without needlessly protracting the liquidation, and has distributed a final dividend, if any, to the creditors, and adjusted the rights of the contributories among themselves, and made a final return, if any, to the contributories, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Board of Trade must, on his application, cause a report on his accounts to be prepared, and, on his complying with all the requirements of the Board, must take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor, or contributory, or person interested against the release of the liquidator, and must either grant or withhold the release accordingly, subject, nevertheless, to an appeal to the High Court (u).

Where the release of a liquidator is withheld the Court may, on the application of any creditor, or contributory, or person interested, make such order as it thinks just, charging the liquidator with the consequences of any act or default which he may have done or made contrary to his duty.

An order of the Board of Trade releasing the liquidator discharges him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the company, or otherwise in relation to his conduct as liquidator, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact.

Where the liquidator has not previously resigned or been removed, his release operates as a removal of him from his office (x).

A liquidator in a winding-up by the Court before making application to the Board of Trade for his release, must give notice of his intention so to do to all the creditors who have proved their debts, and to all the contributories, and must send with the notice a summary of his receipts and payments as liquidator.

(t) Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, Appendix, Form 88*a*.

(u) In practice the Board require an affidavit that the requisite notices and summaries have been sent to all the creditors and contributories, and if the accounts are satisfactory and this affidavit is made they usually grant the release as a matter of course.

(x) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 s. 157.

When the Board of Trade have granted to a liquidator his release, a notice of the order granting the release must be gazetted. The liquidator must provide the requisite stamp fee for the Gazette, which he may charge against the company's assets (y).

Where a liquidator is released under this section, the official receiver becomes and remains liquidator (z).

An appeal from the Board of Trade under the section will be made by motion (a): such motion must be served on the Board of Trade.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS AND CONTRIBUTORIES OF INTENTION TO APPLY FOR RELEASE (b).

(Title.)

Take notice that I, the undersigned Liquidator of the above-named Company, intend to apply to the Board of Trade for my release, and further take notice that any objection you may have to the granting of my release must be notified to the Board of Trade within twenty-one days of the date hereof.

A summary of my receipts and payments as Liquidator is hereto annexed.

DISSOLUTION OF COMPANY.

When a company has been wound-up and is about to be dissolved, the books and papers of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of as follows (that is to say) :—

(a) In the case of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court in such way as the Court directs ;

(b) In the case of a voluntary winding-up in such way as the company by extraordinary resolution directs.

But after five years from the dissolution of the company no responsibility shall rest on the company, or the liquidators, or any person to whom the custody of the books and papers has been committed, by reason of the same not being forthcoming to any person claiming to be interested therein (f). These provisions apply to a limited partnership where it has been wound-up by the Court whether on the ground of the previous dissolution of the limited partnership or on any other ground (g).

Books of the company which are in the possession of a liquidator after dissolution, and as to which he has received no direction, are in his absolute control, and he can therefore not claim protection on an application for discovery on the ground that he holds them on behalf of some one else (h).

When the affairs of a company have been completely wound-up in a compulsory liquidation, the Court must make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of the order, and the company will be dissolved accordingly.

The order must be reported by the liquidator to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, who must make in his books a minute of the dissolution of the company. In practice, however, orders dissolving companies are not often made now.

If the liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section he will be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which he is in default (i).

These provisions only apply to a limited partnership where the affairs of such partnership have been completely wound up by the Court under an order for winding up not made on the ground that the limited partnership has been dissolved (k).

After dissolution the Crown is entitled to assets which are held in trust for the company, such as assets to which the company would have been entitled if it had not been dissolved in a bankruptcy in which it has proved (l).

Blackstone says (m) that hereditaments to which a dissolved corporation was before dissolution entitled revert to the grantor, on the ground that every grant to a corporation is for its life only, and it has been held that a lease to a company terminates on its dissolution, and that therefore sureties for the lessee are released from their liability (n). This view seems to be quite untenable having regard to the winding-up provisions of the Act; if right it would follow that every grant or assignment or lease to a company would on its dissolution become void, and that even though it has parted with all interest therein years before the dissolution. Joyce, J., in another case (o) assumed that the company's interest vested in the Crown in such cases, and said that the Crown would on payment of certain fees convey it to a purchaser, who was entitled.

Where a dissolved company at its dissolution holds property on trust for another, e.g. a purchaser (p) or debenture-holders, the Court will appoint new trustees of the property, and will vest the property in them under the powers conferred by the Trustee Act, 1893, or it is thought in spite of the decision of Buckley, J., in Taylor's Agreements Trusts (q), will vest the property in the cestui que trust (r) on the ground that the trustee, i.e. the company, cannot be found, and that the case is therefore covered by sections 26 and 35 of the Trustee Act, 1893, if these cases or any of them are law it is submitted that Hastings Corporation v. Letton (s) cannot be so.

Blackstone also takes the view (t) that debts due to or from a corporation die with its dissolution. Unless the debts have been assigned (u) or any trust has been created this would perhaps be the case, but it is submitted that it is at all events arguable that in such cases a debt due to a corporation would go to the Crown as bona vacantia. A surety for the debts of a company will usually be liable in spite of the dissolution of the company (x). Where a company holds property as a joint tenant, such property will on its dissolution devolve on the other joint tenant (y).

Where a company has been dissolved, a solicitor who continues an action commenced before dissolution will be liable to pay to the other side the costs as between solicitor and client of all proceedings after dissolution, even though he does not know of the dissolution, and such lack of knowledge does not arise through any fault of his, and the name of the company will be struck out (z), the only exception to this rule being where the proceedings have been ready for hearing before dissolution and have been delayed solely by the state of business of the Court (a). This exception holds good even where the proceedings have been assigned to the wrong Judge, and have subsequently by consent been transferred to the right Judge (b).

Though a liquidator may in some cases be entitled to take steps for a dissolution without having satisfied all claims (c), it will usually be a dereliction of duty for him to do so (d), and as such may be restrained by injunction (e).

POWER OF COURT TO DECLARE DISSOLUTION VOID.

If the dissolution is once completed, the proper course will be to proceed under section 223 of the Act, which makes the following provision :—

Where a Company has been dissolved, the Court may at any time within two years of the date of the dissolution, on an application (f) being made for the purpose by the Liquidator of the Company or by any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit, declaring the dissolution to have been void, and thereupon such proceedings may be taken as might have been taken if the Company had not been dissolved.

It is the duty of the person on whose application the order was made, within seven days after the making of the order, to file with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies an office copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do he will be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the default continues (g). The Court will make such an order on the application of a creditor of the dissolved Company who cannot get paid otherwise, and who applies with reasonable promptitude (gg).

Before this section or the corresponding provision of the Act of 1907 came into force it was held that a voluntary liquidator who had without fraud, but with full knowledge that debts had not been paid, distributed the assets of the company among its contributories, was, after the dissolution of the company personally liable to the creditors (h).

This decision may still have its importance, even in a compulsory winding up, for the dissolution can only be declared void within two years, while the release of the liquidator can be revoked at any time, though only where there has been fraud or suppression or concealment of a material fact (i). The last-mentioned case was a case where the facts would, it is thought, have supported a finding of fraud, and had it proceeded on this ground, it would have been easy enough to support, for there would have been a tort, and, whatever the position of the liquidator, persons who were injured and were bound to be injured by his act would have their redress against him (k). Unfortunately, the case proceeded on dicta in earlier cases (l), which suggest that a liquidator is a trustee for creditors, and that consequently he is liable to them for breach of trust or before the Judge in open Court; Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, rr. 5 and 6. In Henderson's Nigel (1911), 105 L.T. 370, where the order was sought because there were undistributed assets, NEVILLE, J., required the Crown to be served as such assets were apparently bona vacantia. Ultimately, it was not considered necessary to resuscitate the company as the Crown made no claim and the liquidator gave an undertaking to pay the costs of the Crown and his own costs to be taxed out of the fund and to distribute the residue among the shareholders subject to his reasonable costs of distribution and to submit his account to the Board of Trade. negligence. This view seems to be consistent with neither Coxon v. Gorst (m) nor Knowles v. Scott (n); and it is thought that the latter case was not sufficiently distinguished by saying that as the company was there not dissolved there was a remedy by misfeasance proceedings. That was very true, but on an application under that section money or property recovered must be repaid or restored to the coffers of the company, and there can usually be no order for payment to an individual creditor (o). No doubt the liquidator is bound under the Act to distribute the assets of the company equally among the creditors, but it is submitted that the cases above cited (p) establish that this is not a duty owed to any individual creditor. If this is the case during winding up it is difficult to see why it should be otherwise after dissolution.

(m) [1891] 2 Ch. 73.

(n) [1891] 1 Ch. 717. In Hill's Waterfall Estate and Gold Mining Co., [1896] 1 Ch. 947, it was said that while a liquidator is not a trustee of surplus assets for contributories during winding-up, he may possibly be liable as an officer of the Court to creditors in a compulsory winding-up. It is, however, submitted that the fact that he is an officer of the Court cannot make a difference.

(o) For an exception to this rule, see Watchmakers' Alliance and Ernest Goode's Stores (1905), 5 Tax Cases, 117, and New Zealand Join Stock and General Corporation (1907), 23 T. L. CHAPTER XI.

Powers of Court and Liquidator.

Delivery of Property to Liquidator.

In a winding-up by the Court the liquidator takes into his custody or under his control all the property and things in action to which the company is or appears to be entitled.

In a winding-up by the Court in Scotland or Ireland, if and so long as there is no liquidator, all the property of the company is deemed to be in the custody of the Court (a).

The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, and any trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer (b) of the company to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to the liquidator, any money, property, or books and papers in his hands to which the company is primâ facie entitled (c).

If any director, officer, or contributory of any company being wound-up destroys, mutilates, alters, or falsifies any books, papers, or securities, or makes or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register, book of account, or document belonging to the company with intent to defraud or deceive any person, he will be guilty of a misdemeanour, and be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour (d).

Section 173 of the Act provides that general rules may be made for enabling the powers of the Court for requiring delivery of property or documents to the liquidator to be exercised or performed by the liquidator as an officer of the Court and subject to the control of the

(a) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 150.

(b) An auditor has been held not to be an officer within the meaning of this section: Findlay v. Waddell, [1910] S. C. 670.

(c) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 164. The Court may also order any contributory purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into the Bank of England or any branch thereof to the account of the liquidator instead of to the liquidator, and any such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator. All moneys and securities paid or delivered into the Bank of England or any branch thereof in the event of a winding-up by the Court will be subject in all respects to the order of the Court: ibid., s. 167.

(d) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 216.

Court. The Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, accordingly contain the following provision :—

The powers conferred on the Court by Section 164 of the Act, shall be exercised by the Liquidator. Any contributory for the time being on the list of contributories, trustee, receiver, banker or agent or officer of a Company which is being wound up under order of the Court shall, on notice from the Liquidator and within such time as he shall by notice in writing require, pay, deliver, convey, surrender or transfer to or into the hands of the Liquidator any sum of money or balance, books, papers, estate or effects which happen to be in his hands for the time being and to which the Company is primâ facie entitled (e).

Under this section an order has been made on a director and contributory of a company, requiring him to give the liquidator possession of property which he was under contract to sell to the company, and which the company had either wholly or partly paid for (f). The Court has also, apparently on a summons in a debenture-holder's action, required books and documents, which were subject to the debenture-holder's charge, but not part of his title-deeds, and were in the hands of a receiver appointed in the action to be handed over to the liquidator on his undertaking to produce them to the plaintiff in the action or the receiver (g). This case turned on the statutory duties of the liquidator. Apparently, however, the books belonged to the debenture-holders until they were satisfied, and not to the company at all.

The Court can, under section 164 only make an order on the persons named in the section, and the Court or the liquidator cannot under the section get an order against a creditor. It would seem, moreover, that a constructive trust will usually not be within the section (h). Where a large sum of money was paid by a promoter of a company to a banker in order to induce him to allow the company to open an account with him, it was held that though the money so paid was misapplied, and obviously came out of the promotion money, the Court could make no order as the money had not been paid directly by the company, and so could not be said to be part of its property (i). Applications to the Court under this section should be made by summons or motion (k), preferably by summons.

failing to comply with an order under this section, he may claim privilege during the sitting of Parliament, and for forty days before and after. The application may, however, be renewed when the privilege is gone (l).

INSPECTION OF BOOKS.

After an order for a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make such order for inspection by creditors and contributories of the company of its books and papers as the Court thinks just, and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected by creditors or contributories accordingly, but not further or otherwise (m).

On a winding-up this section supersedes the various sections of the Act giving rights of inspection while the company is a going concern (n), and also any rights given by the articles (o). No absolute right of inspection is given by it, but the Court has a discretion, and will only allow inspection where the person seeking it wants it for the general purposes of the liquidation, and not for the purpose of prosecuting any claims he may have against the directors or promoters (p), or of helping him in any claim he may have as a dissentient shareholder on a reconstruction (q). Under the section the Court cannot decide any question as to who is entitled to any of the books of a company (p), but perhaps this point is not very important as it would seem that the liquidator is entitled to all books required for the purposes of the liquidation (r). A person entitled to inspect is primâ facie entitled to employ an agent or an expert to inspect at his own expense (s), and it is thought that there is nothing in this section to rebut this presumption (t). A person inspecting under the section may take copies (u).

VESTING OF PROPERTY OF UNREGISTERED COMPANIES.

If an unregistered company has no power to sue and be sued in a common name, or if for any reason it appears expedient, the Court may by the winding-up order, or by any subsequent order, direct that all or any part of the property, real and personal (including things in action) belonging to the company, or to trustees on its behalf, is to vest in the liquidator by his official name, and thereupon the property or the part thereof specified in the order will vest accordingly; and the liquidator may, after giving such indemnity (if any) as the Court may direct, bring or defend in his official name any action or other legal proceeding relating to that property, or necessary to be brought or defended for the purposes of effectually winding up the company and recovering its property (y).

In spite of the fact that a company had registered pending a winding-up petition, Malins, V.-C., in one case made an order under this section (z). His decision proceeded on the ground that registration after the commencement of the winding-up was a mere nullity. No doubt there should be no such registration, but if ever the case should occur again it will be well to remember that the section of the present Act (a), which deals with the effect of the certificate of the Registrar on the incorporation of the company is somewhat stronger than section 192 of the Companies Act, 1862. Where an order has been made under this section vesting property in all the liquidators of a company, some of such liquidators will not have power to convey the whole legal estate, even if the Court has authorized the liquidators who have joined in the conveyance to do acts which the Act authorizes all the liquidators to do (b). Property which vests in the liquidator under this section vests in him in his official character, and not personally, and he will therefore not be personally liable for arrears of rent-charge, which have accrued after the property vested in him. If an action is brought against him personally to recover such arrears, the Court will, acting under its general jurisdiction, stay the action (c).

Orders under the section will usually not be made ex parte, but the summons should be served on the trustees or other persons in whom the legal estate was vested prior to the order (d). It has been held (e) that the application should be made in the name of the company, and not of the liquidator, but this is not the practice now (ee). The Court will not make a general order authorizing a liquidator to exercise the powers conferred by the section (e).

ORDER VESTING PROPERTY OF UNREGISTERED COMPANY IN LIQUIDATOR UNDER SECTION 272 OF THE ACT.

(Title.)

UPON the application by summons dated the 6th day of October, 1911, of H. de V.B. the Official Receiver and Liquidator of the above-named Society and upon hearing Counsel for the Applicant and for W.J.R. and H.W.N., and upon reading the Order to Wind-up dated the 20th June, 1911, and the Affidavit of G.B.H. filed the 12th day of October, 1911, and the several Exhibits therein referred to :—

IT IS ORDERED that all the property real and personal (including things in action) belonging to the above-named Society or to any trustees or trustee on its behalf do vest in the said H. de V.B. the Official Receiver and Liquidator of the above-named Society by his Official name.

AND IT IS ORDERED that the costs of the said W.J.R. and H.W.N. of this Application be taxed and paid by the said Official Receiver and Liquidator out of the assets of the said Society. [Re The Birkbeck Permanent Benefit Building Society, 00213 of 1911. Mr. Registrar HOOD, October 17th, 1911.] (eee)

POWERS OF A LIQUIDATOR.

The liquidator in a winding-up by the Court has power, in the case of a winding-up in England, with the sanction either of the Court or of the Committee of Inspection (f), and, in the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland, with the sanction of the Court—

(a) To bring or defend any action or other legal proceeding in the name and on behalf of the company;

(b) To carry on the business of the company, so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up thereof;

(c) In the case of a winding-up in England, to employ a solicitor or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which the liquidator is unable to take or do himself; but the sanction in this case must be obtained before the employment, except in cases of urgency, and in those cases it must be shown that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction;

(d) In the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland, to appoint a solicitor or law agent to assist him in the performance of his duties.

The liquidator in a winding-up by the Court has power, but (subject to the provisions of the section) in the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland, only with the sanction of the Court—

(a) To sell the real and personal property, and things in action of the company by public auction or private contract, with (eee) Another very sweeping order was made in this liquidation by Mr. Registrar Hood on 11th January, 1912.

(f) See s. 160 (9) of the Act as to the Board of Trade's powers where there is no committee of inspection, and Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, r. 205, as to the official receiver exercising such powers. power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels ;

(b) To do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal ;

(c) To prove, rank, and claim in the bankruptcy, insolvency or sequestration of any contributory, for any balance against his estate, and to receive dividends in the bankruptcy, insolvency, or sequestration in respect of that balance, as a separate debt due from the bankrupt or insolvent, and rateably with the other separate creditors (g) ;

(d) To draw, accept, make, and indorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, with the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if the bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of its business ;

(e) To raise on the security of the assets of the company any money requisite ;

(f) To take out in his official name, letters of administration to any deceased contributory, and to do in his official name any other act necessary for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory or his estate which cannot be conveniently done in the name of the company ; and in all such cases the money due will, for the purpose of enabling the liquidator to take out the letters of administration or recover the money, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself ;

(g) To do all such other things as may be necessary for winding-up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

The exercise by a liquidator in a winding-up by the Court in England of the powers conferred by this section is subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of those powers.

In the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland the Court may provide by any order that the liquidator may exercise any of the above powers, except the power to appoint a solicitor or law agent without the sanction or intervention of the Court.

(g) See r. 17 of the Limited Partnerships (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, post, p. 1151, as to the rights of the liquidator of a limited partnership where the rights of separate creditors of a partner are preserved in the event of such partner having been adjudged bankrupt, or having entered into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than 20*s*. in the £, or dying in insolvent circumstances, and of an order being made for the administration of his estate according to the law of bankruptcy.

Where a liquidator is provisionally appointed by the Court, the Court may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

In a winding-up by the Court in Scotland the liquidator is subject to rules made under the Act to have the same powers as a trustee on a bankrupt estate (h).

PROCEEDINGS BY OR ON BEHALF OF A COMPANY.

A question which frequently occurs in practice is whether proceedings ought to be brought by or against the company or by or against its liquidator. It would seem that the company's name should be used where the object of the action is to recover a debt or to recover or protect property the title to which is in the company (i), and it should also be used where it sought to put in force some statutory remedy or right which is given to the company and not to its liquidator (k). On the other hand, where such remedy or right is given to the liquidator (l), or where the liquidator is setting up some right which the company when a going concern had not got, but which he as liquidator has got, there the liquidator will be the proper plaintiff (m). At one time there seems to have been some doubt as to whether a liquidator's rights were ever higher than those of the company which he represented (n), and it was pointed out that though no doubt he represented the creditors of the company, he only did so because he represented the company (o); but it would seem clear that there are cases where a liquidator has higher rights against the members of a company than the company had, and the Act expressly gives him certain rights which while the company was a going concern it had not, thus he can in many cases resist a claim for rescission of a contract to take shares where the company could not have done so (p), and he is entitled to take proceedings to impeach some act or deed of the company which is made voidable in the interest of the creditors and contributories (q), (e.g. proceedings on the ground of fraudulent preference), which were not open to the company. A liquidator will, however, be bound by admissions made by the company to the same extent as the company itself was bound (r). A bankruptcy notice founded on a judgment obtained by the company, must be given in the name of the company (s).

With regard to proceedings against the liquidator personally and not against the company, it would seem that such actions would lie (1) where the application is in the winding-up, and is with a view to enforcing some right or escaping some liability in the winding-up; (2) where the liquidator has entered into a contract under which he pledges his personal credit, or possibly where the title to the property which is the subject of the action is vested in him; (3) where the liquidator has personally been guilty of some wrongful act or default. Cases coming under class (1) need probably not be further dealt with here. An example of this class of case is, however, afforded by an application by a person to have his name removed from the list of contributories. Turning to class (2) it would seem that in the usual case a liquidator simply contracts as agent for the company, and it will be the company or its assets, and not the liquidator who will be personally liable (t); but a liquidator will, of course, be personally liable where he has pledged his own credit, e.g. by personally guaranteeing wages of persons employed by him (u). A liquidator will not, however, be personally liable for a rent-charge over land occupied by him as liquidator, even though such land has been vested in him under section 272 of the Act (x), or for rates on property he has occupied as liquidator (y).

Turning to class (3) a liquidator will sometimes be liable where he has distributed the assets, without making provision for debts he knew or ought to have known of. It would seem that in a compulsory liquidation a liquidator cannot be made personally liable at the suit of a third party, e.g. a creditor, for mere negligence his liability will be limited to cases where he has been guilty of bad faith or gross personal misconduct (z). It has been held that a voluntary liquidator who knows of certain debts and yet deliberately distributes the assets of the company without regard to them, and without providing for them will be personally liable at the suit of creditors after the company has been dissolved (a). And before dissolution a liquidator who has distributed the assets of a company without providing for debts of the company, such as, for instance, the Crown's claim for income tax, will be liable on a claim for misfeasance (b).

In Pulsford v. Devinish (c) a good deal of emphasis is laid on the fact that the winding-up was concluded, and that a voluntary liquidator does not like a liquidator in a compulsory liquidation at the conclusion of the winding-up get a release. But the case proceeds on dicta, made in cases (d) where the liquidation was compulsory, which say that the liquidator is liable as a trustee for the creditors of the company. Apart from fraud it is submitted that this case is not reconcilable with Knowles v. Scott (e).

Where proceedings are taken by a liquidator in the name of the company the Court has no power to order the liquidator to pay the costs personally (f), but in a proper case an order can be obtained for the company, if a limited company, to give security for costs (g).

Where proceedings are brought by a liquidator personally he can be ordered to pay the costs (h), but he cannot be ordered to give security for costs (i).

With regard to the cases where a liquidator will be ordered to pay the costs personally. Where he is in the position of a defendant he will usually not be ordered to do so unless he has been in some way to blame or guilty of misconduct of some sort (k), though where he is substantially in the position of a plaintiff, as on an application to stay all further proceedings on a misfeasance summons issued by him (l), or to discharge an order for public examination obtained by him, there he will be in the same position as an ordinary litigant, and will usually have to pay the costs personally if he fails (m). appeal will lie from an order directing a liquidator who is in the position of a defendant, to pay the costs of the other party (n). These orders are, of course, without prejudice to the question, whether he can get recouped out of the assets.

Where the liquidator is the applicant, and is not successful, the rule would seem to be to order the liquidator to pay the costs (o), leaving him to get the costs out of the assets if he can. Not infrequently, however, an order is made for the costs to be paid out of the assets (p). Such an order does not create any charge on the assets, it simply limits the right of the person who is to get the costs, as he may only look to the assets for them (q). He will, however, be entitled to be paid out of those assets in priority to the liquidator in cases where the liquidator may recoup himself out of the assets (r), and though his costs will be postponed to the costs of realization (s), he will not be bound to wait for payment till the estate is fully realized, but will, on obtaining the order, be entitled to go to the liquidator and demand payment of his costs out of the assets he then has in hand after paying or setting aside such sum as is sufficient to meet all costs of realization, which are presently payable at the date of such demand (t).

Sometimes the order is for the liquidator to pay the other party his costs and to be at liberty to retain such costs out of the assets. In such cases it would seem that the liquidator will have the same priority after payment as the other party had before, and that he will be entitled to payment in priority to a solicitor he had discharged before the payment (u). behalf of themselves and other shareholders they cannot get their costs out of the assets of the company in a winding-up, unless they have obtained leave in the winding-up to continue the action on behalf of the company (x).

In representative proceedings in a winding-up it was formerly not the practice to give the parties solicitor and client costs (y) ; but it is very usual now to give costs on this scale in these cases (z). The liquidator of a company on bringing or defending any legal proceedings was in former days always well advised to go to the Court (a) for directions as to what course he is to take in relation to the matter, otherwise he might become personally liable for costs, and might find that the Court would not allow him to recoup himself for such costs out of the assets of the company, as it did not approve of his conduct. In such matters it would seem that a liquidator was not in quite such a favourable position as a trustee, and if he had not shown reasonable care and skill, he was not allowed his costs (b). A liquidator who had been refused his costs out of the assets (c), could appeal against such refusal. Of course, in cases where creditors or contributories agree to indemnify a liquidator, such an application as is above mentioned was always unnecessary, but the costs of such an application were almost always allowed (d). Nowadays in compulsory cases the sanction of the committee of inspection is enough to protect the liquidator, but where heavy costs are likely to be incurred it is still desirable to go to the Court for leave to take proceedings (dd).

It would seem that where leave is given to bring or defend an action in the name of a company the assets are in effect pledged to meet the costs of the action, and the person litigating with the company will be entitled to payment of his costs immediately and in full (e). It has been doubted whether section 211 of the Act applies at all in these cases, but, assuming that it does, leave to proceed with

It is the duty of a liquidator in a compulsory winding-up to afford the other party access to all books and papers for which some special privilege cannot be claimed, and to give him every facility for inspecting them, but in the absence of special circumstances he will not be ordered to make an affidavit of documents (i). Where some person seeks to get leave to sue in the name of the company (k), it is the duty of the liquidator to see that a proper case is made out (l). Such leave will not be given to a stranger to the winding-up (m).

PROCEEDINGS IN WINDING-UP MATTERS.

It will be convenient at this stage to give the rules for applications in a winding-up (mm) :—

All proceedings in the winding-up of Companies in the High Court shall from time to time be attached to one or more of the Registrars, who shall, together with the necessary clerks and officers, and subject to the Acts and Rules, act under the general or special directions of the Judge.

Every other Registrar may act for and in place of such Registrar as above-mentioned in all proceedings under the Acts and Rules, including the holding of public examinations, and when so acting such other Registrar shall be deemed to be the Registrar for the purposes of the Act and Rules.

In every cause or matter within the jurisdiction of the Judge, whether by virtue of the Act, or by transfer, or otherwise, the Registrar shall, in addition to his powers and duties under the Rules, have all the powers and duties of a Master, Registrar, or Taxing Master (n).

The practice in England, though not, it would seem, in Ireland (e), is to make the order of the Scotch or Irish Court an order of the English Court (f). The application is by ex parte originating summons entituled, "In the Matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and In the Matter of the" particular company. The summons must be supported by an office copy of the order to be enforced (g). Under this section orders for payment of calls (h), and orders of Scotch Courts restraining an English domiciled subject from taking proceedings in San Francisco, have been enforced (h). In Ireland the registration of an order on a contributory to pay has been vacated on proof that he has already paid (i), and the English Court has restrained actions by an Irishman in Ireland, against a company being wound up in England (k). It would seem that by reason of this section a person domiciled and resident in Scotland or Ireland, will not be required to give security on taking proceedings in an English liquidation (l).

There remains the question of serving a person out of the jurisdiction. It would seem that notices which are not intended to found process, e.g. notice of an intention to settle the list of contributories (m), or notice of an intended call (n), can be served out of the jurisdiction, and the rule was extended in one case to an application for payment of a fund to one of two persons, who had been found to be entitled to it (o).

With regard to service of documents which are intended to found process. It was held in an early case that leave to serve process in Scotland could be given (p), and a similar order was made without prejudice in the case of process to be served in Ireland (q). These cases did not turn on the place where the process was to be served being Scotland or Ireland and not some other foreign part, but, having regard to the cases below cited and the rules as to service out of the jurisdiction then in force, it is thought that they can only be defended on this ground. It is thought, however, that having regard to Sir George Jessel's view in International Pulp and Paper Co. (r), viz. that, having regard to the frame of the Act, companies are established in the United Kingdom and not in one part of it, these cases can be defended on this ground (rr). Section 173 of the Act gives powers to make rules as to powers, etc., conferred and imposed on the Court in England, and section 237 gives powers for carrying into effect the objects of the Act so far as relates to the winding-up of companies in England, and presumably service can be effected in Scotland or Ireland in manner prescribed by the Companies (Winding-up) Rules 1909 (s). In other cases documents for founding proceedings could not be served out of England (t); but now O. 11, r. 8A, R. S. C. provides that—

"The Court or a Judge may direct that any summons order or notice "shall be served on any party or person in a foreign country (u) and the "procedure prescribed by Order 11 Rule 8 with reference to serving actions were stayed on an Ex parte application made on the hearing of the petition.

ORDER FOR SERVICE OF NOTICE OF ORIGINATING SUMMONS OUT OF JURISDICTION.

UPON the Application by Summons dated the 14th December 1910 of L.M. of . in the City of London the Liquidator in the voluntary winding-up of the above-named Company and upon hearing the Solicitors for the Applicant and upon reading the Originating Summons issued in the above-matter by the said Liquidator and dated the 7th December 1910 and the Affidavit of V.N. filed the 14th December 1910.

AND it appearing from the said Affidavit that R. v. S. of in the Empire of Austria and Dr. R.S.H. of in the said Empire of Austria the Respondents to the said Originating Summons are not British Subjects, and are resident or may probably be found as to the said R. v. S. at in the Empire of Austria and as to the said Dr. R.S.H. at in the said Empire of Austria.

IT IS ORDERED that the Liquidator of the above-named Company be at liberty to serve Notice of the said Originating Summons together with a copy of this Order on each of the Respondents as to the said R. v. S. at and as to the said Dr. R.S.H. at respectively in the said Empire of Austria or elsewhere, in the said Empire and the time within which the said Respondents are to cause appearance to be entered to the said Originating Summons is to be sixteen days from such service. [Re The Domains Company of Siberia, Ltd., 00433 of 1910. Mr. Registrar HOOD, December 16th, 1910.]

Subject to rules of Court, an appeal from any order or decision made or given in the winding-up of a company by the Court under the Act lies in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as an appeal from any order or decision of the Court in cases within its ordinary jurisdiction.

In regard to orders or judgments pronounced in Scotland by the Lord Ordinary on the Bills in vacation—

(i) No order or judgment under the provisions of the Act specified in the First Part of the Fourth Schedule to the Act will be subject to review, reduction, suspension, or stay of execution; and

(ii) Every other order or judgment (except as hereinafter mentioned) will be subject to review only by reclaiming note,

(x) The effect of this rule is to assimilate the procedure on the service of a summons order, or notice to the procedure prevailing under O. 11, R. S. C., on the service of a writ. Thus in countries where O. 11, r. 8, R. S. C., applies (at present Germany and Russia), the procedure prescribed by that rule may be made use of. In other cases leave will only be given in cases which can be brought within one of the headings in O. 11, r. 1: Aktiebolaget Robertsfors et La Société Anonymé des Papeteries de l'AA., [1910] 2 K. B. 727; cp. also Charles Duval & Co. v. Gans, [1904] 2 K. B. 685. Under the Irish Rules leave has been given to serve a summons to enforce payment of a call out of the jurisdiction: George T. Wake (1911), 45 Ir., L. T. 276.

in common form, presented within fourteen days from the date of the order or judgment, but orders or judgments under the provisions of the Act specified in the Second Part of the Fourth Schedule to the Act will from the dates of those orders or judgments, and notwithstanding any reclaiming note against them, be carried out and receive effect until the reclaiming note is disposed of by the Court.

In regard to orders or judgments pronounced in Scotland by a permanent Lord Ordinary to whom a winding-up has been remitted, any such order or judgment will be subject to review only by reclaiming note in common form presented within fourteen days from the date of the order or judgment, but should a reclaiming note not be presented and moved during sessions, the provisions of the section in regard to orders or judgments pronounced by the Lord Ordinary on the bills in vacation will apply to the order or judgment.

Nothing in the section affects the provisions of the Act in reference to decrees in Scotland for payment of calls in the winding-up of companies, whether voluntarily or by or subject to the supervision of the Court (y).

The provisions of the Fourth Schedule are as follows :—

PART I.—ORDERS PRONOUNCED IN VACATION IN SCOTLAND WHICH ARE TO BE FINAL.

Orders :—

As to time for proving claims (section 169).

As to the attendance of, and production of documents by, persons indebted to, or having property of, or information as to the affairs or property of, a Company (section 174).

As to meetings for ascertaining wishes of creditors or contributories (section 219).

As to summoning meetings of creditors or contributories where a compromise is proposed (section 120).

As to the examination of witnesses in regard to the property or affairs of a Company (section 227).

PART II.—ORDERS PRONOUNCED IN VACATION IN SCOTLAND WHICH ARE TO TAKE EFFECT UNTIL RECLAIMING NOTE DISPOSED OF.

Orders :—

Restraining or permitting commencement or continuance of legal proceedings (sections 140, 142, 144, 266, 270, 271).

Appointing an Official Liquidator to fill a vacancy, or appointing (except to fill a vacancy caused by the removal of a liquidator by the Court) a liquidator for a winding-up voluntarily or under supervision (sections 149, 186, 202).

(y) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 181.

Sanctioning the exercise of any power by an official liquidator other than the power to appoint a law agent or to sell property (section 151).

Requiring the delivery of property or documents to the official liquidator (section 164).

As to the arrest and detention of an absconding contributory and his property (section 176).

Limiting the powers of provisional official liquidators (section 151 (5)).

For continuance of winding-up under supervision (section 199).

APPEALS.

In England the time for bringing an appeal from any order or decision made or given in the matter of the winding-up of a company is fourteen days (z). Where the Registrar has made an order in Chambers a person objecting to the order must move before the Judge in Court to discharge it (a). The appeal from a Registrar does not lie direct to the Court of Appeal (b). There is not any definite time mentioned in the rules within which it is necessary to move to discharge the Registrar's order, but the Court usually adopts the analogy of appeals, and will not entertain such a motion after fourteen days have elapsed (c).

It would seem that a fourteen days' notice of appeal is requisite (d). In an Irish case it was said that a creditor could appeal from an order omitting a name from the list of contributories without any leave, and that the Court would not give leave to appeal or allow the creditor to use the liquidator's name (e). In Ship's Case (f), a director was given leave to intervene on an appeal, but the House of Lords (g) said they could not see why such leave was given. In other cases the Court has declined to hear contributories supporting an appeal where the liquidator was appealing (h). Probably the true rule was that creditors or contributories who had appeared in the Court below could usually appeal without leave, but other persons could not do so (i). Section 1 (6) of the Judicature Act, 1894, however, provides that no appeal shall lie without the leave of the Judge or the Court of Appeal from any interlocutory judgment or interlocutory order made or given by a Judge except in the case (amongst others) of a decision determining the claim of any creditor or the liability of any contributory or the liability of any director or other officer under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, in respect of misfeasance or otherwise (ii).

POWER OF LIQUIDATOR TO CARRY ON BUSINESS.

Under section 151 (1) (b) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, the liquidator has only power to carry on the business of the company so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up thereof (k). The necessity required would seem to be a mercantile rather than an absolute necessity, but a scheme by which a shareholder in a company formed for recovering wrecks, was to continue the recovery of wrecks, with the help of assistants paid by the liquidator, was held to be bad, because it was not required for the beneficial winding-up of the company, but was put forward for the purpose of increasing the value of the company's shares (l). Moreover, under this section, an indefinite carrying on of the business of the company cannot be sanctioned (m), though, no doubt, a liquidator would in a proper case have a wide power of entering into contracts with a view to a sale of the whole property as a going concern (n). Having regard to the provisions of this section, a winding-up will not necessarily terminate an ordinary trade contract entered into before the winding-up (o), but where a contract was carried out after the winding-up and payments became due after that date to the company, it was held that a debt from the company due before the winding-up could not be set off against such payments (p). It has also been held that where two contracts with the same person have been entered into before the winding-up, the liquidator may perform one and leave the other party to his remedy in damages in respect of the other, and that such damages cannot be set off against moneys due to the company under the contract which has been performed (q). contracts made after the winding-up under the section, it has been held that it is no defence to an action by the company, to say that the contract was not necessary for the beneficial winding-up (r), and whether this case was or was not properly decided it would seem that the onus of making out a case of this kind will always be on the defendant (s). The sub-section does not enable a liquidator to lend moneys of the company which are in his hands out at interest (t).

EMPLOYMENT OF A SOLICITOR.

Turning to the question of the employment of a solicitor, the mere fact that the sanction of the Court to bringing or defending proceedings has been given, will not authorize the employment of a solicitor in any particular proceedings. Separate leave from the Court or the committee of inspection must be obtained for this. The sanction required by section 151 should not be a general sanction to employ a solicitor in all proceedings, as this is contrary to the practice. Such sanction may be given as regards future proceedings in an action, even though it has not been given before the commencement of the action, but the Court will not usually give its sanction to the employment of a solicitor in proceedings which have already been taken except in cases of urgency. The costs of unsanctioned proceedings will not be allowed (u).

It would seem that a member of the committee of inspection cannot be employed as solicitor unless the sanction of the Court is obtained before his employment, and solicitors who have a clerk who is a member of such committee are in the same position. In these cases actual out-of-pocket expenses, not including charges for clerk's time, etc., will alone be allowed (x). Where the liquidator is a solicitor his partner will never be employed, except in cases where he is willing to act without remuneration (y). The sanction need not be given in writing (z), though, of course, it is always desirable to have it in writing. In giving their consent the Court or the committee of inspection may fix the amount of costs which may be incurred (a).

A solicitor so employed is the agent of the company and not of the liquidator, and his only claim for remuneration is against the assets of the company (b).

The costs of a solicitor so employed are payable in priority to the liquidator's remuneration (c), and where two solicitors have been employed their respective costs are payable pari passu (d), except where the first solicitor has given up the papers to the second solicitor on an undertaking that the costs of the first solicitor should be paid out of the estate, in such case the first solicitor will have priority (e). The costs of a successful litigant if payable out of the assets will have priority over those of any solicitor of the liquidator (f). Where a person has obtained an order for payment of costs out of the assets of the company, his solicitors, being neither creditors nor contributories of the company, cannot obtain an order to take proceedings in the name of the company, e.g. misfeasance proceedings to increase the assets (g).

Where a solicitor elects to be remunerated under Schedule II. and not under Schedule I. of the General Order made under the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, the liquidator should before employing him on these terms bring the matter before the Court or the committee of inspection (h).

With regard to the lien of a solicitor employed in a winding-up. Such lien cannot extend to documents which have to be filed under rules 16 and 17 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (i), and the same rule holds good with regard to documents which by the Act or the articles of the particular company are required to be kept at the offices of the company (k).

With regard to other documents the broad general rule, which applies in all cases of such liens, viz. that the liquidator cannot give any higher right than he himself has (l), must be borne in mind.

Thus a solicitor employed before a winding-up and who has not discharged himself cannot be required to deliver up documents which have come into his hands before the winding-up (m). With regard to documents which have come into his hands after the winding-up (n), these he can be required to deliver up subject to his lien, and none the less, it would seem, where he has actually been retained by the liquidator to continue an action, and the papers have come into his hands in such action, and while he was so retained (o). This decision is apparently based on Capital Fire Insurance Association (p), it goes, however, far beyond that case, and, whatever may be the rule in administration actions, it must be borne in mind that, as is above stated, a solicitor employed by the liquidator is the solicitor of the company, and not of the liquidator, and it is difficult to see why creditors who claim through the company should be in a better position than the company itself. In any case, however, the Court can, under section 174 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, require the solicitor to produce any books and papers in his custody or power, such production to be without prejudice to his lien (q).

A solicitor can under the particular lien given to him by the common law, retain and set off against sums due to him for costs any moneys which have been recovered by his exertions whether as solicitor to a liquidator or to the company, including the costs of a summons to establish his right to such retainer (r). The Court will, moreover, make a charging order under the Solicitors Act, 1860, on a fund recovered by a solicitor's exertions in respect of costs owing to such solicitor for services rendered prior to the winding-up, in recovering the fund (s).

SALE OF PROPERTY OF COMPANY.

Turning to the subsection which empowers the liquidator to sell the real and personal property and things in action of the company. Where property forming part of a company's assets is sold by the liquidator through an auctioneer or other agent, the gross proceeds of the sale must be paid over by such auctioneer or agent, and the charges and expenses connected with the sale must afterwards be paid to such auctioneer or agent, on the production of the necessary certificate of the taxing officer. Every liquidator by whom such auctioneer or agent is employed will, unless the Court otherwise orders, be accountable for the proceeds of every such sale (u). Under this provision of the Act misfeasance claims may be sold (x), and an order for selling such claims by public auction has been made in a debenture-holder's action (y) by virtue of this power a liquidator can carry out a reconstruction scheme (z). The Court or the committee of inspection can also under this sub-section either alone or coupled with the powers conferred by section 214 of the Act, sanction the sale of the uncalled capital of the company (a).

The provisions of section 214 are as follows :—

(1) The liquidator may, with the sanction following (that is to say) :—

(a) In the case of a winding-up by the Court in England with the sanction either of the Court or of the committee of inspection ;

(b) In the case of a winding-up by the Court in Scotland or Ireland, and in the case of any winding-up subject to supervision, with the sanction of the Court ; and

(c) In the case of a voluntary winding-up, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the Company, do the following things or any of them :—

(i) Pay any classes of creditors in full ;

(ii) Make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors, or having or alleging themselves to have any claim, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages against the Company or whereby the Company may be rendered liable.

(iii) Compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts, and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the Company and a contributory, or alleged contributory, or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the Company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets or the winding-up of the Company, on such terms as may be agreed, and take any security for the discharge of any such call, debt, liability or claim, and give a complete discharge in respect thereof.

(2) In the case of a winding-up by the Court in England the exercise by the Liquidator of the powers of this section shall be subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of those powers (b).

Under section 151 (2) (a) and this section a company which had a primâ facie case for setting aside a sale of a mine to it, but no funds to prosecute its claim, has been allowed to sell its assets to a new company upon the terms of the new company, carrying on the action and working the mine in the meanwhile, and giving the original company an option of repurchasing (c).

It would seem, moreover, that the powers conferred by section 214 will enable a compromise to be entered into with a class of alleged contributories, where it is doubtful whether they are in fact contributories, and whether, if they are, they can meet their liabilities (d), and also an arrangement by which contributories who paid £20 before a certain day were relieved from a liability of £25 (e). The Court has also sanctioned an arrangement which involved the release of all claims against two contributories, and this though the holder of a large number of shares objected (f). And another, though there were objecting creditors and contributories, by which an action was stayed on terms and certain creditors were paid (g).

On an application, made with a view to a compromise, for leave to exercise all the powers conferred by section 151 (2) (a) without any further leave, the Court declined to make any order, as it did not consider that the evidence before it justified an order (h), and it took the same course where the parties asking for the sanction of a compromise, refused to furnish the data which had led them to consider the compromise a desirable one (i).

A compromise will as between the liquidator and the other party to the compromise be binding even where the necessary sanction has not been obtained, at all events where such other party does not know of this (k). Section 214 does not, however, enable a majority to bind a dissentient minority (l). This is remedied by section 120 of the Act, which, as it extends to going companies as well as to companies in winding-up, has already been considered.

In a winding-up by the Court, if application is made to the Court to sanction any compromise or arrangement, the Court may, before giving its sanction thereto, hear a report by the official receiver as to the terms of the scheme, and as to the conduct of the directors and other officers of the company, and as to any other matters which, in the opinion of the official receiver or the Board of Trade, ought to be brought to the attention of the Court. The report must not be placed upon the file, unless and until the Court directs it to be filed (m). Any report under this rule as applied by the Limited Partnerships (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, may extend to the conduct of the limited, as well as of the general partners (n).

The principles on which the Court will give leave to endorse bills in a winding-up were discussed in Smith, Fleming & Co.'s Case (o), and the remarks there made have probably an application to all powers exerciseable by a liquidator in a winding-up. The main principle applicable and to be borne in mind in these cases, is that the object of a winding-up is to put all creditors of the same company on an equal footing, and the Court will not sanction any step which is likely to have a contrary effect or to give some creditors a preference, by giving them a right of set-off, or otherwise.

On every application to the Court to approve a reconstruction or other scheme by which the affairs of the company are to be wound-up otherwise than by the realization and distribution of the assets, there must be a £5 impressed stamp (p).

PRIVATE EXAMINATION.

The Court may, after it has made a winding-up order, summon before it any officer of the company or person known or suspected to have in his possession any property of the company or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court deems capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, affairs, or property of the company.

The Court may examine him on oath concerning the same, either by word of mouth or on written interrogatories, and may reduce his answers to writing and require him to sign them.

The Court may require him to produce any books and papers in his custody or power relating to the company; but where he claims any lien on books or papers produced by him, the production must be without prejudice to that lien, and the Court has jurisdiction in the winding-up to determine all questions relating to that lien.

If any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, not having a lawful impediment (made known to the Court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it) the Court may cause him to be apprehended, and brought before the Court for examination (q).

(q) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 174.

Under this section the witness is not summoned by subpœna, the practice being for an ex parte application to be made for liberty to examine the person named (r) and to issue a summons under section 174. An order is then made giving liberty to examine, and ordering that a summons for that purpose do issue accordingly (rr). A summons is then issued ordering the witness to attend, and naming a day (s). This practice holds good where the application is for a person to produce all books and papers in his custody or power in any way relating to the company (t). Where an order is obtained it will not, it is thought, be necessary to serve it personally on the person to be examined (u). The application and conduct of the proceedings will usually be made by and given to the liquidator, but a creditor or contributory may apply on giving notice to the liquidator, the liquidator will then have the option of taking over and conducting the whole matter, but he will not be entitled to take any other part on the application or to oppose it (x). The Court has also jurisdiction to order an examination on its own motion (y). Where a contributory obtains an order the Court will sometimes limit the examination (z). The summons is not supported by affidavit, for an affidavit, being a public document and on the file, would, by telling the person proposed to be examined why he is to be examined, often defeat the whole object of the application. It is, however, supported by a statement in writing made to the Court and giving the reasons why an examination is considered desirable (a).

To obtain an order on a summons under the section a liquidator need not show a prima facie case, it will be enough if he shows a reasonable suspicion or a probable case (b). A creditor or contributory will perhaps have to show something rather more (c). A private examination can by the joint operation of sections 174 and 193 be ordered in a voluntary winding up (d). In such case it will be necessary to show that such an examination will be just and beneficial, as these words occur in section 193 (e). Probably, however, this does not limit the jurisdiction to any extent, as even in a compulsory winding-up the Court must be satisfied that the examination is likely to benefit the winding-up (f). Under a reconstruction in a voluntary winding-up the Court has declined to order an examination upon the application of a dissentient member, who wished to use it for the purpose of ascertaining whether or no he should accept an offer made by the liquidator to purchase his interest (g). Under the section the Court has ordered the examination of the mother-in-law of a contributory who declined to give his address (h), and also in like case of the sister and nephew of a contributory (i). It has also ordered the examination of a person from whom a contributory claimed an indemnity which he had assigned to the liquidator (k), and of the managing clerk of a bank where a contributory had had an account (l), and of a broker employed on a transfer where it was considered possible that the transferor might be made liable for calls made on the transferee (m), and of a person indebted to a contributory (n). The Court has also on the application of a contributory made an order on a person whom that contributory alleged ought to be on the list of contributories in his place (o), but this case would, it is thought, only be followed where the liquidator is anxious for the change on the list of contributories to take place, as in other cases it would seem that the examination would not tend to benefit the winding-up. Under the section the brokers of a company or of its liquidator can be summoned (p), and its solicitors can be required to produce papers without prejudice to their lien (q), but such saving will not give a solicitor any higher right in respect of his lien (r) than he would have had without it (q). It will, however, apparently be necessary to show that the books do in some way relate to the company (s). The solicitor can, however, in a proper case set up privilege (t). A servant of the company can, even where he has parted with the books and papers wrongfully, be required to produce them (u). It would seem to be doubtful whether a liquidator can require inspection of documents before requiring them to be produced (x). A mere creditor of the company can, it would seem, not be summoned (y); but the mere fact of a man being a creditor is no reason why he should not be summoned (z). The power of ordering an examination can be exercised even after action brought, for the liquidator may rightly require to know not merely whether he should begin, but also whether he should continue an action (a). But the Court has declined to make an order which would give a party to an action more information than he could obtain or has obtained by discovery (b), and it has also refused an order where, after an affidavit of documents had been made in an action, the Court had postponed making an order for production of documents or for interrogatories (c).

to any objection he may make (d), and in any case the order will not prejudice any objection that may be raised to answering questions (e). Where a Judge has made an order to examine a person or has allowed a particular question to be put, or has refused to do either of these things, the Court of Appeal will be extremely slow to reverse its decision (f); but it would seem clear that it will in some cases do so (g), and it would certainly seem that it can do so where there was no jurisdiction to make the order made in the Court below, where such order is vexatious and oppressive, where it is an abuse of the process of the Court, or where the Court below has made a mistake in a matter of principle (h). It is thought that much the same principles govern a judge, when a motion is made to discharge the order of a Registrar; but as parties are primâ facie entitled to get the opinion of the Judge in person, they would probably not be applied with quite the same strictness (h). At the same time a Registrar can always decline to allow questions he considers irrelevant or otherwise improper (i). Examinations of persons summoned before the High Court under section 174 are held in Court or in Chambers as the Court directs (k).

This rule, so far as the High Court is concerned, does away with the old cases (l), which deal with the questions of the appointment of special examiners and their powers. As already stated, the liquidator is usually the proper person to conduct an examination under the section. There may be cases where a creditor or contributory will be entitled to take part in the proceedings in addition to the liquidator (m), but notwithstanding rule 152 of the Companies Winding-up Rules, 1909, creditors and contributories will not usually be allowed to attend at a private examination (n). receiver may attend in person or by an assistant official receiver any examination of a witness under the section on whosesoever's application the same has been ordered, and may take notes of the examination for his own use and put such questions to the person examined as the Court may allow (o). The person examined is entitled to be represented by solicitor and counsel (p), but he is not entitled to have any particular solicitor (q), and though it is not usual to exclude a solicitor chosen by the person examined, if there is reason to believe that he may use the information obtained for purposes other than the examination (e.g. where he is acting in an action against the company in which such information may be useful), the Court will require him to give an undertaking only to use the information for re-examination, and not to disclose the same without leave, and to destroy any notes he may take (r). The Court will also usually allow the presence of persons who may be useful to the persons carrying on the examination, e.g. clerks who are attending to take notes or who took part in the matters with which the examination is concerned (s), but it will not allow the presence of any person where it considers that such person's presence is undesirable, e.g. where he may be examined himself at a later stage (t).

The solicitor or counsel of the person examined can re-examine him for the purpose of explaining any answers he has given, and can take notes for the purpose of such re-examination (u), and though the Court can refuse to allow him to take such notes away (x), he may, apart from any such order, do so (u).

Questions cannot be asked which may incriminate the witness, or the answers to which would involve a breach of professional privilege (y). If, however, a witness gives reasons why an answer is likely to incriminate him and such reasons are insufficient, he will be ordered to answer (z), and unless a question is obviously likely to incriminate the witness the Court must in some way be satisfied that there is a danger of its doing so (a). answer questions, where his answer will only amount to hearsay evidence, at all events where there is no action pending against him (b), and questions have been allowed to be asked of a bankrupt contributory, which could not lead to anything in the winding-up, though they might give a ground for proceedings in the bankruptcy (c). A professional witness cannot be required to answer questions until he has been tendered the fee which he is entitled to, and also his travelling expenses (d), and where it was sought to examine an officer of the Inland Revenue as to the Income Tax returns of the company, the Court declined to go behind a certificate of the Inland Revenue Commissioners, stating that in the public interest it was undesirable that answers should be made (e). The fact that a person examined is a defendant to an action brought by the company will be a reason why the Court should carefully scrutinize questions put to him, but will not prevent his being questioned on other matters (f).

Where an order has been made for a private examination, the proper course is usually for the person whom it is proposed to examine not to seek to set aside the order where he objects to it, but to attend and object to answer questions (g).

If a person examined before a Registrar or other officer of the Court who has no power to commit for contempt of Court, refuses to answer to the satisfaction of the Registrar or officer any question which he may allow to be put, the Registrar or officer must report such refusal to the Judge, and upon such report being made the person in default will be in the same position, and be dealt with in the same manner as if he had made default in answering before the Judge.

The report must be in writing, but without affidavit, and must set forth the question put, and the answer (if any) given by the person examined.

The Registrar or other officer must before the conclusion of the examination at which the default in answering is made, name the time, when, and the place where the default will be reported to the Judge, and upon receiving the report the Judge may take such action thereon as he thinks fit. If the Judge is sitting at the time when the default in answering is made, such default may be reported immediately (h).

During the sitting of Parliament, and for forty days before its meeting and after its prorogation or dissolution, a member of Parliament is privileged from being committed for contempt under these provisions. An application to commit a privileged person will be no bar to a subsequent application after the privilege has ceased (i).

Sometimes the person conducting an examination applies for an order on the person examined to attend before the Registrar at his own expense and answer a question which such person has refused to answer (k).

Where the examination is intended to lead up to litigation, the person obtaining the order for the examination may be ordered to pay the costs of the person examined, as it is a proceeding within the meaning of section 5 of the Judicature Act, 1890 (l); but such costs will not include the costs of the solicitor or counsel of the person examined (m). The later cases seem to point to examinations being in all cases proceedings (n), though this was certainly not the view taken at one time (o).

Proceedings on private examinations when held in chambers are, as appears from the foregoing, essentially of a private nature, and it will be a contempt of Court to publish an account of them (p). They are intended to put the liquidator in the same position as if he were making inquiries from a person willing to give information or from the solicitor of such a person (q).

A liquidator can, on an application for discovery, plead privilege with regard to depositions taken at a private examination (r), and the mere fact that he has asked a witness, "Did you not say this in your private examination ?" will not, if the witness admits he did say it and the proceedings at which the question was put were not proceedings open to the public, amount to a waiver of privilege (s), nor can the witness himself demand to see the depositions before answering; the Court can, however, apparently require them to be produced at the trial (t). Where the witness denies having made the statement, and the transcript of the proceedings is used to contradict him, then the whole transcript will have to be put in (t). Notice of an intention to read the evidence of a witness will not make it evidence against any other person (u), but such evidence can, at all events after such notice has been given, be used against the witness himself (x). The liquidator may, it would seem, make such depositions evidence for all purposes by exhibiting them to an affidavit or by simply putting them in as evidence, but in such cases he must be prepared to produce the witness for cross-examination if required (y).

The notes of the depositions of a person examined under section 174 of the Act, or under any order of the Court before the Court, or before any officer of the Court, or person appointed to take such an examination (other than the notes of the depositions of a person examined at a public examination under section 175 of the Act) will not be filed, or be open to the inspection of any creditor, contributory, or other person, except the official receiver or liquidator, unless and until the Court so directs, and the Court may from time to time give such general or special directions as it thinks expedient as to the custody and inspection of such notes and the furnishing of copies of or extracts therefrom (z).

Where a person who has put in his defence to an action, is interrogated on his depositions, he will usually be allowed to inspect them if his defence is not a mere blank defence (a). The fee for examining a witness under section 174 is 10*s*. for each witness sworn per hour (aa).

PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

When an order has been made in England for winding-up a company by the Court, and the official receiver has made a further report (aaa) under the Act showing that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company, or by a director or officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation, the Court may, after consideration of the report, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of the company or has been a director or officer, of the company shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose, and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation, or the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director or officer thereof.

The official receiver must take part in the examination, and for that purpose may, if specially authorized by the Board of Trade in that behalf, employ a solicitor with or without counsel.

The liquidator, where the official receiver is not the liquidator, and any creditor or contributory, may also take part in the examination either personally or by solicitor or counsel.

The Court may put such questions to the person examined as the Court thinks fit.

The person examined will be examined on oath, and must answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him.

A person ordered to be examined under this section is entitled at his own cost, before his examination, to be furnished with a copy of the official receiver's report, and may at his own cost employ a solicitor, with or without counsel, who will be at liberty to put to him such questions as the Court may deem just for the purpose of enabling him to explain or qualify any answers given by him. If he is in the opinion of the Court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him, the Court may allow him such costs as in its discretion it may think fit. It cannot, however, under this provision order the official receiver to pay the costs of the examination personally (b).

Notes of the examination must be taken down in writing, and must be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him, and will be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory at all reasonable times.

The Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the examination from time to time.

An examination under this section may, if the Court so directs, and subject to general rules, be held before any Judge of county courts, or before any officer of the Supreme Court, being an official referee, Master, or Registrar in Bankruptcy, or before any District

Registrar of the High Court named for the purpose by the Lord Chancellor or, in the case of companies being wound-up by a Palatine Court, before a Registrar of that Court, and the powers of the Court under this section as to the conduct of the examination, but not as to costs, may be exercised by the person before whom the examination is held (c).

In the case of a limited partnership the Court may, on the consideration of a further report stating that in the opinion of the official receiver a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the limited partnership or by any general or limited partner in relation to the limited partnership since its formation, direct that any person who has taken part in the promotion or formation of the limited partnership or has been a partner general or limited shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation or the conduct of the business of the limited partnership or as to his conduct and dealing as a partner (d).

What must be contained in a further report of an official receiver in order to justify an order for a public examination has already been considered (dd).

The practice where a further report has been made is as follows :—

The official receiver may apply to the Court to consider the further report. Such summons is made returnable before the Judge, and the report is left with the Judge for consideration. On such application the Court fixes a day on which the report is to be considered (e).

The consideration of the report is before the Judge of the Court personally in Chambers, and the official receiver must personally, or by counsel or solicitor, attend the consideration of the report, and give the Court any further information or explanation with reference to the matters stated in the report which the Court may require (f), and the Judge makes the order asked (ff), or deals with the matter in such other way as he thinks fit.

The application for the consideration of the report is made by ex parte summons. Formerly such summons also asked that the persons, if any, whom it was desired to examine might be directed to attend to be publicly examined (g). If an order is made nowadays, the official receiver gives informal notice to the persons who are to be examined informing them that an order has been made and that they will receive notice of the time and place appointed for the holding of the examination when the same are fixed (h). The official receiver then gets a day fixed for the examination without any further order, and serves the person to be examined with a notice in the form of Form 33 in the Appendix to the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (hh).

A summons to discharge an order for a public examination can be taken out as soon as the person to be examined knows of the order (i). As a rule such summons should not be supported by affidavit usually, all the Court has to consider is does the report show sufficient to authorize an order? And the Court will not go into matters which tend to show that the report or the opinion of the official receiver as expressed therein is wrong or inaccurate, unless, of course, mala fides is in some way made out (k). It is submitted, however, that the view expressed by Wright, J., in National Stores, Ltd. (l), i.e. that the Court will not go behind the finding of the official receiver as to whether a person has taken part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director or officer thereof, is wrong, for the section expressly says that these are the persons who can be examined on the report of the official receiver, and not that persons who are found by the further report to come within this category can be so examined. In such cases it is thought affidavit evidence may be used to show that the person whom it is sought to examine never occupied a position which would bring him within the category of persons who can be examined under the section. The question of who is an officer of the company can be more conveniently dealt with under the misfeasance section (ll). The practice in the Chancery Division is to require an application to discharge an order in Chambers to be made within fourteen days of the order sought to be discharged, but, where it is sought to discharge an order for a public examination, there must either be reasonable diligence or some explanation of the delay. It is thought that in considering whether there has or has not been reasonable diligence the practice of the Chancery Division, referred to above, will be borne in mind, time running from the time when the person proposed to be examined was served with the order (m). It is thought that unless lack of jurisdiction is shown, the Court of Appeal will be very slow to upset an order made or refused by a Judge in these matters, for to do so would be to interfere with his discretion (n).

Where the Judge makes an order under section 175 of the Act, directing any person or persons to attend for public examination :—

(a) The examination will be held before the Judge. But in the High Court the Judge may direct that the whole or any part of the examination of any such person or persons be held before the Registrar, or before any of the persons mentioned in sub-section (9) of section 175.

(b) The Judge may, if he thinks fit, either in the order for examination or by any subsequent orders, give directions as to the special matters on which any such person is to be examined.

(c) Where on an examination held before the Registrar or one of the persons mentioned in sub-section (9) of section 175 he is of opinion that such examination is being unduly or unnecessarily protracted, or for any other sufficient cause, he may adjourn the examination of any person, or any part of the examination to be held before the Judge (o).

Upon an order directing a person to attend for public examination being made, the official receiver must apply for the appointment of a day on which the public examination is to be held (p).

A day and place must be appointed for holding the public examination, and notice of the day and place so appointed must be given by the official receiver to the person who is to be examined by sending such notice in a registered letter addressed to his usual or last known address (q).

The official receiver must give notice of the time and place appointed for holding a public examination to the creditors and contributories by advertisement in such newspapers as the Board of Trade from time to time direct, or, in default of any such direction as the official receiver thinks fit, and must also forward notice of the appointment to the Board of Trade to be gazetted.

Where an adjournment of the public examination has been directed, notice of the adjournment will not, unless otherwise directed by the Court, be advertised in any newspaper, but it will be sufficient to publish in the London Gazette a notice of the time and place fixed for the adjourned examination (r).

Rule 72 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, applies to a public as well as to a private examination, and so provides a means of dealing with a witness who declines to answer questions (rr). Where questions are put to a witness on his examination, the Court has a wide discretion as to what questions it will allow, and may disallow questions, even though they relate to the promotion or formation or to the conduct of the business of the company or to the conduct or dealings of the person examined as director or officer of the company. The fact that litigation is pending will not necessarily be a reason for refusing to allow a question to be put, but the Court will not allow a question where it is put not in the interest of the company or its creditors or contributories, but of persons litigant with the company (s). In the case just considered the official receiver opposed the question being put, and the Registrar had upheld this objection, and the matter was brought before the Judge on motion for an order that the witness might answer the questions: according to the report in Weekly Notes, there was some difficulty as to this procedure, but the point was waived (t).

The official receiver in making a further report and attending a public examination is performing a statutory duty, and he will in no case, except, no doubt, where mala fides is shown (u), be personally liable to pay the costs of the examination, the rights of the person examined being against the assets only (x). Where, however, the official receiver makes himself a litigant, as, for instance, where he opposes an application by the person examined for an order exculpating him from the charges made or suggested against him, or where he opposes an application to discharge an order made on a report which does not contain sufficient material to warrant the order (y), there he can be ordered to pay the costs personally.

If any person who has been directed by the Court to attend for public examination fails to attend at the time and place appointed for holding or proceeding with the same, and no good cause is shown by him for such failure, or if before the day appointed for the examination the official receiver satisfies the Court that such person has absconded, or that there is reason for believing that he is about to abscond with the view of avoiding examination, it will be lawful for the Court, upon its being proved to the satisfaction of the Court that notice of the order and of the time and place appointed for attendance at the public examination was duly served, without any further notice, to issue a warrant for the arrest of the person required to attend, or to make such other order as the Court shall think just.

A warrant of arrest issued by the High Court under this rule must be issued in the Central Office of the Supreme Court pursuant to an

The notes of every public examination must, after being signed as required by section 175 (7) of the Act, be filed with the Registrar (b).

SPECIAL COMMISSION FOR RECEIVING EVIDENCE.

The Judges of the County Courts in England who sit at places more than twenty miles from the General Post Office, and the Judge exercising the bankruptcy jurisdiction of the High Court in Ireland, and the assistant barristers and recorders in Ireland, and the sheriffs of counties in Scotland are commissioners for the purpose of taking evidence under the Act, where a company is wound-up in any part of the United Kingdom, and the Court may refer the whole or any part of the examination of any witnesses under the Act to any person by this provision appointed commissioner, although he is out of the jurisdiction of the Court that made the winding-up order.

Every commissioner must, in addition to any powers which he might lawfully exercise as a Judge of a County Court, Judge of the High Court, assistant barrister or recorder, or sheriff, have in the matter so referred to him all the same powers of summoning and examining witnesses, of requiring the production or delivery of documents, of punishing defaults by witnesses, and of allowing costs and expenses to witnesses, as the Court which made the winding-up order.

The examination so taken must be returned or reported to the Court which made the order in such manner as that Court directs (c).

ORDER FOR EXAMINATION IN SCOTLAND.

The Court may direct the examination in Scotland of any person for the time being in Scotland, whether a contributory of the company or not, in regard to the trade, dealings, affairs, or property of any company in course of being wound-up, or of any person being a contributory of the company, so far as the company may be interested therein by reason of his being a contributory; and the order or commission to take the examination must be directed to the sheriff of the county in which the person to be examined is residing or happens to be for the time; and the sheriff must summon that person to appear before him at a time and place to be specified in the summons for examination on oath as a witness or as a haver, and to produce any books or papers called for which are in his possession or power.

The sheriff may take the examination either orally or on written interrogatories, and must report the same in writing in the usual form to the Court; and must transmit with the report the books and papers produced, if the originals thereof are required and specified by the order or commission, or otherwise copies thereof or extracts therefrom authenticated by the sheriff.

If any person so summoned fails to appear at the time and place specified, or refuses to be examined or to make the production required, the sheriff must proceed against him as a witness or haver duly cited, and failing to appear or refusing to give evidence or make production may be proceeded against by the law of Scotland.

The sheriff will be entitled to such and the like fees, and the witness will be entitled to such and the like allowances, as sheriffs when acting as commissioners under appointment from the Court of Session, and as witnesses and havers are entitled to in the like cases according to the law and practice of Scotland.

If any objection is stated to the sheriff by the witness, either on the ground of his incompetency as a witness, or as to the production required, or on any other ground, the sheriff may, if he thinks fit, report the objection to the Court, and suspend the examination of the witness until it has been disposed of by the Court (d).

Where an order had been made under this section and the witness raised objections, a further order was made on him directing him to attend before the sheriff of the county at his own expense (e).

DEPOSITIONS.

If the Court or the officer of the Court before whom any examination under the Acts and Rules is directed to be held is in any case, and at any stage of the proceedings, of opinion that it would be desirable that a person (other than the person before whom an examination is taken) should be appointed to take down the evidence of any person examined in shorthand or otherwise, it is competent for the Court or officer aforesaid to make such appointment. The person at whose instance the examination is taken will nominate a person for the purpose, and the person so nominated will be appointed, unless the Court or officer holding the examination otherwise orders. Every person so appointed will be paid a sum not exceeding one guinea a day, and a sum not exceeding 8*d*. per folio of 90 words for any transcript of the evidence that may be required, and such sums will be paid by the party at whose instance the appointment was made, or out of the assets of the company as may be directed by the Court (f).

MISFEASANCE PROCEEDINGS.

Where in the course of winding-up a company it appears that any person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of a company or any past or present director, manager or liquidator or any officer of the company has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any money or property of the company or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of the official receiver, or of the liquidator, or of any creditor or contributory, examine into the conduct of the promoter, director, manager, liquidator, or officer, and compel him to repay or restore the money or property or any part thereof respectively with interest at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sum to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of the misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks just.

These provisions apply notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender may be criminally responsible.

Where, in the case of a winding-up in England, an order for payment of money is made under these provisions, the order is to be deemed to be a final judgment within the meaning of paragraph (g) of sub-section (1) of section 4 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

So much of these provisions as refer to promoters, and to property of a company other than money, do not apply to a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland (h).

This section does not give any new cause of action, except, perhaps, for interest (i), it simply gives a summary remedy against the persons named in the section, where the company would apart from the section have been entitled to bring an action (k). It has been said that it does not apply in cases where there has been nonfeasance as opposed to misfeasance (l), but this appears to mean nonfeasance which does not amount to a breach of trust (m), and so limited it would seem that in all cases where the company would be entitled to bring an action, an application under the section can be made, provided that the person against whom the application is made comes within the category of persons mentioned in the section (n).

(g) See Perjury Act, 1911, s. 1, which would appear on this point but to re-enact the repealed s. 218, of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

There are, however, exceptions to the rule above set out that an application can only successfully be made under the section where an action could have been brought by the company, for proceedings can be taken under the section where the liquidator has higher rights than the company itself had before winding-up, such are cases of fraudulent preference and of dispositions pending a petition for winding-up, and there may also be other cases, where fresh and independent rights are given to the liquidator by the Act, it is thought, however, that even in these cases the liquidator could usually sue in the name of the company, and that in most of the cases (o) under section 215 of the Act where remarks are to be found on the liquidator having fresh and independent rights, it will be found that the rights sought to be enforced were, after all, rights the company itself could have enforced (p). The fact that an application involves difficult questions of fact or law is no reason why the Court should decline to deal with it under the section (q), though, no doubt, the Court has a discretion as to whether it will make an order under the section, and it has, for instance, refused to make one where the contributories who were the only persons interested were practically unanimous in not desiring it (r), and the Court will not, it would seem, having regard to section 193 of the Act, make an order in a voluntary winding-up, unless it is satisfied that so to do is just and beneficial (s) ; but it may be doubted whether the Court would now decline to make an order under the section while encouraging and helping the applicant to start an action, as was done in Bank of Gibraltar and Malta (t). The section does not, however, apply to cases where mere nominal damages could be recovered in an action, as it is aimed not at misfeasance in the abstract, but at misfeasance followed by damage (u). Further, the section cannot be called in aid where it sought to enforce not a right of the company, but the right of a private individual, whether he is a creditor or contributory (x).

Of course there are cases which have already been considered (see, e.g., supra, pp. 233 and 234, and pp. 997 et seq.) where a liquidator will have higher rights against a contributory in his character of contributory than the company had.

Proceedings under the section can be brought not only against directors, but also against de facto directors (y).

It is thought that the section in speaking of a person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of a company means exactly the same thing as if it had spoken of a promoter, and does not include solicitors and others who, if they have not acted otherwise than in their professional capacity, are not promoters (z).

The question who is an officer of a company is one which has occasioned more difficulty. A solicitor employed on the usual terms of charging for the work he does will not be an officer (a); but a solicitor employed for a fixed time, and with a fixed salary, or, indeed, it is thought, with a general retainer of any sort, will be an officer (b). An auditor, like a solicitor, may or may not be an officer of a company. An auditor employed and remunerated under section 112 of the Act, will, it is thought, always be an officer (c), but an auditor called in to do one or more special pieces of work and paid by the job, will not be an officer (d).

The bankers of a company will very rarely, if ever, be officers of the company (e).

De facto officers are within the section, but the fact that an auditor or solicitor may be an officer of a company will not necessarily make a person who has acted as solicitor or auditor an officer, even though the articles or the Act contain provisions as to solicitors or auditors, which would make the solicitors or auditors of the company officers if duly appointed (f). The secretary of a company has been held liable as an officer of the company for moneys given to his private clerk with his knowledge and consent, and to a certain extent by his direction (g).

The personal representatives of a director or other person liable under the section, are not liable under the section, and if any relief is sought against them it must be obtained in an action (h). The official receiver or the liquidator or any creditor or contributory may apply under the section. The official receiver should, when there is a question as to whether he should or should not take proceedings, take the opinion of the Court, for the matter is of a judicial and not of a departmental nature (i).

A policy-holder will be a creditor who can apply under the section (k), but the Court will not make an order on the application of a fully paid shareholder, or, it is thought, of any other person, where it is clear that such person will not be entitled to participate in any money or other property which may be recovered (l). A contributory who has become bankrupt cannot, even though his name is still on the list of contributories, apply under the section, for he has ceased to be a contributory (m), and the solicitors of a person to whom the company has been ordered to pay costs cannot apply under the section (n).

Claims under this section can be sold or mortgaged (o), and where they have been sold or the company has no interest in the equity of redemption the liquidator will not be entitled to proceed under the section without the consent of the purchaser or the mortgagee (p). Except in the case of a perfectly solvent company, Vaughan Williams, J., would usually not sanction a scheme of arrangement unless the new company undertook to obey the order of the Court as to any proceedings which the Court might think it right to have taken against officers of the old company (q). But this is not the practice now (qq). Where misfeasance claims were reserved to the liquidator, and the purchasing company opposed an application for leave to proceed with such claims, the same Judge, being satisfied that there was no desire to screen any one, dismissed the summons (r). He would not allow a liquidator to lend his name for proceedings unless the liquidator was satisfied that proceedings should be taken or was acting on the decision of the committee of inspection (s). will arise on an application under this section till an order for payment has been made, and the assignee of a debt due by the company to a person who is liable to the company under the section will, if the assignment took place before the order to pay, take a clean title to the debt (t).

An application under section 215 of the Act must in any Court other than the High Court be made by motion to the Court (u). In the High Court the application must be made by a summons returnable in the first instance in Chambers (x). Such summons must state the nature of the declaration or order for which application is made, and the grounds of the application, and, unless otherwise ordered by the Court, must be served, in the manner in which an originating summons is required by the Rules of the Supreme Court to be served, on every person against whom an order is sought, not less than eight days before the day named in the summons for hearing the application. Where the application is made by the official receiver or liquidator he may make a report to the Court stating any facts and information on which he proceeds which are verified by affidavit or derived from sworn evidence in the proceedings. Where the application is made by any other person it must be supported by affidavit to be filed by him.

On the return of the summons the Court may give such directions as it thinks fit for the hearing of the summons before the Judge in Court, the taking of evidence wholly or in part by affidavit or orally, and the cross-examination either before the Judge on the hearing in Court or in Chambers of any deponents to affidavits in support of or in opposition to the application (y).

Where the application is made by motion, notice of the intended motion must be served on every person against whom an order is sought, not less than eight days before the day named in the notice for hearing the motion. A copy of every report and affidavit intended to be used in support of the motion must be served on every person to whom notice of motion is given not less than four days before the hearing of the motion (z).

The summons must state distinctly the grounds upon which it is said that the respondent ought to be ordered to pay the money claimed, and why the payments which it is sought to impeach are wrongful or acts of misfeasance for which the directors are responsible (a). Claims for misfeasance and for a declaration that the respondents are liable as contributories can be joined in one summons where such a course is not embarrassing (b).

The summons has, except where substituted service is ordered, to be served personally, this being the practice in the case of an originating summons, and it must therefore be served as nearly as may be in the manner prescribed by the Rules of the Supreme Court for the personal service of a writ of summons (c). It would seem that leave may now be obtained for serving it out of the jurisdiction (d). The practice nowadays is for the cross-examination to take place in open Court on the hearing of the summons, though it is on rare occasions taken before the Registrar (e). Not infrequently an order is obtained giving the parties leave to adduce oral evidence (ee), but on an appeal the Court of Appeal will be very slow to allow a party to adduce further evidence, as he will have seen what is the weak spot in his case (f).

Where in the course of the proceedings in a winding-up by the Court an order has been made for the public examination of persons named in the order pursuant to section 175 of the Act, and it appears from the examination that the persons examined, or some of them, have misapplied, or retained, or become liable, or accountable for moneys or property of the company, or been guilty of misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, then in any proceedings subsequently instituted under section 215 of the Act, for the purpose of examining into the conduct of such persons, or any of them, and compelling repayment or restoration to the company of any moneys or property, or contribution by way of compensation to the assets of the company by such persons or any of them, the verified notes of the examination of each person who was examined under the order will, subject as hereinafter mentioned, and to any order or directions of the Court as to the manner and extent in and to which the notes are to be used, and subject to all just exceptions to the admissibility in evidence against any particular person or persons of any of the statements contained in the notes of the examinations, be admissible in evidence against any of the persons against whom the application is made who, under section 175 of the said Act, and the order for the public examination, was or had the opportunity of being present at and taking part in the examination. Before any such notes of a public examination are used on any such application, the person intending to use the same must, not less than fifteen days before the day appointed for hearing the application, give notice of such intention to each person against whom it is intended to use such notes, or any of them, specifying the notes or parts of the notes which it is intended to read against him, and furnish him with copies of such notes, or parts of notes (except notes of the person's own depositions), and every person against whom the application is made is at liberty to cross-examine or re-examine (as the case may be) any person the notes of whose examination are read, in all respects as if such person had made an affidavit on the application (g).

It has been argued that this rule is ultra vires, but it has been held not to be; by it, notes of a public examination are merely treated as an affidavit, and the deponent must be produced for examination if required (h).

On applications under the section it is not competent for the respondent to avail himself of any set-off (i), and he cannot avail himself of the third party procedure (k), he can, however, avail himself of the Statute of Limitations (l), and, even apart from any Statute of Limitations, if the liquidator has made a long delay in taking proceedings, such delay may in some cases be a defence to the respondent, if he has been injured by the delay (m), but not, it is thought, otherwise (n). A summons may be taken out against any person liable or alleged to be liable, even where there are others who are not parties, equally liable with the person summoned (o).

Where misfeasance proceedings are taken against a person, it is open for him, without going into the facts, to take out a summons asking that the misfeasance proceedings against him may be stayed on the ground that he is not an officer or other person against whom such proceedings can be taken under the section (p), and a similar application has been successful where the liquidator had sold all interest in the property claimed by the misfeasance proceedings (q). Such an application would seem to resemble a demurrer, and should, it is thought, only be made where the misfeasance summons and the affidavits, etc., in support of it do not show a cause of action, and no affidavit should be filed in support of the summons to stay.

With regard to the interest ordered to be paid under the section. In the case of fraud, interest will usually be given at 5 per cent. per annum from the date of the fraudulent action (r), though in Archer's Case (s), interest was only given from the date of the summons. Where persons have honestly, though wrongfully, distributed property of the company, interest will only be given at 4 per cent. per annum (t). The Court, however, has a wide discretion, and in Gluckstein v. Barnes (u), the Court of Appeal gave interest at 3 per cent. per annum. Income-tax cannot be deducted from the interest so payable (r). The Court will usually not charge interest on the rents, profits or income of property recovered (x). In an Irish case (y) the respondent was ordered to pay the costs of a misfeasance summons, even though he had restored the moneys misapplied.

A liquidator cannot be ordered to give security for the costs of a misfeasance summons, but in a proper case the Court will order him to pay the costs personally (z). A liquidator can usually not be required to make an affidavit of documents, but a respondent to a misfeasance summons should apply to the liquidator to let him see such documents as he requires for the purposes of his case (a).

Hitherto where the facts were complicated a misfeasance summons was almost always more favourable to the respondent than an action would have been. Apart from the difficulty of setting out the applicant's case clearly and forcibly on a summons, the respondent had a far wider range for his defence than if he were tied down by a defence in an action. On the other hand a person applying for leave to bring an action, where misfeasance proceedings could be brought, was faced with the following points, namely: (1) in such an action security for costs will usually be ordered under section 278 of the Act; and (2) the defendant to the action may have some set-off of which he could avail himself in the action. As has already been shown, on a misfeasance summons there can neither be set-off nor as against a liquidator an order for security for costs (aa). In A. Carter and Co. (aaa), however, NEVILLE, J., stated that in future where the facts were complicated he would require points of claims and points of defence to be delivered on a misfeasance summons.

(aa) If the winding-up is in a county court, questions of jurisdiction will usually arise if an action is brought.

(aaa) 00213 of 1910, March 14th, 1912.

If proceedings in bankruptcy are taken on an order on misfeasance proceedings, the bankruptcy notice and petition should be headed ex parte the company, and not ex parte the liquidator, so as to allow any counterclaim, set-off, or cross-claim which the debtor may have against the company to be set up. The costs of an unsuccessful appeal from a misfeasance order should not be included in the same bankruptcy notice as the sum directed to be paid by such order (b). Moneys payable under an order based on breach of trust or under an order for an account can be proved for in bankruptcy, and a discharge will release the bankrupt, except in the case of a fraudulent breach of trust; if the order is for unliquidated damage for tort there can be no proof and no release (bb). It is not necessary to obtain leave to appeal from an order on a misfeasance summons (c).

PROSECUTION OF DIRECTORS AND OTHERS.

If it appears to the Court in the course of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in the winding-up, or of its own motion, direct the liquidator to prosecute for the offence, and may order the costs and expenses to be paid out of the assets of the company.

If it appears to the liquidator in the course of a voluntary winding-up that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the liquidator, with the previous sanction of the Court, may prosecute the offender, and all expenses properly incurred by him in the prosecution will be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other liabilities (t).

Proceedings under this section may in the High Court be taken by summons (u), but the summons will be adjourned into Court, and should not be heard in Chambers; creditors and others interested will be allowed to appear, but, except, of course, where they are the applicants, will not be allowed to file evidence or to argue that there is not a primâ facie case for a prosecution; they are there to show that even if there is a primâ facie case for a prosecution, the company's assets should not be applied in conducting it (x).

The application can be made by the liquidator (y), or by a creditor (z), or a contributory, or by the Court on its own motion. The summons will be ex parte (a), but the Court will sometimes direct notice of the application to be given to creditors and others interested (b).

The offences for which prosecution at the expense of the company will usually be sought are offences under sections 81, 82, 83, and 84 of the Larceny Act, 1861, and under sections 216 and 281 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and section 5 of the Perjury Act, 1911.

The Larceny Act, 1861, provides (section 81) that—

Whosoever being a director member or public officer of any body corporate or public company shall fraudulently take or apply for his own use or benefit or for any use or purposes other than the use or purposes of such body corporate or public company any of the property of such body corporate or public company shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and being convicted thereof shall be liable at the discretion of the Court to any of the punishments which the Court may award as hereinbefore last mentioned (c).

And (section 84) that—

(i) Offences under this section may be prosecuted under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts. In Scotland most prosecutions under the section must be at the instance of the Lord Advocate or a procurator fiscal, as the Lord Advocate directs: Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 276 (1); and as prosecutions in Scotland: ibid. (2).

would otherwise have in the market, this being a fraud on the public and an indictable offence (k). And the case of persons agreeing or conspiring together to cheat the public by leading them to believe that shares have a value which the conspirators know they have not, and thus inducing them to become purchasers (l).

For the Court to direct a prosecution at the expense of the assets under section 217, there must in the first place be evidence sufficient to satisfy it that there is a primâ facie case against the person to be prosecuted (m). On this point the Court itself must be satisfied, it will not act on the opinion of the liquidator (n), and will, it would seem, pay but little attention to the fact that the law officers of the Crown have advised that the Crown should not institute a prosecution (m).

Once there is a primâ facie case made out the Court will have to consider whether the expense of the prosecution should be thrown on the assets of the company. It would seem that on this point the dominant consideration for the guidance of the Court in its discretion is whether or not a good citizen in the discharge of his duty to the State would think that he ought to prosecute and bear the expense (o). It would seem, however, that on this point the Court will take into consideration the views of the creditors or other persons who have to bear the expense of the prosecution (p). In considering the case of London and Globe Finance Corporation (q), it must be borne in mind that only one creditor, a large one, it is true, opposed the application, while a substantial majority of the creditors who expressed any view supported it, that it was calculated that the dividend creditors would get would only be diminished by a halfpenny in the pound, and that all the members of the committee of inspection who could be got at except one, who was the broker of the person to be prosecuted, were taken to be in favour of the application.

The Court has in one case (r) declined to make an order where all the creditors were paid, and the only asset of the company consisted of uncalled capital. It is thought, however, that in a proper case the Court would direct a prosecution at the expense of the company, in spite of the existence of circumstances of this nature.

FRAUDULENT PREFERENCE.

The effect of section 207 of the Act, which applies the rules of bankruptcy to the winding-up of insolvent companies, is not to enlarge the assets of the company, by introducing into winding-up bankruptcy rules made for the purpose of enlarging the assets of a bankrupt (s), so neither the bankruptcy rules as to reputed ownership (t), nor section 11 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, which deprives an execution creditor of his execution under certain circumstances (u), nor the provisions in the Bankruptcy Acts giving a landlord priority for six months' rent (x) applies in a winding-up. The Deeds of Arrangement Acts are also not applicable to companies (y). The provisions of the Bankruptcy Acts as to fraudulent preference are, however, expressly applicable to windings-up.

Any conveyance, mortgage, delivery of goods, payment, execution, or other act relating to property which would if made or done by or against an individual, be deemed in his bankruptcy a fraudulent preference, will, if made or done by or against a company, be deemed, in the event of its being wound-up, a fraudulent preference of its creditors, and be invalid accordingly.

For the purposes of this provision the presentation of a petition for winding-up, in the case of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, and a resolution for winding-up in the case of a voluntary winding-up, will be deemed to correspond with the act of bankruptcy in the case of an individual.

Any conveyance or assignment by a company of all its property to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors will be void to all intents (z).

Where a voluntary winding-up is superseded by a compulsory or even a supervision order, though, in the latter case, the resolution for winding-up will be the commencement of the winding-up, it is the order and not the resolutions for winding-up which corresponds with the act of Bankruptcy (a). The rules applicable are the rules of bankruptcy for the time being (b).

The provisions as to what will amount to an act of fraudulent preference are contained in section 48 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1883. They are as follows :—

(1) Every conveyance or transfer of property or charge thereon made every payment made every obligation incurred and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor or any person in trust for any creditor with a view of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors shall if the person making taking paying or suffering the same is adjudged bankrupt on a bankruptcy petition presented within three months after the date of making taking paying or suffering the same be deemed fraudulent and void as against the trustee in bankruptcy.

(2) This section shall not affect the rights of any person making title in good faith and for valuable consideration through or under a creditor of the bankrupt.

There are cases where the doctrine of fraudulent preference will be carried further in a winding-up than in a bankruptcy. Thus, a set-off within three months of bankruptcy does not amount to a fraudulent preference, but as the mutual credit clauses of the Bankruptcy Act do not apply to a set-off against calls in a winding-up, such a set-off within three months of winding-up may amount to a fraudulent preference (c).

Under the section the conveyance, etc., impeached must be to a creditor which does not include a withdrawing member of an industrial and provident society (d), but does, it is thought, include a surety who has paid nothing in respect of his suretyship (e), and a cestui que trust who has claims against his trustee (f). Moreover, the particular creditor whom it is intended to prefer must be the one to whom such conveyance, etc., has been made, and so a payment to a creditor with the intention of preferring his surety will not be within the section, and cannot be recovered from either surety or creditor (g).

Again, the money or property sought to be recovered, must be money or property which apart from the transaction would be part of the general assets of the company, there can be therefore no fraudulent preference when money held by or paid to the company for a particular purpose or clothed with a special trust, is paid away for such purpose or in accordance with such trust (h).

The better view would seem to be that a liquidator or other person seeking to set aside a transaction on the ground of fraudulent preference must show something more than that at the time of such transaction the company was and knew itself to be insolvent (i), but no doubt in many cases the transaction itself will be sufficiently suspicious when coupled with the above facts to shift the onus of proof.

Once it is established that a company is unable to pay its debts as they become due, and a company may apparently be this where it has assets which are sufficient for this purpose but which cannot be readily realized (k), and that there has been a payment, etc., out of the general assets of the company to a creditor, within the three months, then the question remains what was the view of the debtor in making such payment?

The word "preference" would seem to show that the act must be one which is done without any consideration (l), but where the Court finds as a fact that the motives of the debtor are mixed, it will have to ascertain what was his dominant motive (m). So payment under pressure, as where the debtor has been threatened with what will happen if he does not pay (n), or, where there has been no threat, where the debtor is afraid, e.g., of being prosecuted (o), will be enough to take the payment out of the section, unless it can be shown that the debtor did not mind the threat or was not intimidated (p). Again, the fact that a debt was paid as it became due and in the ordinary course of business, will primâ facie take it out of the fraudulent preference provisions (q). The more especially is this so if the transaction is one of meeting bills as they become due, for failure to meet them, more than failure to meet any other debt, would mean, as the debtor must know, that he could no longer carry on his business (r). Primâ facie, too, a presumption of fraudulent preference will be rebutted if it be shown that a payment was made or security given in pursuance of a contract made previously (s); but this will not be the case where there is a contract to give security when asked for, and security is asked for just before the winding-up, there the presumption will be that the security was held over to save the debtor's credit (t), and this will be especially so in the case of debentures where an agreement to issue the security immediately would require registration (u), such an agreement will strengthen a presumption of fraudulent preference. Where a payment is made because the debtor thinks however erroneously that he is legally bound to make it, that will take the payment out of the section (x). The fact that a debtor has made a payment to satisfy his own conscience will usually not take it out of the section (y), though perhaps a more favourable view will be taken where the payment is to make good a breach of trust (z). Where a debt which is not due is paid (a), or where a debt which is due is set off against cross demands which are not due, and the persons benefited are directors (b), who, it has been said, cannot exercise pressure on a company unless they resign first (c), there will be a likelihood of a case of fraudulent preference being made out. The fact that the creditor has not asked for payment will help in establishing a case (d), but a case can in some cases be made where there have been not merely demands, but threats of proceedings (e). It must, however, be borne in mind that when all is said and done the cases above-mentioned are only illustrative, and the real question is one of fact, viz. what was the debtor's intention in making the payment? (f).

Where an act is declared to be a fraudulent preference it would seem to be void ab initio, and therefore will not prevent the person preferred setting up any title he may have got to the property between the date of the preference and that of the order (g). The fraudulent preference provisions are for the benefit of the general creditors and of the winding-up, and so cannot be put into force at the instance of an outside creditor, such as a debenture-holder (h).

Questions of fraudulent preference may be raised by an action in the name of the company (i), or on misfeasance summons, always assuming that the person against whom the summons is taken out is a person liable under section 215 of the Act (k), they may also be raised by summons or motion in the winding-up (l), and such questions have been raised by summons in a debenture-holder's action (m). It would seem that proceedings can be taken either against the person preferred (l), or under the misfeasance section against the directors or others responsible for giving the preference (k). In the latter case presumably such persons will only be liable for the damage the company has suffered which would usually be the difference between the sum paid or the value of the security or property given and the dividend the person preferred would be entitled to in the winding-up (n).

THIS COURT DOTH DECLARE that the creation and issue to the Respondent the said W.J. by the above-named Company of a Debenture (Numbered 1) for £3600 and interest and dated the 15th December 1905 are an undue and fraudulent preference of the said W.J. over the other Creditors of the said Company under Section 164 of The Companies Act 1862 and that the said Debenture is invalid accordingly.

CHAPTER XII.

CONTRIBUTORIES.

THE LIST OF CONTRIBUTORIES.

THE term "contributory" means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of its being wound-up, and in all proceedings for determining and in all proceedings prior to the final determination of the persons who are to be deemed contributories, it includes any person alleged to be a contributory (a).

The expression "contributories" includes, as already stated, fully paid shareholders (b), but they will not be settled on the list if they disclaim all interest (c).

As soon as may be after making a winding-up order, the Court must settle a list of contributories, with power to rectify the register of members in all cases where rectification is required in pursuance of the Act, and must cause the assets of the company to be collected, and applied in discharge of its liabilities.

In settling the list of contributories, the Court must distinguish between persons who are contributories in their own right and persons who are contributories as being representatives of or liable to the debts of others (d).

General rules may be and, as will be seen below, have been made by the Lord Chancellor with the concurrence of the President of the Board of Trade (e) for enabling or requiring all or any of the powers conferred and imposed on the Court in England by the Act in respect of settling the list of contributories and rectifying the register of members where required and collecting and applying the assets, but a liquidator may not without the special leave of the Court rectify the register of members (f).

(e) Ibid., s. 237 (1). These general rules must be laid before Parliament within three weeks after they are made, if it is then sitting, and if not, within three weeks after the next session of Parliament; they will be judicially noticed and have the same effect as if enacted by the Act: Ibid., s. 237 (2). And see Institute of Patent Agents v. Lockwood, [1894] A. C. 347, as to the validity of such rules.

(f) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 173. For orders rectifying the test register and of varying the contributories, see post, pp. 1098 et seq.

The liquidator (g) must with all convenient speed after his appointment settle a list of contributories of the company, and must appoint a time and place for that purpose. The list of contributories must contain a statement of the address of, and the number of shares or extent of interest to be attributed to each contributory, and must distinguish the several classes of contributories. As regards representative contributories, the liquidator must, so far as practicable, observe the requirements of section 163 (2) of the Act (h).

There will usually be two lists of contributories, the "A" list, and the "B" list. The former consisting of the persons who are primarily liable, i.e. the members at the date of the commencement of the winding-up, the latter consisting of the past members of the company who are liable.

It is usual to settle the "A" list of contributories in the first instance, as this may be all that is necessary, and in that event the trouble and expense of settling the "B" list will not have to be incurred (i); but if for any reason this is undesirable, it would seem that the two lists may be settled simultaneously (k).

Where shares have been transferred several times within a year before the commencement of a winding-up, all the persons who have transferred within that period will be liable as past members (l), and though each of them will be liable to indemnify the person who has transferred to him (m), they will all go on to the "B" list, and the Court will not make a "C" list for the earlier transferors (n).

The liquidator must give notice in writing of the time and place appointed for the settlement of the list of contributories to every person whom he proposes to include in the list, and must state in the notice to each person in what character and for what number of shares or interest he proposes to include such person in the list (o).

On the day appointed for settlement of the list of contributories, the liquidator must hear any person who objects to being settled as a contributory, and, after such hearing, must finally settle the list, which, when so settled, will be the list of contributories of the company (p).

The liquidator must forthwith give notice to every person whom he has finally placed on the list of contributories, stating in what character and for what number of shares or interest he has been placed on the list, and in the notice inform such person that any application for the removal of his name from the list, or for a variation of the list, must be made to the Court by summons within twenty-one days from the date of the service on the contributory or alleged contributory of notice of the fact that his name is settled on the list of contributories (q).

Subject to the power of the Court to extend the time or to allow an application to be made notwithstanding the expiration of the time limited for that purpose, no application to the Court by any person who objects to the list of contributories as finally settled by the liquidator will be entertained after the expiration of twenty-one days from the date of the service on such person of notice of the settlement of the list.

The official receiver will not in any case be personally liable to pay any costs of or in relation to an application to set aside or vary his act or decision settling the name of a person on the list of contributories of a company (r).

The liquidator may from time to time vary or add to the list of contributories, but any such variation or addition must be made in the same manner in all respects as the settlement of the original list (s). An appeal will lie to the Court of Appeal without leave on any decision determining the liability of any contributory (t).

Until the register of a company is rectified the liquidator is bound to enter the name of every person who is on its register of members at the date of the winding-up on the "A" list of contributories (e). The representatives of deceased or bankrupt members being entered and distinguished as representative members (f).

The powers of rectifying the register conferred by section 32 of the Act are, however, kept alive during a winding-up, and this, not merely by virtue of section 163 for the purposes of the winding-up and of settling the list of contributories, but also for all purposes (g).

Rectification under section 32 may take place if (a) the name of any person is without sufficient cause entered in or omitted from the register of members of a company; or (b) default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member. The books and papers of the company and of the liquidators are where the company is in liquidation as between the contributories primâ facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded (h), and a person who is admittedly a contributory for some shares will often be in a more difficult position than he would otherwise have been when trying to repudiate other shares (i).

The cases as to who are and who are not contributories may be grouped under four heads—

I. The cases where a person has or is alleged to have agreed with the company to become a member in respect of certain shares, and there is no entry on the register in respect of such shares.

II. The cases where a person's name has been entered on the register as the holder of certain shares and he either has not or is alleged not to have agreed to take such shares.

III. The cases where a person has been a member and either has or is alleged to have ceased to be a member and his name does not appear on the register at the date of the winding-up.

IV. The cases where a person has been a member and his name is on the register at the date of the winding-up, but it is alleged that he had got rid of his shares before that date and that his name ought not to have appeared on the register then.

Persons not on the Register.

I. If a person has agreed to become a member but his name has not been entered on the register of members, then the register will have to be rectified, and his name inserted on the list of contributories, if he has signed the memorandum of association for the shares he has agreed to take, and, it is thought, also in other cases, unless there is some special equitable reason why the contract which is still in fieri should not be performed. It may here be mentioned that a person whose name is for any reason not on the register will not be precluded by cases like Oakes v. Turquand (k) from raising any equitable defence he may have (e.g. that he has been induced to take his shares by fraud) so as to avoid being put on the list of contributories (l).

(h) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 220.

(i) See Ex parte Kennedy (1890), 44 C. D. 472. The section is not, however, brought into play by the mere fact of a person's name being on the register: Fox's Case (1863), 3 De G. J. & S. 465, at p. 468.

Turning first of all to the subscribers to the memorandum. The effect of the Act is that they do not merely agree to take but actually do take the shares allotted to them (m). The fact that their names have not been put on the register and that for a long period of years they have not been treated as shareholders is quite immaterial (n), except, perhaps, where the company has allotted the whole of its share capital to other persons (o), but where a company has allotted the whole of the first issue of its share capital (p), and such first issue does not exhaust its share capital or where the company has increased its share capital and by means of such increased capital has sufficient shares (q), there the signatories will be liable for the shares they have signed for. Where a signatory to the memorandum has applied for a larger number of shares than he has signed the memorandum for, such application will primâ facie be taken to include the shares he has signed for (r), though, no doubt, if a contrary intention were shown, he would be liable for both the shares applied for and those signed for, and allotment to a firm in the firm's name has been held to relieve one of the partners from his liability as a contributory (s). Further, where a person has signed for a particular class of shares he may satisfy his liability by accepting the allotment of other shares of at least equal value (t), but, of course, in this case he would have to prove that the allotment was intended to satisfy his original liability.

Now that the difficulty caused by section 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, is out of the way (u), a company can, no doubt, arrange that a signatory shall pay for the shares he has subscribed for in kind and not in cash (x) ; but the mere fact that a person has signed for a certain number of shares, and has subsequently agreed to sell property for that number of fully paid shares will not be enough to relieve him from his liability for the shares he has signed for, even if that has throughout been the intention of the parties, unless either the memorandum or the articles or the agreement or some other contemporaneous document makes it clear that one and the same set of shares are referred to in each transaction (y), and even that would apparently not be enough where the liability to the persons entitled to the fully paid shares is a joint one (z). These remarks do not, however, apply in cases where the liability to persons to whom fully paid shares have been or have been agreed to be allotted would support a plea of payment in cash (a). Where shares have been allotted to a person in consideration of services rendered, this will not primâ facie satisfy his liability as a subscriber (b). Moreover, where the vendor of a property has agreed to give fully paid shares which form part of the purchase money to a subscriber, this will not satisfy the latter's obligation to pay for the shares he has subscribed for, for his contract as subscriber is with the company (c). A provision in the articles that all the shares subscribed for shall be allotted as fully paid up is, of course, wholly bad (d). In one case (e), where a subscriber subscribed for a certain number of ordinary shares, and a certain number of fully paid shares, it was held that he was not liable for the latter shares, though he probably would have been had he subscribed for them only; Lord Justice Buckley says in his book (f) that this case "is to the author not intelligible," and it certainly would not be followed.

In Snell's Case (g) it was held that subscribers could be released from liability where there was an express power in the articles to accept surrenders, but this case was not followed where the transaction was considered to be really a bargain and sale and the power of surrender was considered to be part of the power to forfeit (h), or where there was no power to accept surrenders, and the directors simply decided not to allot (i), or where the directors cancelled the shares of some of the subscribers, although they had no power to cancel shares, and did not purport to act under and could not bonâ fide have exercised their power to forfeit shares for non-payment of calls (k). It is very doubtful whether Snell's Case (l) is consistent with either Trevor and Whitworth (m) or Bellerby v. Rowland (n). In one case (o) a man subscribed for shares, and, on becoming dissatisfied, demanded to be allowed to resign, whereupon the secretary of the company told him that he had found a man who would take his shares. Shares to that amount were actually allotted to the man so found, but the company kept no register, and there was nothing to identify the two sets of shares or to show that the parties had come together, and it was held that the Court would not, as in Nicol's, Tufnell's, and Ponsonby's Cases (p), imply an equitable transfer from the subscriber to the allottee. It is submitted that it might well have done so.

It has been suggested that a person who signs a copy of the memorandum, but not the registered copy, will be liable as a signatory (q); but this suggestion, which depended on a case (r) decided on very special provisions in the Act of 1856, seems wrong, as these provisions do not occur in the later Acts, but it may be that the fact of having signed such a document would be evidence of an agreement to take the shares.

The question remains as to whether a subscriber is liable where the memorandum has been altered without his knowledge after he has signed, but before it was registered. It is thought in such case that if the alteration be at all material he will not be liable (s), though if he allows his name to be put on the register and acts as a shareholder he will, no doubt, be liable on a subsequent implied contract (t), it being his duty to acquaint himself with the contents of the memorandum. Persons, however, who have signed while the document was in the state in which it was ultimately registered, cannot escape from liability merely because the document was in a different state when other persons who signed either before or after them, signed it (u).

Turning to the case of persons who are not subscribers to the memorandum, but who have agreed to take shares, it is thought that in the absence of anything very special the liquidator can have the register of the company rectified so as to include the names of such persons, even though their names were not on the register while the company was a going concern (x). Where a company has a contract with a person not on the register that he would be able to repudiate, if the company were a going concern, e.g. a contract to issue fully paid shares where the company can only issue unpaid shares, such person's name will not be put on the list (y). It was suggested in Nicol's, Tufnell's, and Ponsonby's Cases (z) that mere delay might preclude a liquidator from altering the register in such cases, but the point did not really arise, as all the shares of the company had been issued under subsequent arrangements made with the concurrence of all parties, and it was held that the transaction amounted to an equitable transfer of what was after all only an equitable right to shares. In spite of these cases, it is not thought that delay by the company can preclude the right of the liquidator to have the names of persons who have definitely agreed to take shares put on the register, for the company could not release them (a), and as there can be no question of estoppel, where all parties know the facts, it is difficult to see how the company can by its omissions effect a thing which it could not have done by any positive act (b). Even directors who have applied for their qualification shares will not be liable where there has been no allotment and all the shares of the company have been issued (c). Of course, in many of these cases there will be no notice of allotment, and there will therefore be no contract (d), and probably the Court will be slower to infer a concluded contract in the cases now under consideration than in cases where the name is on the register (e). Many of the cases as to director's qualification shares, and as to the liability of underwriters, come under this head (f).

Where the contract is that the allottee's name is not to go on the register, there he cannot be made a contributory (g). A liquidator cannot put directors on the list of contributories merely because of a statement in a prospectus to which they were privy, that they had agreed to take shares (h).

PERSONS ON THE REGISTER.

Turning to II., the cases where a person's name has been entered on the register (i) as the holder of certain shares and he either has not or is alleged to have not agreed to take such shares.

It is unnecessary here to consider the cases where a person has been induced to take shares by a fraudulent prospectus, or has otherwise entered into a voidable contract. In such cases the winding-up will in practically all cases, except the case mentioned in section 86 of the Act, preclude the right to relief (k). Moreover, the case of Oakes v. Turquand (k), and other cases that have followed it, go even further than this; not only do they preclude relief in ordinary misrepresentation cases, but also in cases where shares have been issued under an irregular resolution (e.g. for increasing capital) which has not been contested while the company was a going concern (l), or where a man has taken shares subject to a condition subsequent which the company either has not fulfilled or cannot fulfil, even though the register states that the allotment has been made conditionally (m). The fact that a shareholder has with his own consent become a full legal shareholder by registration of his shares will almost, if not quite, invariably be fatal to any claim that he may set up to have his name taken off the register on the ground of some agreement made at the time of application for shares (n), for this fact will be the strongest possible evidence that such agreement was merely a collateral agreement or a condition subsequent, and not a condition precedent to the taking of the shares (o). This point seems to be the real and only distinction between Shackleford's Case (p) and Pellat's Case (q) on the one hand, and Elkington's Case (r) on the other. In all these cases there had been agreements to take shares and to pay for them by goods to be supplied, and the company had not accepted the goods.

In the first of these cases nothing had been done by the applicant except making an application for shares which set out the terms of the agreement, and he received no notice of the allotment, in the second it was the same except that the allottee paid a deposit pursuant to his agreement, but in the last case the allottee not only paid a deposit and a call, but received notice of allotment and his share certificates, and it was held that he knew of the fact of his name being on the register, and consequently was liable. In the other two cases the allottees escaped. In Wood's Case (s) the agreement was similar to those above, but the application was expressly made subject to the condition, and the allottee on getting a common form letter of allotment, asked for an undertaking as to the goods before paying a deposit; the deposit was never paid, and, after some correspondence, no definite terms were come to on this point. The allottee was not liable though on the register.

In another case (t) a person who applied for shares, in an unlimited company, "if limited," received an allotment letter, and, at his own request, certificates, and it was held that he was liable, as he remained on the register without protest though the name of the company as appearing on the documents he received must have shown him that the company was unlimited, and so could only issue unlimited shares. It would seem, moreover, that agreements to issue shares at a discount will, where the person to whom the shares are to be issued is and knows he is on the register, come within the class of cases (u); but where stock has been illegally issued by way of bonus or as partly paid, it has been held that the allottee was not liable as a contributory (x). Where the illegal condition was a condition subsequent, a person who signed a deed of settlement for a certain number of shares, which he proposed should be included in the shares he was to receive as fully paid under an agreement which was avoided by the liquidator, was treated like a subscriber to the memorandum, and held liable for the shares for which he had signed (y). And in another case (z) a person whose shares were to be and had been paid for in kind and not in cash was liable to pay for his shares in cash owing to (the now repealed) section 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, not having been complied with, and could not after winding-up get relief from his contract.

From this class of cases must be distinguished the cases where a vendor or promoter or other person entitled to fully paid shares has agreed to give some of such shares, however improperly, to a director or other person. In such cases the donee of the shares may be liable to misfeasance proceedings, but he will not be liable for unpaid shares as a contributory (a). It is thought that De Ruvigne's Case (b) is also an example of this latter class of cases, for though James, L.J. (at pp. 321 and 322), speaks of the agreement, under which the donor was to get the shares he was to give as ultra vires, he seems to mean simply ultra vires the directors in the sense of being a fraud on their powers.

Again, a company may be estopped, even against an allottee of shares, from claiming payment (c). Such was the cases where a person had paid the vendor for shares to which the vendor became entitled, but which, owing to non-registration of the contract, were not paid for under section 25 of the Act of 1867, though, apparently, it would have been otherwise if the person making the payment had known that he was to have vendor's shares (d).

A mortgagee who has agreed to lend a company money on the security of fully paid shares, will not be liable as a contributory where he has received certificates for fully paid shares and has lent

(x) Home and Foreign Investment and Agency Co., [1912] 2 Ch. 72. It was considered doubtful whether the allottee could recover back moneys paid in respect of the stock, though it is difficult to see why not, if the decision is right. This matter was, however, not pressed, the more especially as the Statute of Limitations probably barred any such rights.

his money or forborne to call it in, owing to reliance on the certificates. Even after winding-up he can get his name removed from the register, and the list of contributories (e). It would seem that such a person is in a more favourable position than a person who has applied for and received an allotment of shares, for the latter would, it is thought, be on his inquiry to ascertain how the shares had been paid for (f). The case last mentioned depended on estoppel. Where shares have not been paid for, a bonâ fide purchaser for value, without notice, who purchases such shares as fully paid shares, and relies on the certificates stating that they are fully paid, will be protected from liability by this same doctrine of estoppel (g), and so will a person taking from a bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice, even though he himself has notice (h). Purchasers with notice will, however, not be protected unless their vendor or some previous purchaser of the shares was a bona fide purchaser for value without notice (i).

There are other cases where the agreement is from its nature a condition subsequent. Such are the cases where a man agrees to take shares on the terms that he is to act as medical adviser (k) or broker (l) to the company, or that he is to supply goods on the terms that the moneys payable for such goods are to be set off against calls (m), or that he is to be credited with certain sums if he takes certain shares (n), or that the calls on the shares are to be paid for out of commission he expects to earn as the company's agent (o). In all these cases he will be liable when it comes to a winding-up as a contributory if his name is on the company's register, and the result is the same where a person advances money to a company and has shares allotted on the terms that if he gives notice the money is to be repaid and the allotment cancelled (p).

It will be otherwise where the application is expressly conditional on the applicant receiving a particular appointment, which he did not get (q).

This brings us to the cases where there had been a reconstruction which fails either wholly or partially.

With regard to the cases where the reconstruction has failed partially, as occurred in Campbell's Case (r) and Hippisley's Case (r), in which after an order had been obtained by dissentient shareholders restraining the company from carrying out the agreement, the matter was compromised with the sanction of the Court on the terms that the agreement should go through in its original form, but that dissentient shareholders should be bought out; in all such cases it is thought that persons who have applied for shares in the new company, whether their application was made direct to the new company or not, will be liable. In the cases where the amalgamation fails wholly, there persons who have applied directly to the new company (s), or, what comes to the same thing, who have on receiving certificates from the new company acknowledged the receipt of such certificates, and retained such certificates (t), will be liable as contributories if they are on the register and they have not taken proceedings to have the register rectified before the commencement of the winding-up. These cases are, it is thought, condition subsequent cases. There are two cases which at first sight seem to conflict with this view, but it will be noticed that in one of them (u) the shares had been forfeited long before the winding-up. It is true that the case seems to have been decided on the footing that there was no contract, but it is submitted that it cannot be supported on this ground. In the other case (x), the application for rectification of the register was made at a time when there was no winding-up, and was granted on the ground that the agreement to take shares was conditional. It is thought that there is no reason to quarrel with this case.

Where application has only been made to the officers of the old company, there it is thought that the validity of the reconstruction agreement, or, at all events, its partial validity, would be considered to be a condition precedent to the acceptance of the application, and the person who has applied will not be liable as a member unless he has acquiesced in his name being on the register or has done something which is only consistent with his being a member of the new company (y).

(y) Dougan's Case (1873), 8 Ch. 540; Alabaster's Case (1868), 7 Eq. 273.

There remains yet a third class of cases, viz. where the shareholder in the old company has done absolutely nothing by way of applying for shares, and nothing which is only consistent with being a member of the new company (z). In such case he will not be liable even if he has assented to the amalgamation (a).

These last belong to a different class of cases, namely, the cases where there never was a contract of any sort, they may be further instanced by (amongst other cases) some other reconstruction cases. Thus, where a man applied for shares on the terms of a certain scheme of reconstruction, and in reply was informed that shares had been allotted to him on certain wholly different terms, he was relieved from liability after a winding-up, in spite of some delay caused mainly by his absence (b). And in another case (c) arising on the same facts, even a request (several times repeated) for the certificates was held not to be fatal to relief after a winding-up. In these cases, where there is no contract to begin with, some very unequivocal positive act of membership will be necessary to fix a person with a contract (d). To this class of cases also belong the case of an agreement to place shares (e), and an invalid allotment by a person who had no authority to bind the company (f).

Another class of case coming under this head are the cases where there has in fact been no application by the person whose name is on the register. There have been cases where a person has applied for shares in the name of another, and has been held personally liable for the shares. This happened where the shares really belonged to the applicant, but he got other people to take them so as to make it appear that the company had more shareholders (g), and where the application was made in the name of the applicant's daughter, who, being a married woman, could not contract (h), and in another case (i) where a man accepted a transfer in the name of his son, a boy at school. On the other hand, it has been held to be no defence to a person, whom it is sought to put on the list of contributories, to show that though he applied in his own name he really applied as agent for another (k), or that the true owner of the shares had agreed to indemnify him from all liability (l). And where a man, without making any false representation to the company, applied for and accepted an allotment of shares in the name of his wife, and afterwards dealt with such shares in her name, it was held that his name could not be put on the list of contributories, though she did not know of the shares throughout these transactions (m). And the same result followed where a director, without any intention of taking shares himself, applied for shares in the name of his son, who knew nothing about the matter, but in whose name the shares were pursuant to such application registered (n). Cox's Case (o), Pugh and Sharman's Case (p), and Richardson's Case (q) have been explained (r) on the ground that the names put forward were in reality mere aliases. No doubt, where a person has applied for shares in the name of an alias or a fictitious person he will be liable (s); but it is certainly thought that these three cases go to the very verge of the law, for in neither of them would there seem to be any doubt that the applicant did not intend to become a full legal shareholder, and this, it is submitted, is essential (t). In the case of married women, all shares which after the commencement of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, are allotted to or placed or registered or transferred in or into or made to stand in the sole name of any married woman, will be deemed, unless and until the contrary is shown, to be her separate property, in respect of which, so far as any liability may be incident thereto, her separate estate will alone be liable, whether the same is so expressed in the document whereby her title to the same is created or certified or in the books or register wherein her title is recorded or not (u). A woman married after the commencement of the Act continues liable for any sum for which at the date of her marriage she may be liable as a contributory either before or after she has been placed on the list of contributories (x). The husband of a married woman married after the commencement of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, is only liable for the antenuptial debts of his wife, including liabilities as a member of a company to the extent of the property he has acquired or become entitled to through his wife (y). Section 17 of this Act gives a summary remedy for determining questions of liability as between husband, wife and company.

The husband of a female contributory married before the date of the commencement of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, or the Married Women's Property Act (Scotland), 1881, as the case may be, will, during the continuance of the marriage, be liable as respects any liability attaching to any shares acquired by her before that date, to contribute to the assets of the company the same sum as she would have been liable to contribute if she had not married, and he will be a contributory accordingly.

Subject to this, the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, does not affect the provisions of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, or the Married Women's Property (Scotland) Act, 1881 (z).

The old law was that where a woman was a shareholder at the date of her marriage the husband was liable to be put on the list of contributories, if the company was wound up. Such liability commenced with the marriage, and, where the company was not in winding-up at the date of the termination of the marriage and the husband's name was not then on the register, ended with it. Under the Act of 1862 he was liable to contribute as a contributory, and such liability was not affected or limited by the Married Women's Property Act, 1874, nor did it matter that the shares belonged to the wife for her separate use (a).

With regard to shares acquired during coverture a company, where not forbidden by its articles, could allow a married woman to become a shareholder in respect of her separate estate (b), and in such case the husband was not liable to be put on the list of contributories under the Act of 1862 (c) ; but it is thought that in these cases he will be liable to be put on the list of contributories under section 128 of the present Act (d). Where a married woman neither contracted as agent for her husband, nor in respect of her separate estate, neither he nor she were liable (e).

D. 284, it might have been doubtful whether the liability of a husband arose except when the company was in winding-up when the marriage took place, for only then was the wife a contributory : cp. Financial Corporation v. Lawrence (1869), 4 C. P. 731. Under the present section the point does not arise.

Where both husband and wife are or may be liable as contributories, the names of both must be put on the list together, and the Court will not, in the absence of one of such names, decide questions relating to liability to be on the list (f).

In the usual case nowadays of persons married or having acquired shares after 1882, the wife alone will be liable, unless, in the case of a liability incurred by the wife before marriage, the husband has acquired or become entitled to property through his wife (g). Probably where the husband has acquired or become entitled to such property the name of both husband and wife should be on the list.

Somewhat analogous are the cases with regard to infants. They are considered more fully under the question of transfers to infants, the case where they usually arise, but it may be here said that except perhaps where the articles of the company forbid an infant being a member (h), a contract with an infant is voidable and not void, and he will be liable where before the winding-up he has attained full age and elected to keep shares (i), and possibly he will also be liable where the contract was for his benefit (k). Where an infant has repudiated and has never received any benefit under the contract, he may prove in the winding-up for the moneys he has paid in respect of the shares (l).

With regard to lunatics who apply for shares there seems to be no authority directly in point, but apparently the contract of a person of unsound mind will be binding where the other party at the time of entering into the contract does not know of his state of mind (m); but this principle does not apparently extend to cases where a company acts on a power of attorney executed by a person of unsound mind, the authority of the agent being wholly bad in such cases (n).

Where a company, which has no power to hold shares in another company, applies for and accepts an allotment of such shares, as the transaction is ultra vires, its name will be taken off the register of the second company (o); bodies corporate may now hold property as joint tenants in the same way as individuals (p).

With regard to the personal representatives of a deceased member the question sometimes arises as to whether they have so acted as to enable the liquidator to put their own names on the list of contributories, or whether they are only liable to be put on such list in their representative capacity. Where shares are offered to the existing shareholders of a company either on an increase of capital (q) or a reconstruction (r) or, it is thought, in any other way, if the personal representatives of a deceased shareholder apply for such shares they will in all cases be personally liable. Mallorie's Case (s) affords no exception to this rule, for there was an offer by a person, who was not an executor but who sometimes acted for the executors, to take shares on his own account and an allotment to the executors, and it was held that the person who made the offer could not be put on the list. Where the question arises with regard to the liability of a personal representative for a deceased member's shares, the question is, however, different. In such cases, the deceased's estate will be liable for all the debts of the company, whether incurred before or after the death, and the executor or administrator will consequently be liable in his representative capacity and to the extent of the deceased's estate (t). An executor or administrator will, however, not usually be personally liable as a contributory, unless his name is on the register and he has done some unequivocal act for the purpose of becoming, or in his character of, a member (u).

Thus, the production of the probate for the purpose of having it recorded on the register and the issue of certificates in terms which might have reference to his character of executor and the receipt of dividends, all taken together, would not apparently be enough to constitute an executor a member in a company formed under the Act of 1862 or the Consolidation Act (x). Nor will a personal representative be liable where he has received and given receipts for dividends in his representative capacity, although dividends are by the constitution of the company not to be paid to representatives till registered (y). Nor will the fact that the personal representative is entitled to the shares beneficially, and has in some cases given receipts for dividends without saying he gave them as such representative, be enough (z). The representative will not be freed from liability to the extent of the assets of the deceased where he has assented to a legacy where the legatee is not on the register and has had no formal transfer if such is required by the company's articles (a). And the specific devisee of property of a testator will, to the extent of the property he has received, be liable even after a lapse of years if the personal representatives have neither got themselves or any other person registered (b).

Personal representatives will be personally liable where they have requested the company to register the shares in their name and it has done so, and also it is thought if they have allowed their names to remain on the register after it has been entered there, even though they have not authorised the original entry (c).

If a contributory dies either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, his personal representatives and his heirs and devisees, will be liable in a due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the company in discharge of his liability, and will be contributories accordingly.

Where the personal representatives are placed on the list of contributories, the heirs or devisees need not be added, but, except in the case of heirs or devisees of any such real estate in England, they may be added as and when the Court thinks fit.

If the personal representatives make default in paying any money ordered to be paid by them, proceedings may be taken for administering the personal and real estates of the deceased contributory, or either of them, and of compelling payment thereout of the money due (d).

This section clearly applies where the deceased has died before the winding-up, although it deals with contributories only and not with members (e). Where calls have been made in a winding-up a nominee of the company can be appointed administrator of a member who has died intestate (f).

Where the company has gone into liquidation the Court will set aside a sum in an administration action to meet the liability, even though no calls have been made; but where the company has not gone into liquidation the Court will not order a sum to be set aside, and the legal personal representative will be fully protected if he pays under an order of court in an administration action (h). Where a personal representative has before a winding-up and without calls being made, paid away moneys without providing for the liability on the shares of the deceased, he will, where such payments rank after the liability to calls, e.g. where they are made to legatees, be liable to refund to the liquidator the moneys he has so paid away (i), and the Court will make an order for payment, and, in default of such payment, for administration (k). And where an administrator who was also sole beneficiary assigned all the assets of the deceased to a third party upon the terms of such third party maintaining him, the Court, taking the view that the assignment was made to avoid calls, set it aside under 13 Eliz. c. 5 (l). Where executors or administrators have distributed the assets after issuing the statutory advertisements, they will be protected if they did not know of the shares at the date of the distribution (m), but not otherwise (n), and even in this case they will be put on the list of contributories as executors, for there may be further assets, and, moreover, this will be a defence where the liquidator seeks to enforce his rights in the only way open to him, viz., by administration action (o).

Moneys paid away to residuary legatees by personal representatives may, where the latter become liable for calls, be recovered together with all costs and expenses incurred by the personal representatives in relation to the shares, if, at the time of payment, the liability was a mere contingent claim which had not ripened into a debt (i.e. if no call had been made and there was no winding-up), but not otherwise (p). Legatees who do not disclaim but accept a legacy of shares will, no doubt, be liable to indemnify the personal representatives, but they will not be precluded from disclaiming the shares by the mere fact that they have obtained a notice in lieu of distringas on the strength of an affidavit stating that they believe they are interested in them (q). Whether where one of several joint holders dies his executors are liable to be put on the A or B list of contributories is a question on which there is singularly little authority. It was decided in Hill's Case (r), where the company was formed under the Act of 1856, that they were not liable to be placed on the A list, on the ground that the liability was joint, and not joint and several, but this view seems contrary to Dunster's Case (s), unless, indeed, a distinction can be drawn on the ground that the Act of 1856 every shareholder covenants for himself, etc., while in the Act of 1862 and the present Act, every member (t) covenants. In Kirby's Executors' Case (u)—a case, it must be noted, of an unregistered company—the executors of a joint holder who had died before the winding-up were put on the list with the surviving joint holder, but their liability was limited to debts incurred before the death. This case proceeded on the ground that the deceased covenanted as a proprietor, and that such covenant was a several one, although the joint holders were joint tenants; it would seem to follow from this case, that in a company registered under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or the Act of 1862, where a joint holder dies after the winding-up has commenced, his executors will be liable in their representative capacity to be put on the A list, but that in cases where a joint holder dies before the commencement of the winding-up his personal representatives will, in the absence of anything very special in the articles, only be liable to be put on the B list, and that only if the death occurred within the year. This view is, it is submitted, the correct view.

The question of the liability of trustees has been raised most frequently on Scotch cases, the reason being that in the case of Scotch companies notice of a trust may be entered on the register. It was argued that trustees were only liable to the extent of the trust funds, but the Courts emphatically repudiated this view, pointing out that trustees were not in any sense a corporation, and that this argument would involve a company being able to set up, at all events in the case of trustees, a different standard of liability to that imposed by the Acts (x). These decisions are, of course, at least equally applicable to England and Ireland. The mere fact of being a trustee is no doubt not enough to render a trustee liable in respect of shares which belong to the trust fund (y), any more than the mere fact of resignation of a trusteeship will terminate it (z), but the position of a trustee entitled to shares is very different to that of an executor so entitled (a), and it would seem that where a trustee's name is on the register, even where there has been no formal transfer, very slight acts of ownership will render him liable (b). There may, however, be some cases where a trustee is put on the register with his co-trustees in which such trustee will escape, if there was only authority for putting his co-trustees on, and there has been no Act which amounts to ratification (c). The fact that the trust under which the trustees hold is void (d) will in no way invalidate an application by or transfer to them, though it will, of course, affect their right to indemnity.

Where the trust is for some person who is beneficially entitled and sui juris, the right of indemnity is against him personally (e), and where the cestui que trust has transferred the beneficial ownership to another person with knowledge of the indemnity, the right of indemnity will be against such person (e). Such cases arise on some person or company (f) taking a transfer of shares in the name of a third party, and also as between vendor and purchaser (g) of shares where there has been no registered transfer. Where the trustees are trustees for persons who or some of whom are not sui juris or the nature of the transaction excludes the rule, there the right of indemnity only extends to trust funds which are held upon the same trusts as the shares (h).

It has been held (i) that even after a winding-up where no calls have been made and there is no evidence that calls will be made, this indemnity cannot be enforced, for an action to enforce it is a mere quia timet action, but this case seems inconsistent with Hobbs v. Wayet (k), and with Whittaker v. Kershaw (l). The liquidator can, of course, not avail himself of this right of indemnity unless he obtains from the trustee contributory an assignment of his rights or a right to sue in his name (m). If he chooses to make the contributory bankrupt, then the trustee in bankruptcy can enforce these rights, but for the benefit of all the creditors of the bankrupt, and not for that of the company only.

A firm may be settled on the list of contributories in their firm name, and in such case it will be exactly the same as if the names of all the partners were set out in extenso, and the partners will be jointly and severally liable (n), and in exactly the same position as any other joint holders. A firm is not allowed by the practice at the Registry of Joint Stock Companies, to be one of the seven or (in the case of a private company) of the two signatories to the memorandum of association (o), and where one of the partners had signed and some of the shares subscribed for have been allotted to each member of the firm (p), it was held that the signatory was liable for the whole, but the names of the other members were taken off the list (p). In another case (o), however, where one partner had signed and the firm had had an allotment of and paid for the shares signed for, the name of the signatory was taken off the list (q).

Where a person has taken shares in one company in the belief that he was taking shares in another company, there will be no contract, if he was fraudulently induced by the company whose shares he did take to believe that he was taking shares in the other company (r), and even where there was no such fraud it is thought that the result would be the same, for in all these cases the question of what company a man is dealing with must necessarily be most material (s).

The questions arising where no notice of allotment has been given, and other similar questions have, it is thought, already been dealt with sufficiently fully, under contracts to take shares (ss).

PERSONS WHOSE NAMES HAVE CEASED TO BE ON THE REGISTER.

With regard to III. The cases where a person has been a member and either has or is alleged to have ceased to be a member, and his name does not appear on the register at the date of the winding-up.

It is probable that where a person has agreed to transfer shares and the transferee has agreed to become a member and has been accepted and has had his name put on the register by the company, any informality, however gross in the transfer, will not enable the Court to substitute the name of the transferee for that of the transferor (t).

Thus, where transfers were apparently required to be by deed and there was no valid deed, but the transferee had agreed to go on the register and subsequently signed a proxy, he was held to be liable (u), and the same result followed where trustees had accepted dividends but had never signed either the deed of settlement or a deed of transfer (x), and where a trustee had given directions as to dividends and authorized the purchase of the shares (y), and also where a person had been registered to his knowledge but the instrument of transfer had not been executed by both transferor and transferee as required by the articles (z). So, too, in the older cases, where the deed of settlement had to be signed, a person on the register to his own knowledge was liable if he had only signed a document referring to the deed of settlement (a), or had signed no deed at all (b).

Again, the consent of the directors where that is necessary will be presumed in such cases (c), and that even where such consent has to be given in a particular way and has not been so given (d). So, too, where the transfers contain a false description of the transferee (e) or wrong numbers of the shares transferred (f). So, also, a transferor will cease to be liable if a transfer is registered, even if he is not entitled to transfer his shares while calls are unpaid (g), and where the articles provide that his shares are not to vest till payment of certain moneys which have not been paid (h). These remarks apply with equal force where no consideration has been given for the transfer, always provided that the transfer was an out and out one (i). It has been said that where the shares transferred belong to a director, he cannot escape liability unless all formalities are complied with, even though the name of his transferee is on the register (k); but this view seems contrary to Murray v. Bush (l), and fixes a director with notice of the contents of the books to an extent which is not consistent with the later cases on the subject (m).

Where shares have been illegally subdivided and some of such subdivided shares have been transferred, then if and so far as such subdivided shares can be traced to and shown to represent the original shares, the transferees will be liable (n). If a company which is entitled to acquire shares accepts a transfer of them, it will be liable, even though its by-laws preclude it from taking shares in its own name (o).

Where a man has transferred shares into a purely fictitious name, whether with a view to defrauding his creditors or otherwise, there the Court will order the register to be rectified by inserting the name of the transferor (p). Similarly, where a considerable number of members were anxious to take proceedings against persons who were promoters of and vendors to the company, and the directors entered into an arrangement by which such persons were to transfer their shares to nominees of the directors, and to pay the company certain moneys, which were applied by the directors in paying themselves debts owing by the company, it was held that the whole transaction was bad, and amounted to an improper exercise by the directors of their fiduciary power of consenting to transfers (q).

Where a member has transferred shares to a person who has not assented to the transfer or agreed to become a member the transferor will remain liable (r).

In like manner, as a limited company cannot purchase its own shares, a transfer to such a company will be simply bad, and the transferor will be liable to have his name put on the list of contributories (s), but in the case of a transfer to trustees for a company, it would seem that such trustees and not the transferor will be liable to be put on the list of contributories (t), for a company is not concerned with trusts, and may treat a trustee whose name is on the register as liable, even though the register states that the trustee holds his shares as trustee, and the company is a Scotch one, and has therefore power to enter notices of trusts on its register (u).

Somewhat analogous to these cases are the cases of infants. Prior to the Infants' Relief Act, 1874, it was decided that a transfer to an infant was voidable and not void (x). In such cases the transferor was liable where the infant had not attained twenty-one at the date of the winding-up (y), and had not transferred the shares. If the infant had not attained twenty-one (z) at the date of the winding-up but had transferred part of the shares, then the transferor was liable for the rest (a). But in all these cases it would seem that the company by its laches might preclude itself from putting the name of the transferor on the register (b). It has been suggested that the Infants' Relief Act, 1874, makes a transfer to an infant void and not merely voidable. But it is not thought that this Act affects the question (c).

The cases where a person can be put on the list of contributories after he has transferred his shares to another person, who is of full age and capable of accepting a transfer, have recently been gone into by the Court of Appeal in Lindlar's Case (d).

That case divides the earlier cases on this point into three headings.

There is, first of all, the case where the articles of the company give the directors no power to refuse to register a transfer. In this case a person may transfer his shares to any one he likes, and the company cannot refuse to register the transfer (e), nor has the liquidator any higher rights, and he cannot put the name of the transferor on the list.

This has been held in cases where the transfer was made to escape liability (f), where the transferor was director and the company was known to be in difficulties at the date of the transfer (g), where a false consideration was given in the transfer and also false addresses and descriptions (the transferee being the transferor's coachman) (h), and where the transferor actually paid the transferee to take the shares and from the transfer it appeared that the transferor was receiving money from the transferee (i). There is, however, an exception to this rule, and that is where the transfer is not an out and out transfer, but the transferor retains a beneficial interest in the shares, and constitutes the transferee a trustee for him, so as to escape liability. The reason for this exception is given in Lindlar's Case (k), that the trust is created for the fraudulent purpose of covering the real ownership, and is consequently one which the Court will not recognize or act upon.

Examples of this class of case are to be found in Hyam's Case (l), where a form of selling through a person, who was, in fact, found by the broker, was gone through. The transferee in this case purported to pay by certain stock which, in fact, belonged to the transferor, and was sold by the broker who retained the purchase money. Other examples of this class of case are to be found in Costello's Case (m) (which can only be supported on the ground that the transfer was not an out and out transfer (n)): Chinnock's Case (o), and Budd's Case (p).

The fact that the transferor has agreed to indemnify the transferee, will be no reason for putting the former on the list of contributories if he is retaining no benefit, though, no doubt, it will be some evidence that he is retaining a benefit (q).

The fact that the transferee may be entitled to have the register of the company rectified and the name of the transferor substituted for his own, will not enable the liquidator to make such substitution on his own account (r).

Where a person who is entitled to have shares transferred to him, has them transferred into the name of a nominee, there, even though such transfer was directed so as to save the real owner from liability, it would seem that such real owner cannot be put on the list of contributories for he has never come into any contractual relation with the company, the only exception to this rule being the case where the nominee has not consented to the transfer, and the Court comes to the conclusion that his name, even though it be the name of a real person, is an alias which the real owner has assumed (s). Thus, a man was held liable where he actually signed the transfer in the name of his son, who was a boy at school (t).

Section 35 of the Stannaries Act, 1869, provides as regards cost book mining companies that a transfer of shares made for the purpose of getting rid of the further liability of a shareholder as such for a nominal or no consideration or to a person without any apparent pecuniary ability to pay the reasonable expenses of working a mine or to a person in the menial or domestic service of the transferor is to be presumed to be a fraudulent transfer, and need not be recognized by the company or by the Court on the winding-up of the company, whether the company be a registered or unregistered company. After a company has registered a transferee and then, with full knowledge of the facts, forfeited his shares, it cannot avail itself of this section against the transferor (u).

The second class of cases dealt with in Lindlar's Case (x) are the cases where the articles do contain a power to refuse to register transfers. Lindlar's Case (x) itself was a case of this sort. There the rule is the same as in the cases where there is no such article, except that the transferor cannot escape liability if he has actively by falsehood or passively by concealment, induced the directors to pass and register a transfer, even though it be an out and out transfer, which if he had not so deceived or concealed they would have refused to register (y).

Thus, where there was such an article in the case of transfers to impecunious persons, the transfers have been held bad, where a clerk was described as a gentleman and no consideration had, in fact, passed, though a consideration of £17 appeared from the transfer to have passed (z), and where a clerk was described as a public accountant and a consideration of £45 was untruly stated by the transfer deed to have passed (a) and where no description of the transferee, a ship's steward, was given, but a consideration of £195 was untruly stated to have passed (b), and where a consideration of £1320 was stated to have passed, while, in fact, the transferee, a young man earning a salary of less than £2 a week, described as a gentleman, had only given a promissory note for that sum (c). In all these cases the Court proceeded on the assumption that the directors would have done their duty if the facts had been brought before them. The Court has declined to put the transferor's name on where the only misrepresentation was that the transferee who was the transferor's son-in-law and a butcher was described as a gentleman, but in this case the shares had a market value at the date of the transfer, which had been made some years before the winding-up (d). Where a man had transferred shares to his clerk and the directors had passed the transfer on condition of his guaranteeing either a call then pending or all future calls, the Court declined to put the transferor's name on the list of contributories, holding that even if he were liable in respect of his guarantee, such liability was not the liability of a contributory (e).

In one case (f) where a company had power to refuse to register transfers of shares which were not fully paid up, they passed a transfer of certain shares which they believed to be fully paid, but subsequently on finding they were mistaken they put the transferor's name back on the register, and it was held that his name was properly put on the list of contributories. As the transferor in no way contributed to the mistake, it may perhaps be doubted whether this case is good law (g).

Turning to the third class of cases mentioned in Lindlar's Case (h). This is the case where the transferor has obtained the advantage of executing and registering his transfer to a man of straw upon an opportunity obtained by him fraudulently or in breach of some duty which he owed the company. This may occur both in cases where there is and where there is not an article restricting transfers.

Thus, where a company had power to refuse to register transfers in the case of persons who were indebted and a shareholder, who was allowed to attend board meetings as representing the Newcastle shareholders of the company, got the board to postpone a call until he consulted the Newcastle shareholders, it was held that the Court would not, under section 35 of the Act of 1862, rectify the company's register by substituting for his name the name of a person to whom he had transferred before the call was made but after the meeting at which it was originally proposed to make it (i). And in another case where there was a similar article and it was held that a call had been postponed so as to enable directors to transfer their shares, a director who had transferred after the date when it was originally proposed to make a call was held liable (k).

It was even held in one case (l) by Kay, J., that this doctrine extended so as to prevent directors, whether they had a right to refuse to register transfers or not, from transferring their qualification shares, the case was, however, decided on different grounds in the Court of Appeal, and it is thought that on this point, it goes too far (m). It would seem that where the directors' consent is requisite, there is nothing to prevent a director consenting to a transfer of his own shares in a proper case (n). Where the consent of the directors to a transfer was necessary, and they agreed to a transfer of shares to a nominee of their own, so as to stop a petition, and to avoid cross-examination it was held that the transferor was liable (o). The questions of purchase by a company of its own shares, surrender and forfeiture have already been dealt with. As has been shown, a purchase by a limited company of its own shares is always bad, a surrender to a limited company of its own shares is almost always bad, but a forfeiture is in many cases good, a liquidator cannot go behind a valid forfeiture even where the name of the person whose shares have been forfeited has not been taken off the register (p), nor can he by consent cancel a forfeiture (q). A person whose shares have been forfeited may under the articles be liable for calls unpaid at the time of forfeiture, but he will not in respect of such calls be liable to be put on the A list of contributories (r). which is ultra vires in the proper sense of the term so that the company could not with the assent of every shareholder ratify it, can be set aside after any length of time (s).

Where, however, the transaction is of such a nature that the majority can bind the minority only if they act in a particular way, there acquiescence by all the shareholders will be presumed after a lapse of time if all the shareholders have full knowledge of the character of the act to be adopted, or if they intend to adopt it at all events and in any circumstances (t). For this purpose it would seem that the shareholders will have full knowledge if they have notice of the way in which the affairs of the company are being conducted and its property is being managed and of the rights and interests which are being created and they abstain from making complaint (u). These remarks apply to a forfeiture in any company whose constitution does not allow of forfeiture, and to a surrender in companies other than limited companies where the constitution does not authorize surrenders; in such cases by taking the proper steps the members could so alter their constitution as to allow of the forfeiture or surrender. Where directors have a power and have not exercised it exactly modo et forma, probably the liquidator could not take this point, at all events when all the directors have with knowledge of the facts acquiesced, and so, too, where a company in general meeting can do a thing, the fact that it has not done it modo et forma will in similar circumstances be immaterial (x).

In the case of unlimited companies, the company may if authorized by its memorandum or articles, purchase or accept a surrender of its shares (y), and where a company has validly done this no calls can be made on any persons as present members in respect of such shares (z). A member of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital may, if the articles so provide, retire (a), and a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital may, if formed before January 1, 1901, purchase or accept a surrender of its shares, if authorized to do so by its memorandum or articles (b). Such companies, if formed after January 1, 1901, are, it is thought, in the same position with regard to dealings with their shares as companies limited by shares (c), though it must be admitted that this view is extremely difficult to reconcile with the provisions of the Form C, in the third schedule to the Act. Shareholders in such companies will be contributories in respect of the amounts unpaid on their shares (d). There would appear to be no reason why a member of such a company should necessarily be a shareholder (e), but it would seem that a shareholder will necessarily be a member liable to contribute to the extent specified in section 123 (1) (v.), and he will also be liable as a contributory under section 123 (3) of the Act. In unlimited companies there may be two classes of members, e.g. shareholders and others who have agreed to become members (e). A member who has dissented from a reconstruction under section 192 of the Act will be liable as a contributory, even when he has transferred his shares to the liquidator (f).

With regard to the question of the effect of bankruptcy in releasing a member from his liability for shares, it would seem to be established that under the present Bankruptcy Act (g) calls may be proved for in the bankruptcy, not only where the winding-up has preceded the bankruptcy, as was the case under the Bankruptcy Act of 1861, and the earlier Acts (h), but also where the bankruptcy has preceded the winding-up (i), and even where there never has been a winding-up (k). It follows that in all these cases a bankrupt who has got his discharge will be relieved from all further liability in respect of his shares (l), and cannot be put on the list of contributories. Under the old law the bankruptcy of a person liable to be placed on the B. list had the same effect on such liability as bankruptcy had in the case of any other contributory (m). A bankrupt becomes on his bankruptcy a mere stranger to the liquidation, and ceases to be a contributory (n). With regard to the trustee in bankruptcy it is usually possible for him under the articles to get himself registered as a member, but this would expose him to personal liability; the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, also contains provisions enabling him in certain circumstances to transfer (o) or disclaim the shares (p), but assuming that he does not avail himself of any of these powers, the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, makes the following provisions (q):—

If a contributory becomes bankrupt, either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, then:—

(1) His trustee in bankruptcy shall represent him for all the purposes of the winding-up, and shall be a contributory accordingly, and may be called on to admit to proof against the estate of the bankrupt, or otherwise to allow to be paid out of his assets in due course of law, any money due from the bankrupt in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the Company; and

(2) There may be proved against the estate of the bankrupt the estimated value of his liability to future calls as well as calls already made.

The proof ranks rateably with those of other separate creditors (r), even in the case of unregistered companies (s). A company which has a lien on shares will be deemed to have surrendered such lien unless it states in its proof the particulars of its security and the value at which it assesses it, though in a proper case it may obtain leave to amend its proof (t). Unless he has been registered as a member a trustee in bankruptcy will only be entered on the list in his representative capacity (u). It has been doubted whether where the bankruptcy precedes the winding-up, but has not been then closed, the trustee in bankruptcy can be put on the list of contributories. This doubt depends on the fact that it is said that the section deals only with contributories and not with members becoming bankrupt (x), but it will be observed that the liability of a contributory commences for some purposes, at all events, when he agrees to take his shares (y), and in Hastie's Case (z), the view was taken that the section 77 of the Act of 1862, which corresponded to section 127 of the present Act, but contained a reference to persons insolvent before the Act of 1862 came into force, and so showed that it must in some cases apply to bankruptcies which preceded the winding-up, did in some cases apply where the bankruptcy preceded the winding-up, though not so as to make a trustee liable for calls, which, under the then law of bankruptcy, were not provable at the date of the bankruptcy. It is thought, on the whole, that a trustee in bankruptcy may in such case be put on the list (a). This view is confirmed by the cases of deceased contributories under section 126 of the Act which have already been dealt with (aa).

Where a trustee disclaims he is discharged as from the date when the property vested in him from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed (b), and the estate will be released even if the bankruptcy took place after the liquidation, and it is thought, after a call has been made (c). In case of disclaimer the company may, however, prove for any injury it has suffered. In some cases this will be the amount unpaid on the shares disclaimed less any benefit the company may be able to obtain under section 55 (6) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (d), but where the whole of such amount is not required for the purposes of the winding-up the liquidator will only be entitled to prove for the amount required (e).

registered owing to the default of the company, the Court will order the register to be rectified by substituting the name of the transferor for that of the transferee (f). So where a transfer had been presented but had not been registered for a period of three weeks while petitions were pending the delay was held to be unreasonable (g), and where a transfer had been approved by the director whose duty it was to inspect transfers, but had, contrary to the ordinary practice of the company, not been confirmed and registered at the next meeting of directors, the register was rectified after the winding-up (h), and the same result followed where a transfer was made in the same circumstances, and before it was registered the transferee died, and no personal representatives of his existed (i). In all these cases the directors had a discretion to refuse the transfers (k) but they had not exercised it, and there was no reason why they should have done so, and the Court will not, where a transfer has been duly submitted, assume that directors would in the exercise of their discretion have refused to register it, unless there is some reason for such refusal (l), but where the transfer was to a man of straw, and a considerable time had elapsed after the transfer was deposited at the office of the company, during which time it was marked for inquiry but no decision was come to, the Court refused to order the register to be rectified (m). The principle at the bottom of the rectification cases being that section 32 of the Act is applicable as well after as before the commencement of a winding-up (n), but subject in the case of transfers which have taken place after the commencement of the winding-up to the considerations mentioned below, and that default has been made or unnecessary delay has taken place in entering on the register the fact of the transferor having ceased to be a member (o).

Thus, the Court has refused relief to a transferor who lodged his transfer for registration at a time when according to the ordinary practice of the company it could not have been registered before the winding-up (p), and where a transfer was lodged at a time when the company had stopped business and the directors had passed a resolution to register no further transfers (q). Nor will there have been unnecessary default or delay on the part of the company where it is the duty of the company, acting as agents for the purchaser to get his signature to a transfer, and it has been impossible to do this before winding-up (r), or where the articles require transfers to be by deed and no deed of transfer has been executed (s), or where the articles (t) or even the practice of the company (u) require the transfer to be executed by the transferee and it has not been so executed, or where no transfer at all of the shares has been executed (x) nor will relief be given where directors have properly refused to register a transfer (y), and in such case the company is under no obligation to notify the transferor of their refusal (z). At the same time, it would seem wholly wrong to say, as was said in Lord R. Montagu's Case (a), that, where a transfer which the company is bound to register is presented, and the company delays the registration, the transferor must suffer; and this proposition is certainly not borne out by Marshall v. Glamorgan Iron and Coal Co. (b), where a company was held to be bound to register a transfer to itself of shares which it was held to have validly agreed to accept, and seems contrary not only to many of the cases above cited, but also to Cawley & Co. (c). It is, no doubt, in spite of the provisions of section 28 of the Act, the duty of the transferee to see that the transfer is registered (d), but if he fails in lodging the transfer for registration the Court will not remove the transferor's name from the register (e), and where there is a dispute as to title between the transferor and transferee the Court will usually not decide it in the winding-up (f). In such cases if the transferee has been in default the transferor will be entitled to be indemnified by him (g), but in a proper case the transferee may be ordered to concur in all steps that may be necessary and proper for rectifying the register (h).

Where a person has sought to get a transfer registered while the company is a going concern and the company has declined to allow registration, the Court will not after winding up rectify at the instance of the liquidator (i), but delay in applying for rectification if it occurs after winding up will, as a rule, not be fatal to an application for rectification, where the transfer should have been registered before the winding-up (k). It would seem, however, that the Court will not rectify the register at the instance of a transferee where his conduct has been such as to render it inequitable to give him relief, e.g. where he has induced the directors to postpone a call so as to enable him to consult certain shareholders whom he represents, and has taken advantage of the interval to transfer his shares to a man of straw, the articles enabling the directors to decline to register a transfer from a person indebted to them (l).

In the case of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court every transfer of shares or alteration in the status of members made after the commencement of the winding-up will, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void (m). This section does not as between vendor and purchaser invalidate a contract for sale of shares whether made before winding-up and not completed (n) or made after winding-up (o); but the Court has declined under this section to rectify the register at the instance of the vendor where both parties contracted in ignorance of a petition on which a compulsory order was made and no transfer was executed (p). At the same time it would appear that in a proper case the section will enable a vendor to get the name of his purchaser substituted for his own name (q). The Court, in giving leave under section 205 (2) to rectify the register, where there has been no delay or default on the part of the company, bears in mind the fact that the principle at the bottom of all the winding-up sections is that as the tree falls so shall it lie, and in such cases unless the proposed transfer can in some way or other be shown to be advantageous to the company, the Court will always be slow to sanction it at all events where the whole transaction has taken place after the winding-up of the company (r), where, however, only the transfer takes place after that date, and the contract on which the transfer was founded was prior to the winding-up, it may be disposed to take a more lenient view (s), though even in such cases it is thought that the interest and advantage of the company will be the paramount consideration, and on any such application the company should be a party (r). The Court will on the application of the company rectify the register where the allotment was bad and the allottee knew all the facts (t).

Where a transfer has been sanctioned under this section, the transferee's name must be substituted for that of the transferor on the A list of contributories, but the name of the transferor, or, where there have been several transfers of the same shares during the winding-up, the names of all the transferors must be put on the B list of contributories (u). All other persons who have been members within a year of the winding-up (x) will be liable to go on the B list of contributories. Thus, if there have been several transfers, all the transferors will be liable (y), if the shares have within the year been forfeited (z) or validly surrendered and cancelled (a), the persons in whose names they stood at the date of forfeiture or cancellation, and any persons who transferred to them within the year will be liable (b). If shares have been allotted under a void contract (c) or one which was voidable and has been avoided (d), then the person to whom the shares have been allotted will not be liable, and where shares have been validly surrendered and cancelled and after both cancellation and winding-up, the person to whom the shares were allotted found that there were misrepresentations which would have entitled him to rescind his contract, he was held not to be liable to be put on the B list of contributories (e). This view would seem to be borne out by Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss (f). A person who more than a year before the winding-up transfers to an infant will not be liable to be put on the B list of contributories, if the shares have subsequently been transferred to an adult, even if the subsequent transfer was within the year (g). In this case it may be that there will be no one on the list of B contributories for the shares so transferred (g), and this may also occur where a past member becomes bankrupt (h).

It would seem that in a proper case the Court can rectify the register so as to put the name of a person on the B list of contributories (i).

Past members of companies registered but not formed under the Act (k), and of illegal associations (l), which have been wound up, are liable to be put on the B list of contributories, in the same way as past members of other companies.

Other cases where there are two classes of contributories are the case of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital, and also the case of unlimited companies which may provide for different classes, e.g. shareholders and policy-holders (m). In the absence of special provision it would appear that in such cases the shareholders will be primarily liable (n), and a policy-holder may, if the articles so provide, cease to be a member, even where no person is substituted as a member (o), and this will be so even where there is a person who gets the benefit of the retiring member's policy (p).

COMPANIES REGISTERED BUT NOT FORMED UNDER THE ACT AND UNREGISTERED COMPANIES.

With regard to companies which have registered under Part VII. of the Act, the Act provides (q) that—

In the event of the Company being wound-up, every person shall be a contributory, in respect of the debts and liabilities of the Company contracted before registration who is liable to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the Company contracted before registration, or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members among themselves in respect of any such debt or liability; or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs and expenses of winding-up the Company, so far as relates to such debts or liabilities as aforesaid; and every contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the Company, in the course of the winding-up, all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid; and in the event of the death, bankruptcy, or insolvency, of any contributory or marriage of any female contributory, the provisions of this Act, with respect to the personal representatives, heirs, and devisees of deceased contributories, to the trustees of bankrupt or insolvent contributories, and to the liabilities of husbands and wives respectively, shall apply.

With regard to unregistered companies the following provisions are applicable (r) :—

(1) In the event of an unregistered Company being wound-up every person shall be deemed to be a contributory who is liable to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the Company, or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members among themselves, or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs, and expenses of winding-up the Company, and every contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the Company all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid.

Provided that in the case of an unregistered Company within the Stannaries, a past member shall not be liable to contribute to the assets of the Company if he has ceased to be a member for two years or more either before the mine ceased to be worked or before the date of the winding-up order.

(2) In the event of the death, bankruptcy, or insolvency, of any contributory, or marriage of any female contributory, the provisions of this Act with respect to the personal representatives, heirs, and devisees of deceased contributories, to the trustees of bankrupt or insolvent contributories, and to the liabilities of husbands and wives respectively, shall apply.

Under these sections not every debtor to the company is a contributory, nor is a person who has taken shares in the name of a trustee, though, no doubt, he will be equitably liable to the trustee, and the company may be able to get at him through the trustee (s). Again, an officer of the company who is liable to refund assets he has misappropriated is not a contributory (t). The legal or equitable liability referred to in the Act is a liability to contribute in the character of a partner. Instances of the equitable liability are afforded by the cases of a person who has not taken shares, but is bound in equity to the company to do so (u), or who has got rid of his shares by some improper device which the Court can go behind (x).

Again, a person who has transferred shares but is still liable for calls made before transfer is not liable as a contributory (y), and a mortgagee of a ship which was insured with a mutual marine insurance society was not liable as a contributory in respect of a guarantee for the payment of all averages and contributions due or to become due in respect of such ship, which he had given to the society, in accordance with its rules (z).

Under the old Winding-up Act of 1848, the question of who was or was not a contributory was much discussed in Bright v. Hutton (a), but it may be stated that the general rules as to whether a person has or has not agreed to become a member of or partner in any unregistered company or society will depend very much on the same principles as those already considered in the case of companies registered under the Limited Liability Acts, except that in companies incorporated by special Act of Parliament, the special Act may and usually does make certain persons, generally the promoters, members (b). How far any person who has been a member has ceased to be one will depend partly on the principles already enunciated and partly on the Acts of Parliament and documents which apply to the company in question.

The question of the liability of members whether past or present of a company or society depends on the further question whether such company is incorporated or not. If it is incorporated the members will only be liable if and to the extent that the Act of Parliament or the document governing the company so provides (c). If the society is unincorporated the members will on principles of partnership or of principal and agent be liable for all contracts entered into by the society during their membership, unless such contracts otherwise provide or were beyond the scope of the authority given to the society, or some Act of Parliament otherwise provides (d).

To apply these rules to the various companies and bodies which can be wound up under the Act (e).

I. INCORPORATED COMPANIES.

1. Companies governed by the Companies Clauses (Consolidation) Act, 1845. This will include companies incorporated by special Act of Parliament or by Provisional Order under some special statute (e.g. The Light Railways Act, 1896), where the Statute or Provisional Order incorporates the Companies Clauses (Consolidation) Act, 1845, and the later Acts amending it. In these cases the liability of a shareholder is limited to the amount unpaid on his shares (f). Such liability apparently only extends to existing shareholders, and if Part I. of the Companies Clauses Act, 1863, is incorporated the company may accept a surrender of its shares. It would seem doubtful whether directors may transfer their shares before the first general meeting under the usual clauses of special Acts (g).

2. Companies incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act, prior to 1856. Here the liability of all members is unlimited (h), but proceedings cannot be taken against a person who has been a member of a company formed under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 110 after three years from the time when he ceased to be a member, or for debts contracted after he ceased to be a member (i), or under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 113 for debts for which he would not be liable were the company an ordinary partnership (k). Shares in such companies may be surrendered if and in manner authorized by the company's deed of settlement (l). The Act of 1855, though it enabled members to limit their liability, gave creditors (m) the same remedies and to the same extent as under the earlier Acts.

3. These enactments were followed by the Act of 1856, the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1857, and the Joint Stock Banking Companies Act, 1857. Under these Acts it appears that substantially the same rules are applicable as under the existing Acts, except that an existing shareholder in an unlimited company was only released after three years. These Acts for the first time really recognized limited companies, and were consolidated by the Act of 1862.

4. Companies incorporated by Royal Charter. At common law the Crown could not by a charter make the members of such a company liable for its debts (n), but now by 7 Will. IV. & 1 Vict. c. 74 (o), which replaces some earlier Acts, the Crown can do this.

5. Incorporated building societies. The Act of 1874, which deals with these societies, recognizes the right of withdrawal (p), and provides (q) that "the liability of any member of any society under this Act in respect of any share upon which no advance has been made shall be limited to the amount actually paid or in arrear on such share and in respect of any share upon which an advance has been made shall be limited to the amount payable thereon under any mortgage or other security or under the rules of the Society." It follows that a member who has withdrawn is not liable at all (r).

The position of members of a building society originally formed under the Act of 1836 but incorporated under the Act of 1874 (and every such society formed after the year 1856 is required to become so incorporated)(r), is precisely similar to that of a member of a society originally incorporated under the Act of 1874, and his liability is limited by section 14 of the Act of 1874, even as regards liabilities previously incurred (s).

Where there are no outside creditors, or where the assets of the company apart from calls are sufficient to provide for them, an unadvanced member cannot be put on the list of contributories against his will (t), for a member is under no liability to contribute to the assets for the purpose of adjusting the rights of the contributories inter se, and can only be required to pay off the amount payable on his advance under any mortgage or other security or under the rules of the society (u); but where there are outside creditors and calls are or may be necessary an advanced member will or may be liable to be put on the list of contributories (x), but he will only be liable to pay the amount payable under the rules at the time or times and subject to the conditions therein expressed (y).

An unadvanced member can, it would seem, only be put on the list in respect of the amount he is in arrear in respect of his shares (z). That would be the amount actually due from him at the date of the winding-up (a).

Members who have given notice of withdrawal remain members until they are actually paid out (b).

7. Friendly societies may register under the Companies (Consolidation) Act. Such registration does not affect any right or claim subsisting against or any penalty incurred by the society, and, for the purpose of enforcing such right, claim, or penalty, the society may be sued and proceeded against in the same manner as if it had not become registered as a company; and every such right or claim or the liability to any such penalty will have priority as against the property of the company over all other rights or claims against or liabilities of the company (c).

8. Industrial and Provident societies may register under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and companies may register under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1893. The liabilities incurred before registration being in each case the same as in the case of friendly societies with regard to their contracts before registration (d). companies with limited liability (e), and this was also the case with societies under the earlier Acts of 1862 and 1876, but not with societies under the Act of 1852 (f), which, however, could register under the later Acts.

The Act of 1893 applies to all incorporated societies (g).

Where an incorporated society is wound-up in pursuance of an order or resolution the liability of a present or past member of the society to contribute for payment of the debts and liabilities of the society the expenses of winding-up and the adjustment of the rights of contributories amongst themselves is qualified as follows :—

(a) No individual society or company who or which has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards prior to the commencement of the winding-up shall be liable to contribute.

(b) No individual society or company shall be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability contracted after he or it ceased to be a member.

(c) No individual society or company not a member shall be liable to contribute unless it appears to the Court that the contributions of the existing members are insufficient to satisfy the just demands on the society.

(d) No contribution shall be required from any individual society or company exceeding the amount if any unpaid on the shares in respect of which he or it is liable as a past or present member.

(e) An individual society or company shall be taken to have ceased to be a member in respect of any withdrawable share withdrawn from the date of the notice or application for withdrawal (h). Shares can, if the rules permit, be transferred or withdrawn (i).

II. UNINCOROPRATED COMPANIES.

1. Unincorporated companies privileged by letters patent under 7 Will. IV. & 1 Vict. c. 73. The letters patent may provide for the liability of members of such companies being limited, and the members will, if there is such a limit, be liable only to the extent specified in the letters patent, such liability being enforced in such manner and subject to such provisions as is specified in the letters patent (l).

(l) 7 Will. IV. & 1 Vict. c. 37, s. 4.

The Act contemplates persons ceasing to be members by transfer (m) and otherwise (n). In the absence of any limit in the charter, the liability of a shareholder in such a company would appear to be the ordinary partnership liability, viz. unlimited as regards debts while he was a shareholder.

2. The liability of members of companies empowered by special Act of Parliament to sue by a public officer and not incorporated is, unless otherwise provided by such Act, unlimited (o).

3. With regard to banking companies under 7 Geo. IV. c. 46. Present members are primarily liable for all debts, whether incurred before or during their membership (p), but with leave execution may also be issued against any person who was a member at the time when the contract or engagement on which the judgment was founded was entered into or before it was executed, if the judgment cannot be satisfied from the present members (q). The liability of members is, subject to this, unlimited.

4. Unincorporated building societies. Here on the ordinary principles of principal and agent, if the assets including the unmatured subscriptions of the unadvanced members and the unmatured instalments of the advanced members are insufficient to pay the debts properly incurred by the society, all persons who were members whether advanced or unadvanced when such debts were incurred will as against outside creditors be liable (r); but loan creditors of such societies have no rights against the members personally, they can only look to the assets for repayment (s). As between the members themselves the advanced members will not usually be liable to make good any losses sustained by the unadvanced members (t), but their liability as also that of the unadvanced members for this purpose would seem to depend wholly on the rules (u).

D. 440, that where there has been an ultra vires borrowing, the lenders will be entitled to repayment after all outside creditors and members have been repaid. It is difficult to see on what principle.

(5) With regard to friendly societies as a general rule, it would seem that their members would be liable for their debts as against outside creditors. Legal proceedings must, it is true, be brought against the trustees (x), but in such actions the society is the real defendant (y), and it is thought that members are in the same position as members of unincorporated building societies (z), or of industrial and provident societies under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act of 1852 (a). With regard to the liability of the members of friendly societies among themselves: to take first of all the law relating to cattle insurance societies (i.e. societies for the purpose of insurance to any amount against loss of meat, cattle, sheep, lambs, swine, horses, and other animals against death from disease or otherwise) or to societies specially authorized by the Treasury to register under the Act for any purpose and to take the benefit of section 31 of the Act.

With regard to these societies their rules are to bind the society or branch and the members thereof and all persons claiming through them respectively to the same extent as if each member had subscribed his name and affixed his seal thereto and there were in the rules contained a covenant on the part of himself his heirs executors and administrators to conform to the rules subject to the provisions of the Act.

All sums of money payable by a member to such society or branch will be deemed to be a debt due from such member to such society or branch, and will be recoverable as such in the county court of the district in which the member resides (b). In other friendly societies the subscription of a person being or having been a member is not recoverable at law (c).

companies. They are governed partly by custom, partly by statute, and partly, no doubt, in each case by the instrument constituting the partnership, which is usually the cost-book (d).

The Stannaries Act, 1869, extends only to mines within the Stannaries of Devon and Cornwall, and subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of the Vice-Warden or within the cognizance of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries (e), and does not extend to registered companies, except where such companies are expressly mentioned or necessarily implied (f).

The Stannaries Act, 1887, extends also to registered companies engaged or formed for working mines (i.e. metalliferous mines and tin-streaming works (g)), within the Stannaries of Cornwall and Devon (h).

The shares in a cost-book mining company are transferable, but under the Act of 1869 a company is not bound to recognize a transfer of a share until all calls made in respect thereof with interest and expenses have been paid (i), or a transfer of a fractional part of a share (k).

Moreover, a transfer of shares made for the purpose of getting rid of the further liability of a shareholder as such for a nominal or no consideration, or to a person without any apparent pecuniary ability to pay the reasonable expenses of working a mine or to a person in the menial or domestic service of the transferor will be presumed to be a fraudulent transfer, and need not be recognized by the company or by the Court on the winding-up of the company whether the company be a registered or unregistered company (l). Where a transfer has been registered and the transferee sued for calls and the shares forfeited with knowledge of his insolvency, the Court will not allow the company or its liquidator to take advantage of this section (m).

By the custom of the Stannaries shares in a cost-book mining company may be relinquished (n); when a share in a company governed by the Act of 1869 is relinquished it must be carried to an account to be called the Account of Relinquished Shares, and will be deemed to be the property of the company and may be disposed of as the company thinks fit, and any shareholder may purchase such share if sold (o).

(n) See Ex parte Palmer (1872), 7 Ch. 286; Frank Mills Mining Co. (1883), 23 C. D. 52: and the sections of the Acts next cited; presumably shares in limited companies could not be so relinquished.

Every relinquishment of a share in such a company must be by notice in writing delivered to the purser (p), and the company is not bound to recognize the relinquishment of a fractional part of a share (q). A statutory declaration in writing by the purser of such a company that a share has been relinquished will be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons interested in the share and that declaration and the receipt of the purser to a purchaser of the share for the price thereof if sold will constitute a good title thereto, and the purchaser must be entered in the cost-book as a shareholder in respect of the share, and thereupon he will be deemed to be the holder thereof discharged as against the company from all unpaid calls interest and expenses due to the company in respect thereof accrued before his purchase, and he will not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor will his title to the share be affected by any irregularity in the proceedings in reference to such sale (r). Where a share in a company has been relinquished after November 30, 1887, and a valuation of the materials and other assets of the company is required to be made as between the shareholder who has relinquished and the continuing shareholders, such valuation must be made on the basis that all the continuing shareholders had at the same time relinquished their shares (s).

Prior to this enactment each shareholder was by custom entitled to relinquish his share in a cost-book mining company. On such relinquishment the assets of the company were valued and also its liabilities. If such assets exceeded the liabilities, he was entitled to his share of the surplus. If the liabilities exceeded the assets, he had to pay his proportion of the deficiency. Sums due to a person under this custom were immediately due and payable at the expiration of two years, and if there were not sufficient assets to make the necessary payments calls could be made on the other adventurers in the mine. Such sums were a debt provable in the winding-up (t). In estimating the assets, the business was valued as a going concern, and regard had to be had to the solvency of shareholders and others who were indebted to the company (u). It is difficult to see the exact effect of the section, but it would seem to take away any right to have calls made on co-adventurers and possibly the right to have the business valued as a going concern. In one case (x) a practice of a company to accept surrenders without requiring payment of arrears was held good, but in these big partnerships it is very difficult to show that a departure from the general customs which is not sanctioned by the rules, has been assented to by all the members (y).

(p) "Purser" means the purser for the time being of a company, and if there is no purser, then the secretary for the time being, or if there is no secretary, then the principal agent for the time being of the company: ibid., s. 2.

After November 30, 1887, a relinquishment will not have any effect if it is delivered within the six weeks immediately preceding the day on which a resolution to wind-up the company is legally passed at a duly convened meeting of the company or on which an order is made to wind-up the same by or subject to the supervision of the Court (z). The Act of 1869 also contains provisions as to forfeiture (a).

The position of shareholders in a cost-book mining company, then, is as follows: The company is a mere partnership (b) unless registered as a company, and may sue in the partnership name (c). It is no doubt competent for the rules to provide that persons relinquishing their shares (d) or transferring them (e) shall cease to be liable for debts past as well as present, and such rules will be binding on the co-adventurers. But as against outside creditors a person will be liable for all debts incurred while he is on the register (f), and a transferee will not be liable for any debts till he gets on the register (g), though no doubt he will have to indemnify his transferor against all debts whether incurred between the purchase and the registration of the transfer (h) or prior to the purchase (i). It follows that a shareholder remains liable for the debts incurred during his membership even after he ceases to be a member (k).

He is, however, now partly relieved from his liability by section 269 (1) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (l), which provides that in the case of an unregistered company within the Stannaries being wound-up a former shareholder shall not be liable to contribute to the assets of the company if he has ceased to be a member for a period of two years or upwards before the mine has ceased to be worked or before the date of the winding-up order. It has been said that the words "the mine has ceased to be worked" might as well have been left out (n), but it is thought that with the proviso to section 269 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 they relieve a past shareholder where the mine is continued to be worked after the winding-up, and the shareholder was a member within two years of the winding-up, but not within two years of the time when the mine ceased to be worked.

7. Savings bank certified under the Trustee Savings Bank Act, 1863 (o). With regard to institutions certified under this Act which was passed for the purpose of encouraging thrift amongst persons of small means (p), the Trustee Savings Bank Act, 1863 (q), provides that no trustee or manager of any savings bank under the Act (subject to the provisions of the Act in respect to savings banks in Ireland (r)) is to be personally liable except—

(1) For moneys actually received by him on account of or for the use of such savings bank and not paid over and disposed of in the manner directed by the rules of the savings bank.

(2) For neglect or omission in complying with the rules and regulations required by the Act to be adopted in the maintenance of checks the audit and examination of accounts the holding of meetings and keeping of minutes of proceedings thereat.

(3) And also for neglect or omission in taking security from officers as in the Act provided.

A trustee may be liable where he does not come within the provisions of this section, but he will not be liable as a contributory (s); the section seems to contemplate responsibility for a man's own acts and defaults, and where he has no reason to suspect that anything is wrong a trustee who takes no part in the bank's affairs will usually not be personally liable (t). Non-attendance at meetings and failure to take part in the business of the bank for a year ending on any 20th of November, will, however, now cause the office of trustee to be vacated, and his name will not be allowed to continue on the list of trustees (u).

respect to winding-up apply with such modifications if any as may be provided by rules made by the Lord Chancellor with the concurrence of the Board of Trade and with the substitution of general partners for directors (y).

By rules (z) made under this section the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, with respect to winding up and the provisions of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, so far as applicable to the proceedings in a winding-up by the Court are made to apply to the winding-up by the Court of limited partnership subject to certain modifications (a).

The following expressions are, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires substituted, in the applied provisions (b), and in the forms prescribed by such rules for the expressions hereinafter particularly mentioned, that is to say—

"Limited partnership" for "company."

"General partner" for "director" and for "secretary," and for "secretary or chief officer."

"Manager clerk, or servant" for "officer."

"Partner" for "member" or "shareholder."

"Principal place of business as registered" for "registered office."

In these rules, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires, the expression "the Act" means the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and the expression "the Court" means the Court which has jurisdiction to wind up the limited partnership.

For the purposes of the application of section 124 (c) of the Act, the provisions of these rules with regard to the liability of partners and others as contributories shall be substituted for the provisions of section 123 of the Act (d).

In the event of a limited partnership being wound-up by the Court every present and past partner, general or limited, is liable to contribute to the assets of the limited partnership to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, with the qualifications following, that is to say—the partners past and present will be the contributories, and each member is liable without limit for all debts properly incurred by the partnership while he was a partner.

(1) No present or past limited partner will be liable to contribute as such to the assets of the limited partnership to any greater amount than the amount of any part of his contribution as such limited partner which he may have drawn out or received back since he became or whilst he remained a limited partner, except in the case of a present limited partner who is a past general partner and in case of a past limited partner who has become a present general partner.

(2) No past general partner will be liable to contribute as such to the assets of the limited partnership, except in respect of partnership debts and obligations incurred whilst he continued to be a general partner; but every past general partner who has become a limited partner will in addition to any amount which he may be liable to contribute in respect of partnership debts and obligations incurred whilst he continued to be a general partner be liable to contribute to the assets of the limited partnership to an amount equal to the amount of any part of his contribution as such limited partner which he may have drawn out or received back since he became or whilst he remained a limited partner.

(3) No past partner, general or limited, will be liable to contribute as such to the assets of the limited partnership unless it appears to the Court that the existing partners are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Rule.

(4) No sum due to any partner, general or limited in his character of a partner by way of capital, dividends, profits, or otherwise, will be deemed to be a debt of the limited partnership payable to such partner in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not being a partner; but any such sum may be taken into account for the purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves (e).

In the event of any contributory dying in insolvent circumstances and of an order being made for the administration of his estate according to the law of bankruptcy, either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, the trustee (or in Ireland, the assignees) of his estate will be deemed to represent the deceased for all purposes of the winding-up of the limited partnership and will be deemed to be a contributory accordingly, and may be called upon to admit to proof against the estate of the deceased or otherwise to allow to be paid out of his assets in due course of law any moneys due from the deceased in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the limited partnership being wound up (f).

Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 127 or 151 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, the liquidator will not, in the event of any contributory being adjudged bankrupt, entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than twenty shillings in the pound, or dying in insolvent circumstances, and of an order being made for the administration of his estate according to the law of bankruptcy, have power to prove, rank, claim, and draw a dividend for any balance against the estate of such contributory, or to take and receive dividends in respect of such balance, until the claims of the other separate creditors of such contributory for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied (g).

For the purpose of settling the list of contributories the Court has power to rectify the register of the limited partnership in respect of—

(a) The name of any of the partners whether general or limited; and (b) The sum contributed by any limited partner; and
(c) The nature of the liability of any partner, whether general or limited as therein registered and otherwise as may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid upon the application of any person aggrieved or of any partner whether general or limited (h).

Not improbably difficult questions may arise under these provisions, e.g. on the question of whether a limited partner has or has not taken part in the management of the firm's business.

LIABILITY OF CONTRIBUTORIES.

In the event of a company registered under the Act or under the Companies Act, 1862, or under the Joint Stock Companies Acts (as defined in the Act (i)), being wound up every present and past member will subject to the provisions of section 123 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs, charges and expenses of the winding-up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves with the qualifications following (that is to say)—

(i) A past member will not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards before the commencement of the winding-up:
(ii) A past member will not be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the Company contracted after he ceased to be a member:
(iii) A past member will not be liable to contribute unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of the Act:
(iv) In the case of a Company limited by shares no contribution can be required from any member exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares in respect of which he is liable as a present or past member (k):

(v) In the case of a Company limited by guarantee, no contribution can be required from any member exceeding the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound-up.

(vi) Nothing in the Act invalidates any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract by which the liability of individual members on the policy or contract is restricted or by which the funds of the Company are alone made liable in respect of the policy or contract:

(vii) A sum due to any member of a Company, in his character of a member, by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, will not be deemed to be a debt of the Company, payable to that member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not a member of the Company; but any such sum may be taken into account, for the purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

In the winding-up of a limited Company, any director or manager whether past or present, whose liability is, in pursuance of the Act, unlimited will in addition to his liability (if any) to contribute as an ordinary member, be liable to make a further contribution as if he were at the commencement of the winding-up a member of an unlimited company: but—

(i) A past director or manager will not be liable to make such further contribution if he has ceased to hold office for a year or upwards before the commencement of the winding-up:

(ii) A past director or manager will not be liable to make such further contribution in respect of any debt or liability of the Company contracted after he ceased to hold office:

(iii) Subject to the articles of the Company, a director or manager will not be liable to make such further contribution unless the Court deems it necessary to require that contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the Company, and the costs and expenses of the winding-up.

In the winding-up of a Company limited by guarantee which has a share capital, every member of the Company will be liable, in addition to the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound-up, to contribute to the extent of any sums unpaid on any shares held by him (l).

The Act also provides (m) that—

A bank of issue registered under the Act (n) as a limited Company shall not be entitled to limited liability in respect of its notes; and the members thereof will be liable in respect of its notes in the same manner as if it had been registered as unlimited; but if, in the event of the Company being wound-up, the general assets are insufficient to satisfy the claims of both the note-holders and the general creditors, then the members, after satisfying the remaining demands of the note-holders, will be liable to contribute towards payment of the debts of the general creditors a sum equal to the amount received by the note-holders out of the general assets.

For the purposes of the section the expression "the general assets" means the funds available for payment of the general creditor as well as the note-holder.

Any bank of issue registered under the Act as a limited Company may state on its notes that the limited liability does not extend to its notes, and that the members of the Company are liable in respect of its notes in the same manner as if it had been registered as an unlimited Company.

THE "B" LIST OF CONTRIBUTORIES.

The liability of past shareholders is purely statutory, the liquidator can settle a list of B shareholders at any time (o), but with a view to saving trouble and expense should usually not do so until it is clear that it will be necessary to do so (p); but where it is clear that even if everything possible is obtained from the present members, the company will not be able to pay its debts the Court will settle the B list (q).

Before a call can be made on a past member there must be reasonable evidence of two things, viz. that there were debts contracted before the time of his ceasing to be a member and that the existing shareholders will not be able to satisfy the contributions required by the Act (r). Having regard to the power to make calls before the sufficiency of the assets of the company has been ascertained (s), a call may be made on past members before the debts of the company are definitely ascertained, if it is impossible that sufficient assets to pay the creditors of the company will be obtained within a reasonable time (t). The rule in Clayton's Case (u) applies for the benefit of past members, and even where a bank has declined to allow further overdrafts except on the terms of the money being paid on or within a definite time this rule will apply, as the bank will be under no duty to apply such payments to satisfy the later drawings (x).

The assets of the company are in the first place divided so far as they will go rateably among all creditors regardless of when their debts were contracted and of the question whether any of them have rights against past members (y), then any sums which can under the section be got from past members are got in and all the creditors will be entitled to prove for the balance due to them against such fund, creditors whose debts were contracted after a person ceased to be a member, being entitled to prove against his contribution (z) equally with those who are creditors for debts incurred while such person was a member. Dividends received on debts incurred during a past member's membership will, however, have to be taken into account, and deducted from the amounts recoverable from the past members (a). It has been decided that a past member can even after winding up, buy up the debts incurred before he ceased to be a member, and in such case he cannot be required to contribute as a past member. This decision was arrived at in Brett's Case (b) after a re-argument consequent on the decision in Webb v. Whiffin (c), and was in a subsequent case (d) held to apply where a call had been made but not paid, before the debts were purchased; it obviously gives a past member the power of deciding that his contribution shall not be distributed in the ordinary way, and will in many cases enable him to avoid payment of part of his contribution without consulting either the liquidator or the creditors whose debts were contracted after he ceased to be a member. It would seem, however, that the decision in Brett's Case (e) has stood too long now for the question of whether it was rightly decided or not to be considered as open (f).

Under section 123 (1) (iii), past members cannot be called upon to contribute unless the liability of existing members is exhausted (g), and the question arises whether where a company has entered into a contract under which its liability is limited to a particular class of shares, the past holders of such shares can be called on, though existing holders of other shares have not been called on to the full. In Bath's Case (h) it was held that they could, and Hesketh's Case (i) does not seem to overrule the law there laid down, but simply to say that the particular shareholders in that case had been validly released by a compromise. The decision in Bath's Case (h) would, however, seem very hard to support for it enables a company to make some of its members liable where the Act says they are not to be liable.

It has been held that the section must be read reddendo singula singulis, and that the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up must be borne by the different classes of contributories according to the circumstances of each case and the discretion of the Court: thus where the costs of settling the B list have been heavy past members may have to bear such costs (k).

Past members cannot be called on for the purpose of adjusting the rights of the members inter se (l).

Every transferee of shares will be bound to indemnify his transferor against any liability the latter has incurred as a past member (m), and the fact that such transferee has entered into an arrangement with the company, which relieved him from further liability will not relieve him from this liability to his transferor (n), nor will such an arrangement relieve the transferor from his liability as a past member, whether the liability of the transferor was (o) or was not (p) specially reserved by the arrangement. The only limit to the liability of existing members of an unlimited company is that mentioned in sub-section 1 (vi) of section 123.

PROVISIONS IN CONTRACTS LIMITING THE LIABILITY OF INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS.

It has for many years past been common in policies of assurance to incorporate a condition limiting the liability of the company to the capital stock and funds of the company and relieving directors and proprietors from personal liability.

The result of the decisions on such policies was gone into by Lindley, L.J., in Sovereign Life Assurance Co. (q). He says (r)—

"1. The policy-holders acquire no charge at law or in equity "upon the funds of the company (s).

"2. Their right (when their policies become payable or provable) "is to be paid out of the then existing funds of the company in-"cluding its then uncalled capital (t).

"3. They have no right to call upon any shareholder to pay any "more than the full amount of the shares held by him and unpaid "when the demand is made upon him" (u).

In addition, they have no right to have the funds of the company marshalled so that the general creditors shall be paid out of calls in excess of the nominal value of the shares so as to enable them to take the whole fund for themselves (x) or where part of their fund is charged to general creditors to have any part of the charge thrown on to the general assets (y).

On the other hand the general creditors will not have priority, even if the policies are participating policies at all events where the policy-holders have no share in the management of the company and are not members (z). Where the rights conferred by a policy are thus limited, this will not prevent the holder from participating in moneys recovered in misfeasance proceedings, even though the persons from whom such moneys have been recovered have paid up their shares in full (a).

The fund available for the policy-holders will, however, not have to bear the general costs of winding up, the costs of getting in calls or any costs other than those of realizing the assets forming part of such fund (b); liquidators of a company who have entered into compromises under section 214 of the Act with some of the shareholders should apply moneys received under such compromises to the fund available for the policy-holders even though they release the shareholders from all further liability, and the shareholders who have not entered into such compromises cannot require such sums to be apportioned or marshalled for their benefit (c); where the sum received from the shareholders who have entered into compromises exceeds the sum which they are liable to contribute to the policy-holders' fund, there the general creditors will be entitled to the excess, and the policy-holders' fund to the balance of such sum (d).

Where the articles of an unlimited company provided that the company should only be liable for debts up to a limited amount it was held in Greenwood's Case (e) that creditors would not be concerned with such limitations and that in the absence of express notice they would have the same rights against the company and its members as though there had been no such limitation. But in a later case (f), which seems consistent with the analogous cases on debentures already mentioned, it was said that this doctrine had been altered by Ernest v. Nicholls (g) to this extent, namely, that it was applicable only where the document containing the limitation was not a public document accessible to all. This view is most material, as it would seem to cover practically all incorporated companies, and certainly all registered under the Act of 1862, or the present Act if the limitation is contained in the memorandum or articles; such a limitation would appear to be binding between the members of a company and the company, and between the company and creditors with notice of the limitation (h). A company will be an unlimited company for the purposes of the Act, even where its articles or policies contain limitations similar to those above referred to (i).

The liability of members of limited companies whether such limit be by shares or guarantee has, it is thought, already been sufficiently discussed, apart from estoppel they are liable as contributories for the full nominal amount of their shares or of their guarantee. At one time it was considered (k) that where a person agreed to purchase shares at a premium from a company, he was liable for such premium as a contributory, this view has not prevailed in the case of companies limited by guarantee (l), and is, it is thought, inconsistent with Dent's Case (m), and with Ooregum Gold Mining Co. v. Roper (n), and therefore wrong.

SUMS DUE TO MEMBERS IN THEIR CHARACTER OF MEMBERS.

Section 123, 1 (vii.) provides that a sum due to a member in his character of member by way of dividends profits or otherwise, is not to be deemed to be a debt of the company payable to that member in competition between himself and any creditor not a member of the company, but that such debts may be taken into account in adjusting the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(n) [1892] A. C. 125; see also Marlborough Club Co. (1868), 5 Eq. 365.

It was held in Ex parte Cannon (o) that directors' fees came within this provision, at all events, where the articles required a director to be a member, but this case does not seem to be consistent with the later authorities (p), and is, it is thought, wrong, for the payment is not made to the payee in his character of holder of his qualification shares, but in his character of director, and in return for his services as such (p). Where shares have been wrongfully forfeited the claim of the person injured will not be for a sum due to him in his character of member, the claim being for the loss of his rights of membership (q). The section is a disabling one, and under it claims by a member which are barred by the principle of Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank (r), such as claims against the company for damages where the person claiming is a member who is too late to get rescission, or by persons who claimed damages for non-registration of a contract for payment for shares otherwise than in cash, cannot be proved, even where all creditors have been paid in full (s). It is thought that a person in the position of the claimant in Ex parte Welton (t), who claimed on a debt which had not effectually been cancelled by an issue of shares which purported to be, but were not, fully paid, would not be affected by the section. Stirling, J., in New Chile Gold Mining Co. (q) seems to have taken the view that the section did not apply where the member was not liable to be put on the list of contributories, and that it was doubtful if it applied to a person liable to be put on the B list. It is respectfully submitted that neither of these views are correct.

SET OFF AGAINST CALLS.

This brings us to the question of whether a debt can be set-off against calls where such debt is not due to the member in his character of member by way of dividends, profits or otherwise.

Taking first the case of a limited company where all the creditors have not been paid in full, and where the question does not arise in the case of a member who is a director or manager with unlimited liability.

Here there can be no set-off, whether the winding-up is compulsory (u), under supervision (x), or purely voluntary (y), and whether the call was made before or after the winding-up (z), and this rule would seem to hold good even where there was a contract to allow set-off at the time when the shares were issued (a). It does not apply where the member claiming the set-off is bankrupt whether the question arises in the bankruptcy (b) or in the winding-up (c), nor does the rule apply where two debts have been validly set-off against one another before the winding-up (d); it has been held to hold good, however, where the member claiming the set-off is a company in winding-up (e) or the representative of a person who died insolvent before section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, came into force and whose estate was being administered by the Court (f), and where the set-off had been pleaded before the winding-up, but the action in which such plea has been put forward has not come to trial before winding-up (g). The rule applies to counterclaims as well as to claims for set-off (h).

Turning to the reason for the rule, on the one hand it has been said that section 123 of the Act gives the limit of the liability of the contributory, viz. the amount unpaid on his shares and that any set-off would be inconsistent alike with this provision and with section 186 (1) of the Act which directs payment of debts pari passu, and which shows the rule which is applicable not merely in a voluntary winding-up, but in all windings-up. And, in further support of this view it is pointed out that section 165 of the Act (i), allows of set-off in certain cases of which this is not one (k). In Whitehouse & Co. (l), Jessel, M.R., while recognizing all these points as indications in favour of the view against set-off, said that the real reason against it was that for set-off the debts must be mutual, and that as section 125 of the Act gave rise to a new debt due not to the company but to the liquidator, there could be no mutuality, and consequently no set-off, this case was decided after section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875 (m), came into force, and that section, it appears, makes no difference on this question (n). The reasoning of Sir George Jessel was not approved by the Court of Appeal in Pyle Works (o), where they held that the debt created by section 14 (2) of the Act while the company is a going concern, and the debt created by section 125 when it is in liquidation were one and the same, and that consequently a company could charge its uncalled capital. In a later case where the Privy Council came to the same conclusion, they took the view that the liability of a contributory under section 125 does not spring into existence for the first time on the winding-up, but is a ripening of the liability which he undertook for the first time when he became a member (p). In a later case (q) still, the Court of Appeal seem to have followed Sir George Jessel's view, and this view is, it is submitted, at all events right to this extent that there can be no mutuality, the debt of the contributory, whether it is the same or not, being due to the liquidator, and not to the company (r). It is, however, certainly not easy to reconcile Black & Co.'s Case (s) in so far as it denies the power of a company to contract for a set-off, with Pyle Works (t); for, after all, a contract for a set-off is something very analogous to a charge, and if a company can charge the uncalled capital of all its members to one of them, it is difficult to see why it cannot charge the uncalled capital of that one to him. The point is, perhaps, not very important now, as if such an agreement were held to confer a charge, such charge would be void if not registered under section 93 of the Act. The bankruptcy cases cause more difficulty, but seem to go on this: either a company in winding-up was to be treated better than other creditors in a bankruptcy, or a bankrupt was to be treated better than other contributories in a winding-up. The Courts chose the latter alternative, taking the view that the special legislation as to bankruptcy overruled the general company legislation which applied to all contributories (u). Some weight was, however, in some of these cases (x) laid on the fact that under section 127 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, the trustee is only bound to allow payment "in due course of law" of the contributories' liability, and under section 151 (c) the liquidator can only prove rank and claim in the bankruptcy insolvency or sequestration of any contributory "for any balance" against his estate. The difficulty of lack of mutuality apparently does not arise under the mutual credit clause in bankruptcy (y), as though the liquidator represents the creditors, they can only claim through the company (z), and as the rights of the creditors of the company and of the creditors of the bankrupt have to be considered and such rights are equal, the only way to deal with the matter is to treat the mutual rights as if they were the old rights of the company in its individual capacity and of the debtor in his individual capacity (a).

Having regard to section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875 (now repealed and replaced by section 207 of the Act), and section 126 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, precisely the same arguments would seem to apply to the case of insolvent estates, and nearly the same arguments would also be applicable to the case of insolvent companies being wound-up. In Gunn's Case (b) the deceased insolvent died before section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, came into force, and so it is no authority against this view under the existing law, but it is submitted that Auriferous Properties (No. 1) (c) is not good law, and is inconsistent with Re Duckworth (d) and the other bankruptcy cases (d) above cited. Where no set-off is allowed a contributory will not be entitled to receive any dividend until either he has paid all the calls actually made on him in full (e), or until the amount he has paid in respect of calls together with the amount of dividend he is entitled to in respect of his debt equals the amount for which he is liable in respect of calls, in this latter case he will be entitled to receive any further dividends he may be entitled to (f). Payment of a dividend in a winding-up does not amount to payment for this purpose (g).

A liquidator cannot refuse to pay a dividend to joint tenants because one of them is liable for calls (h), and he cannot refuse to pay dividends to a person because he is tenant-for-life of certain shares registered in the names of persons who have not paid calls (i). Where an action by a liquidator has been dismissed with costs, he cannot retain such costs against unpaid calls, without having regard to the lien of the solicitor of the successful party in the action (k).

Turning to the case of unlimited companies and of directors or managers whose liability is unlimited, and to the case of companies whose debts are paid in full, section 165 of the Act provides as follows :—

(1) The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories to pay, in manner directed by the order, any money due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents to the Company, exclusive of any money payable by him or the estate by virtue of any call in pursuance of this Act.

(2) The Court in making such an order may, in the case of an unlimited Company, allow to the contributory by way of set-off any money due to him or to the estate which he represents from the Company on any independent dealing or contract with the Company, but not any money due to him as a member of the Company in respect of any dividend or profit ; and may, in the case of a limited Company, make to any director or manager whose liability is unlimited or to his estate the like allowance.

(3) But in the case of any Company, whether limited or unlimited, when all the creditors are paid in full, any money due on any account whatever to a contributory from the Company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call.

This section applies to calls made but not paid before the winding-up (l), but not to calls made in the winding-up (m). It gives the all calls; in this case the contributory company was in liquidation.

Court a discretion as to whether it will or will not allow a set-off (n), and in one case (n) the Court declined to allow an undisputed debt for calls made before a winding-up to be set off against a doubtful debt due by the contributory as surety for the company. These rules as to set-off do not in any way prevent even directors who have paid moneys in advance of calls under an article enabling them so to do, from claiming that to the extent of such payments they are relieved from their liability as contributories (o), but where a payment has been made before a winding-up, and has been set-off against calls it may amount to a fraudulent preference, though it could not do so in a bankruptcy (p), and such a payment made between a winding-up petition and the order on it, will be treated as a mere loan (q). Where a guarantee was given on the terms that moneys paid under it were to be treated as payments in advance of calls, and the guarantor had to pay after winding-up, he was bound to pay the full amount of his calls, and only entitled to prove for his debt (qq). An assignee of a debt after winding-up will, it would seem, ordinarily be in precisely the same position as to set-off and proof as his assignor, and so if the assignor fails to pay calls he will not be entitled to a dividend (r). Further, a company in winding-up will be entitled to set-off against an assignee before winding-up calls due though not actually payable before it had notice of the assignment (s).

It would seem that a sum due from the liquidator for services in the liquidation can be set off against calls (t), and that where a liquidator discontinues an action for calls commenced before winding-up, the costs of the discontinued action may be set off against calls (u). The costs of a successful petitioner must be paid, even though there are calls in the winding-up payable by him (x).

CALLS.

The liability of a contributory creates a debt in England and Ireland of the nature of a specialty accruing due from the time when his liability commenced, but payable at the time when calls are made for enforcing the liability (y). This liability has its inception and originates with the date when the person liable became a member (z). In some sense, no doubt, the liability created by this section is a different liability from that of a member under section 14 (2) prior to winding-up (a). But the liability under section 125 would seem to exist along with the liability under section 14 (2) while the company is a going concern, and when the company is wound up, then, for the first time, the liability under section 125 would seem to ripen into a debt (b). A liquidator can enforce a call made by directors before winding-up under the general powers conferred on him by section 151 (2) (b) and (g) of the Act, and not under the special powers as to calls in a winding-up (c). Sums so called up are not payable by virtue of any call in pursuance of the Act (d), but on the winding-up the liability in respect of such calls becomes a liability to contribute, and though the liability is still to the company and not to its liquidator, it is no longer a debt due to the company (e). The Court can, under section 165 of the Act, make an order for payment of sums due in respect of such calls on an application in the winding-up (f). Where a call has been made and charged while the company is a going concern the Court will not allow a fresh call by the liquidator to defeat the charge (g).

The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, and either before or after it has ascertained the insufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories to the extent of their liability, for payment of any money which the Court considers necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges and expenses of winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

In making a call the Court may take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories may partly or wholly fail to pay the call (h).

General rules have under the power in that behalf conferred by section 173 of the Act been made enabling the liquidator as an officer and subject to the control of the Court to make calls. That section requires that the rules shall not permit of a call being made without the special leave of the Court or the sanction of the committee of inspection. Having regard to rule 1 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, none of such rules except rule 87 applies to a voluntary winding-up, whether under supervision or not; but sometimes leave to make a call is asked for and granted in such cases. Such rules are as follows :—

The powers and duties of the Court in relation to making calls upon contributories conferred by section 166 of the Act shall and may be exercised, in a winding-up by the Court (i), by the Liquidator as an officer of the Court subject to the provisions of section 173 of the Act, and to the following regulations :—

(1) Where the Liquidator desires to make any call on the contributories, or any of them for any purpose authorized by the Acts, if there is a Committee of Inspection he may summon a meeting of such Committee for the purpose of obtaining their sanction to the intended call.

(2) The notice of the meeting shall be sent to each member of the Committee of Inspection in sufficient time to reach him not less than seven days before the day appointed for holding the meeting, and shall contain a statement of the proposed amount of the call, and the purpose for which it is intended. Notice of the intended call and the intended meeting of the Committee of Inspection shall also be advertised once at least in a London newspaper, or where the winding-up is not in the High Court, in a newspaper circulating in the district of the Court in which the proceedings are pending. The advertisement shall state the time and place of the intended meeting of the Committee of Inspection, and that each contributory may either attend the said meeting and be heard, or make any communication in writing to the Liquidator or members of the Committee of Inspection to be laid before the Meeting, in reference to the said intended call.

(3) At the meeting of the Committee of Inspection any statements or representations made either to the meeting personally or addressed in writing to the Liquidator or members of the Committee by any contributory shall be considered before the intended call is sanctioned.

(4) The sanction of the Committee shall be given by resolution, which shall be passed by a majority of the members present.

(5) Where there is no Committee of Inspection, the Liquidator shall not make a call without obtaining the leave of the Court (k).

In a winding-up by the Court an application to the Court for leave to make any call on the contributories of a Company, or any of them, for any purpose authorized by the Acts, shall be made by summons stating the proposed amount of such call, which summons shall be served four clear days at the least before the day appointed for making the call on every contributory proposed to be included in such call; or if the Court so directs notice of such intended call may be given by advertisement, without a separate notice to each contributory (l).

The liquidator is the only person who can make calls in a compulsory winding-up. Where the calls have been charged and the mortgagee wishes to get the benefit of them it will be necessary for him to make an application in the winding-up for an order on the liquidator to take the necessary steps for getting in the calls upon receiving a proper indemnity from the mortgagee against his costs of so doing (m), or where a receiver has been appointed in an action by the mortgagees an application for leave for such receiver to make such calls in the name of the liquidator upon giving a like indemnity (n). The latter course is, perhaps, the more usual one, but the Court has declined to extend this practice so as to allow a nominee of the mortgagee, who is in no sense an officer of the Court, to use the name of the liquidator (n).

The fact that according to the contract between the company and its shareholders the amount payable on the shares is only payable at a future date will be no bar to a call by the liquidator (o).

Where there are sufficient assets in hand to satisfy all liabilities and there is no question of adjusting the rights of the contributories inter se, a call should not be made (p); but a call can be made notwithstanding the fact that the debts and liabilities which are to be paid out of it are not ascertained and proved, for the section enables a call to be made immediately after the winding-up order, and it is therefore only necessary that such debts and liabilities should be estimated debts and liabilities.

The Court will be very slow to disallow or reduce a call which the liquidator thinks will be necessary and will usually not require him to give his reasons for his estimate, unless there is reasonable ground for thinking that the debts and liabilities to be paid will not be established (q), and, still more, will the Court of Appeal be slow to interfere with the discretion of a Judge who has given leave to make a call (r). It should be borne in mind in considering the question of making a call that a winding-up deprives the creditors of their ordinary rights by action, and calls should be made where the liquidator and the Court or the committee of inspection take the view that it is improbable that the debts will be paid within a reasonable time if calls are not made (s). Further, the possibility that some of the contributories may as time goes on become insolvent, or, at all events, unable to pay their calls in full, must be taken into account (t).

The latest case (u) on the subject re-affirms the proposition that it is the duty of the liquidators to get in the assets at the earliest possible moment, even where the money is not immediately wanted, and it shows that the Court will not take into consideration the fact that if payment of the call is deferred, interest could be demanded from the contributories at a rate higher than a bank would allow were the money placed on deposit. Where contributories are allowed to defer payment of calls by making an affidavit of means, such affidavit will be a private document for the use of the liquidator, and will not be placed on the file (u). A call may be made payable by instalments (u). The fact that some contributories are making claims to have their names taken off the list of contributories is no reason for deferring the making of a call, the remedy of such contributories is to apply for the suspension of the operation of the call against themselves (y). Where debts have been proved and admitted a call made for the purpose of paying such debts cannot be opposed on the ground that the proofs for such debts ought not to have been made or that there was no jurisdiction to make the winding-up order (z).

Much the same principles govern calls on persons on the B list of contributories (a), though, of course, no calls will be made on them unless at all events there is a probability of their being liable (b).

With regard to the liability of persons who were members at the date of the liquidation to pay calls for the purposes of adjusting the rights of the members inter se.

These rights are usually provided for by the articles, apart from such provision the rights of members of a company divided into shares would appear to be that if there is a loss it must be borne by the members in proportion to the nominal value of their shares (c). If there is a surplus after repaying all members their capital such surplus will be distributed among the members in a like proportion (d). Where there are no shares and no means of ascertaining how the losses or gains of the company are to be borne or distributed, they must be borne by the contributories equally (e).

Payments made in advance of calls will, as between the contributories be treated as loans (f), and interest on such loans will, where the contract so provides, be paid down to the date of repayment (g).

Unquestionably, calls can be made for adjusting these rights (h), and in the case of an unlimited company in the absence of anything special in the memorandum or articles, calls can be made beyond the nominal amounts of the shares (i). In adjusting the rights of the contributories the Court will, however, not concern itself with matters which did not concern the company, e.g. rights under an agreement by which one contributory has agreed to indemnify another against calls (k), or rights which director contributories who have been held to be liable in misfeasance proceedings may have over against other contributories (l). Articles providing for interest if calls are not paid when due have no application in a winding-up, but interest on calls in a winding-up usually at 5 per cent. may be given under 3 & 4 Will. IV., c. 42, whether the notice of call does (n) or does not (o) demand such interest, such interest will continue to run, where the calls have been paid into a special account to await the result of an action which is in the nature of a test action (p).

An agreement between contributories, that one of them shall for a pecuniary consideration endeavour to postpone the making of a call, or support the claim of a creditor, is void as being against the policy of the Act (q).

BALANCE ORDERS.

When the liquidator is authorized by resolution or order to make a call on the contributories, he must file with the Registrar a document in the Form 58 in the Appendix to the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, with such variations as circumstances may require making the call (r).

When a call has been made by the liquidator in a winding-up by the Court, a copy of the resolution of the Committee of inspection or order of the Court (if any, as the case may be), must forthwith after the call has been made be served upon each of the contributories included in such call, together with a notice from the liquidator specifying the amount or balance due from such contributory in respect of such call, but such resolution or order need not be advertised unless for any special reason the Court so directs (s).

The payment of the amount due from each contributory on a call may be enforced by order of the Court, to be made in Chambers on summons by the liquidator (t).

Formerly the Court could not direct service of either an order for calls or a balance order out of the jurisdiction (u), but now the Court or a Judge may direct that any summons, order, or notice may be served on any party or person in a foreign country, and the procedure prescribed by Order 11, r. 8A, R. S. C., with reference to serving notice of a writ of summons applies to the service of any summons, order, or notice so directed to be served (x). Personal service of a balance order is required, but in a proper case an order for substituted service can be made, it is also necessary to serve the summons for a balance order, but this may be served by post under rule 23 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909.

A balance order should not be made when the contributory who was liable is bankrupt; there the right is limited to proof in the bankruptcy (y). The Court has, on evidence as to the means of a contributory against whom a balance order had been obtained, made an order under section 5 of the Debtors Act, 1869, for payment of the sum due under the balance order by instalments with interest (z), but a director contributory who has been ordered to pay for shares presented to him by a promoter cannot be committed to prison under section 4 (3) of that Act (a).

An order made by the Court on a contributory will (subject to any right of appeal) be conclusive evidence that the money, if any, thereby appearing to be due or ordered to be paid is due.

All other pertinent matters stated in the order will be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings except proceedings against the real estate of a deceased contributory, in which case the order will be only primâ facie evidence for the purpose of charging his real estate, unless his heirs or devisees were on the list of contributories at the time of the order being made (b). A balance order is not in the nature of a judgment, but is a mere direction given by the Court for the better getting in of an asset (c). Having regard to section 178 of the Act (d), it can be enforced by a fieri facias (e) though an order under section 167 of the Act for payment of the money due to the Bank of England to the account of the liquidator instead of to the liquidator, cannot be so enforced, and if a liquidator who has obtained such an order wishes to enforce it he must obtain a further order for payment to himself (f). A balance order is, however, not a final judgment so as to be capable of supporting a bankruptcy notice under section 4 (1) (g) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (g), and a balance order against an executor does not deprive him of his right of retainer, as it is not a judgment but analogous to an administration order, on a balance order against an executor a fieri facias cannot issue, and the only remedy is by taking proceedings under section 126 for administering the estate of the deceased (h).

An action will not lie to enforce a balance order, for as such order is enforceable under section 178 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, it is not a ground of action (i), but the fact that a balance order has been made for calls whether such calls were made before or during winding-up will be no defence to an action for the same calls, though if the two proceedings are taken vexatiously the Court will set the matter right when dealing with the costs (k).

POWER OF COURT TO ORDER ARREST OF CONTRIBUTORY.

The Court, at any time either before or after making a winding-up order, on proof of probable cause for believing that a contributory is about to quit the United Kingdom, or otherwise to abscond or to remove or conceal any of his property for the purpose of evading payment of calls, or of avoiding examination respecting the affairs of the company, may cause the contributory to be arrested, and his books and papers and moveable personal property to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court may order (l).

The Court has under this provision ordered the seizure of the books, papers, etc., of a contributory on evidence which was considered insufficient to order his arrest (m).

Under the similar provisions of the various Bankruptcy Acts, it has been held that very different considerations will prevail in the case of a foreigner temporarily resident here and about to return home than in the case of a person resident here, and that in the former case a far stronger case of intention to evade payment must be made out (n). It has also been held under these provisions that to effect the arrest doors may be broken (o), and that no action will

Applications for orders under the section may be made by ex parte motion (q), but the Court has declined to make an order where the contributory has had no opportunity of denying the debt (r).

ARRESTS AND COMMITMENTS.

The provisions of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules as to arrests and commitments are as follows :—

A Warrant of Arrest, or any other Warrant issued under the provisions of the Act and Rules, may be addressed to such Officer of the Court, or to such High Bailiff or Officer of any County Court, whether such County Court has jurisdiction to wind-up a Company or not, as the Court may in each case direct (s).

Where the Court issues a Warrant for the arrest of a person under any of the provisions of the Act or Rules, the prison (to be named in the Warrant of Arrest) to which the person shall be committed shall, unless the Court shall otherwise order, be the prison used by the Court in cases of Orders of Commitment made in the exercise by the Court of its ordinary jurisdiction (t).

Where a Warrant for the Arrest of a person has been issued by a Court other than the High Court under any of the provisions of the Act and Rules, the High Bailiff of the Court, or other Officer of the Court to whom the Warrant is addressed, may send the Warrant of Arrest to the Registrar of any other Court (other than the High Court) within the ordinary jurisdiction or district of which such person shall then be or be believed to be, with a Warrant annexed thereto under the hand of the High Bailiff or Officer and Seal of the Court from which the Warrant originally issued, requiring execution of the Warrant by the Court to which it is so sent ; and the Registrar of the last-mentioned Court shall seal or stamp the Warrant with the Seal of his Court, and issue the same to the High Bailiff or other proper Officer of his Court, with an endorsement thereon in the Form 106 ; and thereupon such last-mentioned High Bailiff or Officer may, and shall in all respects execute the said Warrant according to the requirements thereof, and all Constables and Peace Officers shall aid and assist within their respective districts in the execution of such Warrant (u).

Where a person is arrested under a Warrant of Commitment issued under any of the Provisions of the Act and Rules, other than sections 174 and 176 of the Act and Rule 66 of the Rules, he shall be forthwith conveyed in custody of the Bailiff or Officer apprehending him to the prison of the Court within the ordinary jurisdiction of which he is apprehended, and kept therein for the time mentioned in the Warrant of Commitment, unless sooner discharged by the Order of the Court which originally issued the Warrant of Commitment, or otherwise by law.

Where a person is arrested under a Warrant, issued under section 174 or section 176 of the Act, or under Rule 66 of the Rules, he shall be forthwith conveyed in custody of the Bailiff or Officer apprehending him to the prison of the Court within the ordinary jurisdiction of which he is apprehended; and the Governor or Keeper of such prison shall produce such person before the Court as it may from time to time direct, and shall safely keep him until such time as the Court shall otherwise order, or such person shall be otherwise discharged by law. Provided that where any such person is conveyed to a prison other than the prison used by the Court which originally issued the Warrant in cases of Orders of Commitment made by such Court in the exercise of its ordinary jurisdiction, the Court may by Order direct such person to be transferred to such last-mentioned prison; and on receipt of such Order the Governor or Keeper of the prison to which such person has been conveyed, shall cause such person to be conveyed in proper custody to the prison mentioned in such Order, and the Governor or Keeper of such last-mentioned prison shall, on production of such Order and of the Warrant of Arrest, receive such person, and shall produce him before the Court, as it may from time to time direct, and shall safely keep him until such time as the Court shall otherwise order, or such person shall be otherwise discharged by law (x).

ATTACHMENT OF DEBTS IN STANNARIES.

When several companies are in course of liquidation by or under the superintendence of the Court exercising the Stannaries Jurisdiction and acting under that jurisdiction if it appears to the Judge that a person who is a contributory of one of the companies is also a creditor claiming a debt against one of the other companies the Judge may (if after inquiry he thinks fit) direct that the debt when allowed shall be attached, and payment thereof to the creditor suspended for a time certain as a security for payment of any calls that are or may in course of liquidation become due from him to the company of which he is a contributory, and the amount thereof will be applied to such payment in due course. Such an order will not prejudice any claim which the indebted company has by way of set-off, counterclaim, or otherwise, or any lawful claim of lien or specific charge on the debt in favour of any third person (y).

COMPROMISES.

Under the powers of compromise conferred by section 214 of the Act the liquidator can enter into compromises. The terms of the section are wide, and under the section where there is a doubt as to whether certain contributories are liable a compromise dealing with the liabilities of all such contributories can be entered into (z), but where the question is not one of liability, but of ability to pay, the authority sanctioning the compromise should be furnished with information as to the means of each person whom it is proposed to relieve from liability (a). The liquidator will sometimes be authorized to compromise in such cases by endorsed order: but it is better to have an order drawn up in the ordinary way (aa). The affidavit as to means is not put on the file (b).

The Court cannot under the section force a liquidator to accept a compromise of which he does not approve (c). It is thought that where the sanction of a committee of inspection has been given and the liquidator has entered into the compromise, the onus of showing that the compromise is improper will be on a person who asks the Court to disallow it, though in such case the facts will no doubt have to be fully brought before the Court (d).

A compromise by which £20 per share was to be paid immediately instead of £25 per share extended over a period of two years has been sanctioned (e), and also one by which the executrix of a deceased contributory was to pay a certain sum down in lieu of a larger sum for which the deceased was liable, and to give security for the payment of a further sum if further calls were made (f). The Court will not allow a contributory to retire from a compromise he has entered into merely because it turns out subsequently that he ought not to have been on the list at all (g), and it would seem that such a compromise can only be set aside if fraud is shown (h), moreover, if a contributory has made a statement in writing of his property to the liquidator, and such statement omits to mention certain assets, the Court will not after a lapse of time presume that such assets were not disclosed, at all events in cases where it can be shown that the liquidator and the contributory had constant meetings and discussions on the subject, and that no active step was taken by the contributory to conceal the ownership of such assets (i).

STATEMENT.

1. The amount due in respect of proofs admitted against the Company, and the estimated amount of the costs, charges and expenses of the winding-up, form in the aggregate the sum of £ or thereabouts.

2. The assets of the Company are estimated to realize the sum of £ . There are no other assets, except the amounts due from certain of the contributories to the company, and in my opinion it will not be possible to realize in respect of the said amounts more than £ .

3. The list of contributories has been duly settled, and persons have been settled on the list in respect of the total number of shares.

4. For the purpose of satisfying the several debts and liabilities of the Company, and of paying the costs, charges and expenses of the winding-up, I estimate that a sum of £ will be required in addition to the amount of the Company's assets hereinbefore mentioned.

5. In order to provide the said sum of £ it is necessary to make a call on the contributories, and having regard to the probability that some of them will partly or wholly fail to pay the amount of the call, I estimate that for the purpose of realizing the amount required it is necessary that a call of £ per share should be made.

CHAPTER XIII.

Distribution of Assets.

The Act provides with regard to voluntary liquidations that all costs charges and expenses properly incurred in the winding-up including the remuneration of the liquidator, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims (a). This is subject to the rights of mortgagees, and applies equally in a compulsory winding-up (b). The Court may in either case in the event of the assets being insufficient to satisfy the liabilities, make an order as to the payment out of the assets of the costs, charges, and expenses incurred in the winding-up in such order of priority as the Court thinks just (c).

The Act further provides (d) that the property of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu and subject thereto shall, unless the articles otherwise provide, be distributed among the members according to their rights and interests in the company.

To take these subjects in their order—

I. Payment of Costs, Charges, and Expenses.

The Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (e), contain the following special provisions on this point.

The assets of a Company in a winding-up by the Court, remaining after payment of the fees and actual expenses incurred in realizing or getting in the assets, shall, subject to any order of the Court, and, as regards a winding-up to which the provisions of the Stannaries Act, 1887, apply (f), subject to that Act as modified by the Act, be liable to the following payments, which shall be made in the following order of priority, namely :—

First.—The taxed costs of the petition (g), including the taxed costs of any person appearing on the petition whose costs are allowed by the Court.

(d) Ibid., s. 186 (1). This again in terms only applies to a voluntary winding-up, but the same rule holds good in a compulsory liquidation : Webb v. Whiffin (1872), L. R. 5 H. L. 711 ; Birch v. Cropper (1889), 14 A. C. 525.

Next.—The remuneration of the special manager (if any).

Next.—The costs and expenses of any person who makes or concurs in making, the Company's statement of affairs.

Next.—The taxed charges of any shorthand-writer appointed to take an examination. Provided that where the shorthand-writer is appointed at the instance of the Official Receiver the cost of the shorthand notes shall be deemed to be an expense incurred by the Official Receiver in getting in and realizing the assets of the Company.

Next.—The Liquidator's necessary disbursements, other than actual expenses of realization heretofore provided for.

Next.—The remuneration of the Liquidator.

Next.—The actual out-of-pocket expenses necessarily incurred by the Committee of Inspection, subject to the approval of the Board of Trade.

No payments in respect of bills or charges of solicitors, managers, accountants, auctioneers, brokers, or other persons, other than payments for costs and expenses incurred and sanctioned under Rule 54 (h) and payments of bills which have been taxed and allowed under orders made for the taxation thereof, shall be allowed out of the assets of the Company without proof that the same have been considered and allowed by the Registrar. The Taxing Officer shall satisfy himself before passing such bills or charges that the employment of the solicitor or other person in respect of the matters mentioned in the bills or charges has been duly sanctioned (i). Provided that the Official Receiver when acting as liquidator may without taxation pay and allow the costs and charges of any person other than a solicitor employed by him where such costs and charges are within the scale usually allowed by the Court and do not exceed the sum of £2 provided always that the Board of Trade may require such costs or charges to be taxed by the Taxing Officer.

Nothing contained in this Rule shall apply to or affect costs which, in the course of legal proceedings by or against a Company which is being wound-up by the Court, are ordered by the Court in which such proceedings are pending or a Judge thereof to be paid by the Company or the Liquidator, or the rights of the person to whom such costs are payable.

These rules have no application as between a company and its mortgagees (j). A liquidator who has sold property subject to a mortgage, will as against the mortgagee be entitled to retain out of the proceeds of sale the actual costs of the sale (k), and possibly the costs of a previous abortive sale (l), but he will not be entitled as against such mortgagee to retain costs he has incurred without the request express or implied of the mortgagee, in preserving the property as, for instance, by carrying on the business of the company (m), or even, it is thought, sums paid for rent so as to prevent the lease being forfeited, for the right to recover such sums would appear to depend on the principle of salvage, and it has been held that a mortgagor cannot rely on such principle (n). Under the costs of realization, costs of a second mortgagee in bringing an action for realizing his security have been allowed as against a first mortgagee except so far as such costs were incurred by such second mortgagee for the purpose of establishing his own particular security (o), probably the costs of a liquidator in bringing successful misfeasance proceedings (p) or recovering calls (q) would likewise be allowed against mortgagees. It may be here remarked that the views above set out, as to the costs of preserving the security, though now well established, did not always prevail (r).

A further question which arises in this connection is, putting aside all questions of mortgagees, what is the position of a person who has given credit to a company in liquidation, e.g. a person who has supplied goods to a company while the liquidator is carrying on its business? Such a creditor is usually not entitled to sue the liquidator personally (s), but he is entitled not merely to prove against the assets of the company, but to payment in full out of those assets (t), for such payment would appear to be part of the costs, charges, and expenses of the liquidation (u). Moreover, as in the case which has already been discussed of a successful litigant, it would appear that, subject, of course, to the terms of his contract, he is entitled to payment at once on demand, if there are sufficient assets to pay any costs incurred in actual realization and any unpaid costs of the petition for winding-up, his claim, however, of course, ranking with the claims of other creditors in the same position as himself, and with the costs of persons who have successfully brought actions in the liquidation (x). The matter is not, it is true, referred to in the rules, but the order of costs there prescribed is "subject to any order of the Court," and the Court will on an application in the liquidation, give to such a creditor the relief to which he is entitled (x).

Smith v. Lubbock, [1901] W. N. 105; Omcrod Grierson & Co., [1890] W. N. 217; Northern Milling Co., [1908] 1 Ir. 473; Lathom v. Greenwich Ferry Co. (1895), 72 L. T. 790. In this case the expenses of a licence for maintaining certain works which were necessary for the company's business were allowed, but the case turned, partly at all events, on the fact that there had been a previous order treating these expenses as expenses of realization, and see supra, p. 616, note (t), as to what are costs of realization.

(u) Lindley on Companies, 6th Ed. vol. ii. p. 996.

Where money is borrowed by a liquidator and its repayment is secured on the assets of the company, it is thought that such charge will usually rank after the liquidator's remuneration and all other costs, charges, and expenses mentioned in the rule (y), though probably a liquidator could give a charge which ranked in priority to all these costs.

Where a compulsory winding-up supersedes a voluntary winding-up it is thought that the costs of the petitioner and of the liquidator in the compulsory winding-up will have precedence over the liquidator's remuneration and over costs incurred by him in the voluntary winding-up (z). Where creditors are entitled to payment out of a particular fund only, the question sometimes arises how far such fund is liable to be charged with costs. This question would appear to be one which turns on the further question of what the contract is, but usually as between such creditors and the members of the company, the costs of getting in the fund and the general costs of the liquidation cannot be charged to the fund (a), though possibly it may be otherwise with the actual costs of realization (i.e. the sale) of the assets comprising the fund (b).

Every solicitor manager accountant auctioneer broker (c) or other person employed by an Official Receiver or Liquidator in a winding-up by the Court must on request by the Official Receiver or Liquidator (to be made a sufficient time before the declaration of a dividend) deliver his bill of costs or charges to the Official Receiver or Liquidator for the purpose of taxation; and if he fails to do so within the time stated in the request, or such extended time as the Court may allow, the Liquidator will declare and distribute the dividend without regard to such person's claim, and subject to any order of the Court the claim will be forfeited. The request by the Official Receiver or Liquidator must be in the Form 89 (d).

Where costs are directed to be taxed under an order a notice is sent requiring such costs to be lodged with the official receiver at his office (or if the order was not in a compulsory winding-up or the official receiver is not liquidator at the winding-up office) before a certain day with all papers and vouchers relating thereto. Such notice adds that after such date the taxation will be proceeded with and the certificate issued with reference to such costs only as shall then have been brought in and taxed.

Where a bill of costs or charges in any winding-up has been lodged with the Taxing Officer, he must give notice of an appointment to tax the same, in a winding-up by the Court to the Official Receiver, and in every winding-up to the Liquidator, and to the person to or by whom the bill or charges is or are to be paid (as the case may be) (e).

The bill or charges, if incurred in a winding-up by the Court prior to the appointment of a Liquidator, must be lodged with the Official Receiver, and if incurred after the appointment of a Liquidator, must be lodged with the Liquidator. The Official Receiver or the Liquidator, as the case may be, must lodge the bill or charges with the proper Taxing Officer (f).

Every person whose bill or charges in a winding-up by the Court is or are to be taxed must, on application either of the Official Receiver or the Liquidator, furnish a copy of his bill of charges so to be taxed, on payment at the rate of 4*d.* per folio, which payment will be charged on the assets of the Company. The Official Receiver must call the attention of the Liquidator to any items which, in his opinion, ought to be disallowed or reduced, and may attend or be represented on the taxation (g).

Where any party to, or person affected by, any proceeding desires to make an application for an order that he be allowed his costs, or any part of them, incident to such proceeding, and such application is not made at the time of the proceedings :—

(1) Such party or person must serve notice of his intended application on the Official Receiver in a winding-up by the Court and in every winding-up on the Liquidator.

(2) The Official Receiver (if any) and Liquidator may appear on such application and object thereto.

(3) No costs of or incident to such application will be allowed to the applicant, unless the Court is satisfied that the application could not have been made at the time of the proceeding (h).

Upon the taxation of any bill of costs, charges, or expenses being completed, the Taxing Officer must issue to the person presenting such bill for taxation his allowance or certificate of taxation. The bill of costs, charges and expenses, together with the allowance or certificate, must be filed with the Registrar (i).

Where the bill or charges of any solicitor, manager, accountant, auctioneer, broker, or other person employed by an Official Receiver or Liquidator, is or are payable out of the assets of the Company, a certificate in writing, signed by the Official Receiver or Liquidator, as the case may be, must on the taxation be produced to the Taxing Officer setting forth whether any, and if so what, special terms of remuneration have been agreed to, and in the case of the bill of costs of a solicitor, a copy of the resolution or other authority sanctioning the employment (k).

In a County Court all costs properly incurred in a winding-up by the Court will be allowed on the Lower Scale in Appendix N to the Rules of the Supreme Court, and costs must be taxed by the Registrar in person (l).

The taxing officer is, in winding-up, the Registrar (m), and costs are taxed in the same manner and on the same scale as in other matters in the High Court (n). The professional charges must be entered in one column in the bill, the disbursements in another (o), and in the column dealing with professional charges should be entered costs already taxed and paid by some other party, credit being given for the amount so received (p). The items of the costs already paid by a third party (e.g. an unsuccessful litigant) should be given separately in two columns as in the rest of the bill (q). Where costs are taxed under an order which directs that they shall be paid out of the assets no costs of the solicitor of leaving the bill for taxation or for drawing or copying it or for attending the taxation will be allowed if one-sixth is taxed off the professional charges and disbursements (r), including in such items the items already paid and for the payment of which credit is given in the bill (p), and such costs will in any case only be allowed where the bill relates to litigious or semi-litigious matter, and where the taxation is not between the solicitor and his own client (s). In compulsory winding up cases, however, costs are not usually taxed under an order, but lodged for allowance by the Registrar (t), and the solicitor is never allowed to charge for drawing the bill of costs. In such cases, if more than one-sixth is taxed off the costs of attending before the Registrar when the costs are being considered, will be disallowed. The Court will read these taxation rules in a broad way and so as to do substantial justice. And so, where a summons, which is not an originating summons, substantially raises an issue of fact before the Judge the costs of counsel will be allowed (u).

The costs of a liquidator's or special manager's security, including any premiums which he may pay to a guarantee society must in all cases be borne by the liquidator or special manager personally, and may not be charged against the assets of the company as an expense incurred in the winding-up (x).

Where a liquidator or special manager in a winding-up by the Court receives remuneration for his services as such, no payment will be allowed on his accounts in respect of the performance by any other person of the ordinary duties which are required by statute or rules to be performed by himself.

Where a liquidator is a solicitor he may contract that the remuneration for his services as liquidator are to include all professional services (y).

A taxing master has power to make one or more interim certificate or certificates, allocatur or allocaturs, in any taxation for any portion or portions of the taxed costs directed to be taxed without waiting until a certificate for the full amount can be made (z).

With regard to the costs of conveyancing work. These are regulated by the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, but it would appear that where a liquidator enters into a contract under section 8 of that Act, for paying his solicitor otherwise than by the ordinary scale fee he should get the leave of the Court (a). Where a liquidator makes an application for the purpose of increasing the remuneration allowed to his solicitor, the application will be treated as though it were the application of the solicitor himself, and if it is unsuccessful his costs will not be allowed out of the estate (b).

Where any bill of costs, charges, fees or disbursements which are payable out of the assets of the company to any solicitor, manager, accountant, auctioneer, broker or other person has been taxed by a Registrar of a Court other than the High Court, the Board of Trade may require the taxation to be reviewed by the taxing officer of the High Court.

In any case in which the Board of Trade require such a review of taxation as is above mentioned they must give notice to the person whose bill has been taxed, and must apply to the taxing officer of the High Court to appoint a time for the review of such taxation, and thereupon such taxing officer must appoint a time for the review of, and must review, such taxation and certify the result thereof. The Board of Trade must give to the person whose bill of costs is to be reviewed notice of the time appointed for the review.

Where any such review of taxation as is above mentioned is required to be made by the taxing officer of the High Court, the Registrar whose taxation is to be reviewed must forward to such taxing officer the bill which is required to be reviewed.

The Board of Trade may appear upon the review of the taxation; and if, upon the review of the taxation, the bill is allowed at a lower sum than the sum allowed on the original taxation, the amount disallowed must (if the bill has been paid) be repaid to the official receiver or the liquidator, or other person entitled thereto. The certificate of the taxing officer will in every case of a review by him under this rule be a sufficient authority to entitle the person to whom the amount disallowed ought to be repaid to demand such amount from the person liable to repay the same.

The costs of and incidental to the review will be paid out of the assets of the company or otherwise as the taxing officer or the Court directs, but the costs of the attendance of a principal will not be allowed if in the opinion of the taxing officer he could have been sufficiently represented by his London agent (c).

This rule only applies to persons employed by the liquidator (d).

II. PAYMENT OF DEBTS AND LIABILITIES.

In every winding-up (subject in the case of insolvent Companies to the application in accordance with the provisions of this Act of the law of bankruptcy) all debts payable on a contingency, and all claims against the Company, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, shall be admissible to proof against the Company, a just estimate being made, so far as possible, of the value of such debts or claims as may be subject to any contingency or sound only in damages, or for some other reason do not bear a certain value (h).

In the winding-up of an insolvent Company registered in England or Ireland the same rules shall prevail and be observed with regard to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable and to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities as are in force for the time being under the law of bankruptcy in England or Ireland, as the case may be, with respect to the estates of persons adjudged bankrupt; and all persons who in any such case would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of the Company may come in under the winding-up, and make such claims against the Company as they respectively are entitled to by virtue of this section (i).

A company which is in liquidation will for the purposes of this section be taken to be insolvent unless it is shown that it can pay its debts in full (j), and also it is thought interest on such debts as bear interest down to the time of actual payment (k). It will in addition, of course, have to be able to provide for the costs of the liquidation, otherwise it cannot be said to be solvent (l).

In the winding-up of a company registered in Scotland, the general and special rules in regard to voting and ranking for payment of dividends provided by sections 49 to 66 of the Bankruptcy (Scotland) Act, 1856, or any other rules in regard thereto which may be in force for the time being in the sequestration of the estates of bankrupts in Scotland, will, so far as is consistent with the Act, apply to creditors of the company voting in matters relating to the winding-up, and ranking for payment of dividends; and for this purpose "sequestration" is to be taken to mean "winding-up," "trustee" to mean "liquidator," and "sheriff" to mean "the Court" (m).

Section 37 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, deals with the debts which are provable in bankruptcy. Its provisions are as follows:—

(1) Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract promise or breach of trust shall not be provable in bankruptcy.

(m) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 208.

(2) A person having notice of any act of bankruptcy available against the debtor shall not prove under the order for any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice.

(3) Save as aforesaid all debts and liabilities present or future certain or contingent to which the debtor is subject at the date of the receiving order or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of the receiving order shall be deemed to be debts provable in bankruptcy.

(4) An estimate shall be made by the trustee of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid which by reason of its being subject to any contingency or contingencies or for any other reason does not bear a certain value.

(5) Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by the trustee as aforesaid may appeal to the Court.

(6) If in the opinion of the Court the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated the Court may make an order to that effect and thereupon the debt or liability shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to be a debt not provable in bankruptcy.

(7) If in the opinion of the Court the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated the Court may direct the value to be assessed before the Court itself without the intervention of a jury and may give all necessary directions for this purpose and the amount of the value when assessed shall be deemed to be a debt provable in bankruptcy.

(8) "Liability" shall for the purposes of this Act include any compensation for work or labour done any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant contract agreement or undertaking whether the breach does or does not occur or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring before the discharge of the debtor and generally it shall include any express or implied engagement agreement or undertaking to pay or capable of resulting in the payment of money or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount, fixed or unliquidated; as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any one contingency or on two or more contingencies; as to mode of valuation capable of being ascertained by fixed rules, or as matter of opinion.

SECURED CREDITORS.

To ascertain who are and who are not secured creditors, reference must be made to the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (n). Section 168 of that Act defines the expression "secured creditor" as meaning a person holding a mortgage charge or lien on the property of the debtor or any part thereof as a security for a debt due to him from the debtor.

Section 45 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, does not apply in a winding-up so as to deprive an execution creditor of the fruits of his execution (o), and where a sheriff has seized under a writ of fi. fa., this will make the creditor for whom he has seized a secured creditor (p); but where a writ of fi. fa. or other writ of execution is given to the sheriff, this will not in itself make the execution creditor a secured creditor even as against goods within his bailiwick, for though the Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (q), provides that such writ shall bind the goods (r) of the execution debtor as from the time when the writ is delivered to the sheriff to be executed, the sheriff has not even a qualified property in and cannot maintain an action of trover for such goods until actual seizure (s), and this rule also holds good in the case of money, bank-notes, cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes, bonds, specialities, and other securities for money which can be seized under a fi. fa. by virtue of the provisions of section 12 of the Judgments Act, 1838, for there the Sale of Goods Act has no application and the goods are only bound from the date of the seizure (t).

With regard to leasehold interests these also are liable to seizure under a writ of fi. fa. (u), and at common law the sheriff did acquire some interest in the land from the time when the writ was delivered to him (x), but he could not take actual possession of the land, and if he did he could be ejected; he could take constructive possession by seizing the deeds, and when he had sold and executed a proper assignment to the purchaser the purchaser could bring ejectment (y). As against purchasers for value such writs are now void unless registered under the Land Charges Acts, 1888 and 1900.

Since the passing of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, writs of elegit only extend to lands including chattels real (z). It is thought that they too will give a charge at a date not later than the time when the writ is delivered to the sheriff (a), but, at all events, a charge will, subject to the rights of a purchaser for value, be given when the sheriff has actually seized (b).

The appointment of a receiver of land will give a charge on the land from the date of the order, and that even though the receiver has been ordered to give security (c) the appointment of a receiver of personalty other than chattels real gives no charge, at all events, until an order has been made on the person who is in possession of the property directing him to give up possession to the receiver (d), what the appointment of a receiver does do is to restrain the debtor from dealing with the property (e). And, no doubt, if there were no provisions in the Act dealing with the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors, and staying proceedings, executions, etc., during a winding-up and while a petition is pending, a person who had obtained the appointment of a receiver of personalty would be entitled to have his debt paid out of the fund, when it became ready to be distributed (f). It has been held (g) that an order appointing a receiver of a remainder in realty does not give a charge as it did not constitute an actual delivery in execution within section 1 of the Judgments Act, 1864; but that section has now been repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900, and it is thought that the decision above-mentioned goes with it, as also a decision that no charge can be given under section 13 of the Judgments Act, 1838, where the property is in remainder (h). There is no power to give a charge by way of execution over reversionary interests in personalty (i).

With regard to writs of sequestration, personalty, other than chattels real, is not charged by the mere issue of the writ or even by its service and payment being made to the sequestrators, the creditor must go further and get some special order or special charge (k); this he can in many cases do (l). With regard to realty and leaseholds it is thought that there will not be a charge on the land until there has been actual seizure, at all events, this seems to be the effect of Re Hastings (m), a case which seems to be based on the Judgments Act, 1838, and not on the repealed Act of 1864.

A garnishee order, whether nisi or absolute, will charge the debt from the time when notice of such order has been given to the garnishee (n), but it will give no security before that date (o). A creditor who obtains a charging order becomes a secured creditor (p). Where prior to the commencement of a winding-up, property of a company has been arrested jurisdictionis fundandæ causa, the creditor who has taken such step will, if he bring an action and obtain an order arresting the property on the dependence of the action, not be restrained from proceeding with such action, and will, subject to obtaining a decree in such action, be a secured creditor (q).

The question of whether a landlord is or is not a secured creditor, depends on whether he has or has not put in a distress for his rent before the commencement of the winding-up; if he has, he will be a secured creditor, otherwise he will not (r); and where a power of distress was contained in a mining lease, and extended not only to chattels on the property comprised in the lease, but also to chattels of the lessee on adjoining collieries, it was held that the landlord was in the same position with regard to a distress on an adjoining colliery (s). In Scotland an urban landlord has a "real security without possession" upon the property demised, and he can put such right into force before the rent has actually accrued due, for the purpose of recovering the whole rent of the current year, and a Scotch landlord will, at all events where he has taken proceedings to enforce his hypothec, be a secured creditor (t). The privileges given to a landlord in bankruptcy by section 42 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, as amended by section 28 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, have no application in a winding-up (u).

Where property has been attached for a particular purpose, e.g. to compel the owner to enter an appearance in the suit, the person who has obtained the attachment will not be a secured creditor, for the attachment gives him no rights which he can enforce in all circumstances (x).

Where a solicitor has a common law lien at the date of winding-up the Court will supplement such lien by giving the statutory charge, unless it is for any reason inequitable so to do (y). Where documents are in the hands of a solicitor but ought not to be there either because of some provision in the Act or in the company's articles, then it would seem there can be no lien for a solicitor cannot claim any lien against his client, which that client was not in a position to give him (z), and a solicitor employed in a liquidation cannot utilize any lien he has got so as to prevent the liquidation being prosecuted in the ordinary way, because persons other than his client, the liquidator, are interested; but where the papers, etc., were properly in the solicitor's possession and subject to his lien at the date of the winding-up, there the liquidator cannot claim any higher rights than the company itself could have done (a). A solicitor has a common law lien on property recovered by his exertions (b). Other instances of liens are the lien of a broker and the lien of a banker (c), and of an unpaid vendor (d); but, of course, liens may be excluded by express contract, or by the conduct of the parties only being consistent with an intention that they should not exist or should be waived (e).

Money paid into Court before winding-up to abide the event of an action, will make the plaintiff a secured creditor (f). A creditor can, it is thought, follow moneys received by a company as his agent, even when such moneys have become mixed with the company's other moneys (g).

Persons who hold security over property which is in no sense the company's property, and would in no event go to augment the estate which is being realized in the winding-up are not considered as secured creditors in such winding-up, and can prove for the whole amount of their debt, and retain their security, though, of course, they cannot receive more than 20*s*. in the £ (h).

An example of this would seem to arise in the case of principal and surety. Thus, where a surety is liable for the whole debt even though his liability is limited, the principal creditor can demand payment from him, and at the same time prove for and retain all moneys originally due from the principal debtor until he has actually received 20*s*. in the £ (i).

No doubt, where the surety is surety for part only of the debt, he will, on paying such part, be entitled to stand in the shoes of the principal creditor, just as he would be able to do if he were surety for the whole on payment of the whole, but that is because as between him and the principal creditor the whole has been paid (k). But even here the surety may by his contract of suretyship waive his right in favour of the principal creditor and then the principal creditor can prove for the whole debt even if the surety has paid his part out of securities given him by the principal debtor (l). Sureties who have paid the debt of the principal creditor, will be entitled to the benefit of any proof he has made, and any moneys which he receives after payment of the whole debt he will receive as trustee for the sureties (m).

Except where the Act makes special provision a winding-up does not affect the right of a secured creditor to realize or otherwise deal with his security (n). But where a secured creditor is not content to rely on his security, there he will be subject to the rules of bankruptcy.

COURSES OPEN TO SECURED CREDITORS.

These rules give him the choice of three courses (o). He may either—

(a) Realize his security and prove for the balance after deducting the net amount realized; or

(b) Surrender his security and prove for the whole debt; or

(c) State in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given and the value at which he assesses it, in which case he will be entitled to receive a dividend in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

Where a security is so valued the liquidator may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value.

If the liquidator is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued be offered for sale at such time and on such terms as may be agreed on between the creditor and the liquidator, or as, in default of agreement, the Court may direct. If the sale be by public auction the creditor or the liquidator on behalf of the estate may bid or purchase. The creditor may at any time by notice in writing require the liquidator to elect whether he will or will not exercise his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realized, and if the liquidator does not, within six months after receiving the notice signify in writing to the creditor his election to exercise the power he will not be entitled to exercise it, and the equity of redemption or any other interest in the property comprised in the security will vest in the creditor, and the debt will be reduced by the amount at which the security has been valued (p).

Where a creditor has so valued his security he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing to the satisfaction of the liquidator or the Court that the valuation and proof were made bonâ fide on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but every such amendment must be made at the cost of the creditor and upon such terms as the Court orders unless the liquidator allows the amendment without application to the Court (q).

Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with the preceding rule the creditor must forthwith repay any surplus dividend which he may have received in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or as the case may be, will (o) See Bankruptcy Act, 1883, Second Schedule, rr. 9, 10, and 11. A person who has sold a business to a company on the terms that it shall pay the debts may prove in the liquidation for debts he has been called on to pay, in spite of having conveyed the property to the company during its liquidation: Todd's Application (1911), 48 S. be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being available for dividend any dividend or share of dividend he may have failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend, but he will not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the amendment (r).

If a creditor after having valued his security subsequently realizes it, or if it is realized under the provisions of Rule 12 (supra), the net amount realized will be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor, and will be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor (s).

A secured creditor who does not comply with the foregoing rules will be excluded from all share in any dividend (t).

Subject to the provisions of Rule 12 (supra) a creditor may in no case receive more than 20*s*. in the £, and interest as provided by the Act (u).

Where a creditor relies on his security and does not prove, a liquidator is not bound on declaring a dividend to set aside any reserve fund to meet any proof he may make (x), but the creditor may always come in and prove so long as he does not disturb past dividends (y). Where a secured creditor realizes or values his security he will, as a general rule, be allowed to allocate such part of his debt as he pleases to his security and to prove for the rest (z), and it has been held that he will therefore in spite of the provisions of section 23 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, be entitled where his debt carries interest at a higher rate than 5 per cent. to allocate all interest due to him down to the date of the petition to his security, and to prove for the debt itself (a), but he will not be allowed to allocate interest after petition to his security, though if the security brings in interest or profits, he may pay himself interest on his debt for the period after petition out of the interest or profits brought in by his security (b). A secured creditor will be allowed to deduct from the value of his security or from the moneys arising from its realization sums reasonably incurred by him, even after the commencement of the winding-up in defending his title to his security, and also sums paid by way of damages to a third party for retaining property which has been wrongfully mortgaged to him (c). Premiums paid after the commencement of the winding-up for the purpose of keeping alive policies which form part of the security stand on the same footing as interest, and can neither be allocated to the security nor proved for (d). In ascertaining what is due to a creditor the Court will look to the substance of the transaction, and if it finds that the real intention was to give interest, it will not allow proof in respect of it in bankruptcy (e). At first sight the rules which deal with the rights of proof of a secured creditor (f) and the rules which affect his rights of voting (g) appear inconsistent; but they must be treated as entirely distinct rules which deal with different matters and give different rights (h).

To take the various steps taken by a secured creditor, who does not propose to rely on his security alone. He, in the first instance, lodges his proof for voting purposes (i). If that is not used for voting or for claiming a dividend, it is not adjudicated upon, and can be withdrawn, and if it is withdrawn, then the position is the same as if there had been no proof (k). If, on the other hand, the creditor votes in respect of his whole debt, he will be deemed to have surrendered his security unless the Court on application is satisfied that the omission to value the security has arisen from inadvertence (l). Where there has been no omission to value the security, but it has been valued at nil, the saving clause at the end of this rule does not come into play (m). Where on the other hand there is a security but no debt, although the parties have taken a contrary view, the rule itself has no application (n). As to what will constitute inadvertence, it will be noticed that relief under this rule can only be given under very different circumstances to relief under rule 13 in the second Schedule to the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. Where there has been a deliberate election as to whether the creditor will or will not take advantage of his security, and he ultimately votes in respect of his whole debt, there he will have surrendered his security owing to a mistaken view of the circumstances, perhaps, but not owing to inadvertence, and he can get no relief (o).

(o) Re Piers, [1898] 1 Q. B. 627;

Where a company which had a lien for calls on partly paid shares, abandoned such lien and proved and received dividends in respect of calls for which the bankrupt was liable, and also, it would seem, voted, and then altered its articles so as to extend such lien to fully paid shares, the Court declined to allow the proof to be withdrawn or amended so as to enable the company to take advantage of the lien given it by such alteration (q), the Court in this case seems to have taken the view that there had been a deliberate election to omit all reference to the security, and to have decided the case under the rule as to a secured creditor voting without valuing his security, but it is difficult to see that the creditor had at the time of proving and voting any security over the fully paid shares to surrender. Possibly, however, the case can be supported apart from this rule on the ground that the company's proof had been adjudicated upon and dividends had been received in respect of it (r). A creditor who proved for his whole debt because he erroneously thought that his security was over property not belonging to the company, was given relief on the footing that he had acted inadvertently (s). It may be that even where there has been a surrender of a security, the Court can allow amendment, and so do away with the surrender itself (t).
